IN SWITZERLAND.

AT THE HOME OF ULRIC ZWINGLI.

Visit to the Old Cathedral Where the Swiss Reformer Preached—Switzerland's Republican Institutions.

Extracts from Private Correspondence.

INTERLACHEN, Switzerland, Aug. 15, 1884.—The famous "Lion of Lucerne" is viewed by all tourists visiting the city; it is simply a lion carved in the rock in a sequestered spot back of the town, after the design of Thorwaldsen, in honor of the Swiss who fell in defending the Tuileries August 10, 1792. Within a few yards of this spot is the Glacier Garden, where many evidences of the glacial period are exhibited, a very interesting account of which I copy from the programme handed us at the entrance to the garden.

Programme of Explanation of the Glacier Garden.

"Remains of the remarkable period of the Glaciers discovered in the years 1872-1875 are here unfolded before the eyes of the visitor. These debris date from the earliest epoch of the existence of our globe, from the time when almost the whole of Switzerland and a large part of the Northern hemisphere were buried under immense masses of ice with here and there an oasis lying between inhabited by animals extinct long ago.

After the humus or mound carried along with the moving glacier had been taken away, wonderful erosions made by nature were discovered here which the visitor best inspects in the following succession:

No. 1 is one of the gigantic pots or glacier holes, erosions caused by the glacier. They owe their existence to the whirling of stones driven round by the melted ice. In geology these holes or pots are known by the name of glacier mills. The stones whirled round by the water ground the rock, at the same time they were polished themselves, as the two samples of mill-stones lying in the mill amply prove.

No. 2 is a glacier mill with two grinders left as most of them have been removed in order to impede the inspection of the mill. The spiral windings dug by water whirling round from east to west are clearly visible.

No. 3 is the mill that was discovered first of all and had the sad fate of being almost quite destroyed as the value of the interesting discovery was not known yet.

No. 4 is a layer of rocks abounding with petrifications of the sea once covering the whole country situated at the foot of the Alps which then presented a mere range of hills looking over the surface of the water.

No. 5 offers the petrification of a palm discovered by the breaking of a stone near the garden.

On this small spot of ground you have, therefore, before your eyes different pages of the history of the earth; for the country where we are now, once presented various aspects: No. 4 dates from the period when the ocean covered the land, No. 5 presents land when tropic heat produced tropic forests; in the glacier mills we have the debris left by the ice that once covered all the Northern hemisphere. Thus the aspect of the earth was changed in the course of millions of years.

No. 6 is another glacier mill the top of which has been a little injured. Its spiral windings, however, are very distinct, one circle a half. Two mill stones are at the bottom.

No. 7 offers large blocks of rocks carried away from the Alps and dropped here by the moving glacier. The whole surface of such rocks is furrowed by scratches which always appear on the stones that have been carried off by a glacier. They prove that these stones were moved on by glaciers and not by torrents.

No. 8 is the finest and largest glacier mill that has ever been found since that time. The mound covering it was taken off in 1875-1876. The diameter of the mill is 8 meters, its depth is 9½ meters. At the bottom one perceives several holes of mills between the crevices of the rock.

No. 9 is a glacier mill with big mill stones of granite from the Gotthard.

Various smaller and larger beginnings of such mills are visible on several spots above No. 8.

No. 10 offers a whole place full of grindings, furrows and scratches made by the glacier of the Reuss at the bottom of which the rocks were lying as it moved along drawing these lines with the edges of rocks it was dragging along with it.

From the workshop of nature paths lead up to the Kiosk, where a very old bas-reliefs is exhibited, made by General Pfyffer, the inventor of bas-reliefs, representing Central Switzerland."

At the home of Ulric Zwingli

We made a short visit to Zurich on Thursday. It is about 50 miles from Lucerne, the lake of that name. It is rather a flourishing city, having extensive silk manufactures and was at one time the capital of Switzerland. It contains a number of good hotels. The chief interest in the city to us was centered in the fact that it was here the great Swiss reformer, Ulric Zwingli, preached the doctrine of the reformation over three hundred years ago. We visit the old cathedral church in which he preached, which is a very unpretentious building, with plain wooden seats, just as they were at the time Zwingli preached.

We also visit the house in which he lived, and the small room about 14 foot square, which was his study. It remains much as it was, with the little cupboards and bookshelves in the wall. We visit the museum, which contains a number of curiosities that have been found in the lake of the stone age, of which no history is extant. We also visit the public library, which contains many interesting momentoes of Zwingli, among others his family Bible, in which is the family record in his own handwriting.

Through a beautiful country.

The railroad from Lucerne to Zurich passes through a fine country, some parts of it reminding us of Lancaster county. We see quite a number of good Swiss barns. Everything around the barns and dwellings is kept neat and trim looking.

