

Lancaster Intelligencer.

MONDAY EVENING, AUG. 26, 1884.

The Sun's Love.

We have a great deal of sympathy for the New York Sun. It wants so much to go straight, and finds it so impossible, that it is entitled to the commiseration of everyone who hates to gaze upon pictures of suffering, whether physical or mental.

It is undoubtedly awkward to profess devotion to the Democratic party while advocating the defeat of the Democratic ticket; and when in addition a once hotly condemned man must be taken as the candidate with whom to defeat the Democracy, the situation becomes disagreeable in the extreme to the Democratic fibre of the Sun.

It is not a rash prediction to make that the legion of authors that have sprung up in recent years, save George Eliot and a few others, will receive literary burial long before the twentieth century enters on its second decade.

The whole land thieving by cattle kings in the West illustrates anew the necessity of such an examination of the books as Hendricks proposed when he lay Secretary Chandler.

BLAINE is said to be descended from a King of Wales; he got his spurs, however, from the king of the lobby.

RUSKIN charged the weather with having deteriorated in a most shameful manner since he was a young man. Perhaps the same might be said with more truth of Mr. Raskin.

The latest stand-and-deliver demand of Highwayman Jones, chairman of the Republican national committee, is for subscriptions to start an illustrated campaign paper. The galled jule is wincing under the thrusts, as savage as truth, of Post and Harper's Weekly.

THE CLERK AND THE BEANS. The clerk took his coffee, and the beans took his coffee.

CHINA may not be such an easy plum for France to swallow. I read that at one hour's notice she can put in the field one hundred thousand men armed with Remington breech-loading