On Friday morning we leave Lucerne for this place. Taking the boat we go to Alpnach, and from there take a carriage for our party for Interlachen, by way of the Brunig pass. The route for a short distance is through a valley with mountains on either side, on the slopes of which are many Swiss cottages.

We soon begin to ascend the mountain by an elegant macadamized road as smooth as a floor. Our driver informed us that previous to the making of this road (22 years ago) there was only a bridle path, which was travelled on horseback and afoot. From many points a fine view is obtained of the intervening valley and numerous lakes.

We stop for dinner at the village of Lungurn. The hostess, a bustling Swiss dame, dressed in picturesque Swiss costume, with her son and daughter, attend to the wants of their numerous customers. She speaks German, French, Italian and English with fluency, and has an eye to gathering in the francs.

Viewing Giesbeck Falls.

We finally reach the summit, from which we gradually descend to Brienz, at the head of the lake of the same name, where we concluded to spend the night in order to see the Giesbeck falls, which we understand are to be illuminated at 9 p. m. We take rooms at the "Hotel de la Croix Blanche," and at 8 o'clock we board a boat and with two stalwart Swiss oarsmen are rowed across the lake, which is one and a half miles wide, to the falls.

The falls consist of a narrow and rapid stream which rushes over the side of the Giesbeck mountains a distance which is said to be 1,000 feet, although it did not strike us as being so high, yet the distances in these mountain districts are very deceptive to the eye of a stranger. There is a fine hotel up at the falls, which is reached by a winding foot path leading up the side of the mountain from the shore of the lake, over which we are piloted by our guide with a lantern. We find a large crowd awaiting the lighting up of the falls, which is done with Bengal lights, the varied hues of which have a fine effect in their striking contrast with the green foliage of the mountain side.

We return to our boat, and are slowly rowed back to our hotel over the smooth and now moonlit lake. Our guides proved to be men of good native intelligence, who gave us much valuable information. The singing portion of our party, led by the fine soprano voice of Mrs. Bausman, sang for them "Nun Danket Alle Gott," with which they were much pleased, declaring they had never heard anything so fine before.

Notes on Swiss Institutions.

These Swiss are an interesting people. It is not generally known to our country men that here, in the mountain fastnesses of the Alps, isolated in a great measure from the rest of Europe, is a country with a government as Republican in form as our own, composed of about 26 cantons, each one electing its own officials and controlling its internal affairs the same as our states do. They have a General Council or Congress, which consists of representatives from the different states similar to our Congress, and this Congress elects the chief executive of the nation.

These cantons are divided in their religious views, some of them being Protestant and some Catholic, there being perfect religious toleration. Their system of education is good, the schools being kept open the whole year, to which parents are compelled by law to send their children at least six months.

There is universal suffrage, pure and simple, no property qualification being required; so that the vote of the humblest citizen is equal to that of the millionaire. Neither is there any class distinction; of this liberty the Swiss are very proud.

We left Brienz this morning after calling on the Reformed minister, Rev. Heindrich Baumgartner, who gave us some interesting information in regard to the Reformed church in Switzerland. G. W. H

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water. All the best physicians agreed that nothing could rescue me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was drugged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."—A WORKINGMAN.

PARKER'S TONIC.

Swept Into the Stream.

One Thousand Acres of Land and "Right Smart of Bears."

On the deck of a big Mississippi steamboat an aged Southern planter, indicating by a sweep of his arm the waters the boat was passing over, he said to a passenger from the North: "When I was twelve years old I killed my first bear on a new plantation my father was then cutting of a forest that grew directly over the waters on at this bend. That was a mighty good plantation, and there was right smart of bears there, too. But that one thousand acres of land went into the Mississippi river years ago."

It is putting no strain upon the figure to say that great forests of youthful hope, womanly beauty and manly strength are swept in the same way every year into the great, turbid torrent of disease and death. Yet it should not be so. That it is so is a disgrace as well as a loss. People are largely too careless or too stupid to defend their own interests—the most precious of which is health. That gone, all is gone. Disease is simple, but to recklessness or ignorance the simplest things might as well be complex as a proposition in Conic Sections. As the huge western rivers, which so often flood the cities along their shores, arise in a few mountain springs, so all our ailments can be traced to impure blood and a sunken group of disordered organs.

The most effective and inclusive remedy for disease is PARKER'S TONIC. It goes to the source of pain and weakness. In response to its action, the liver, kidneys, stomach and heart begin their work afresh and disease is driven out. The Tonic is not, however, an intoxicant, but curses deafer a strong drink. Have you dyspepsia, rheumatism, or troubles which have refused to yield to other agents? Here is your help. al-1md&w
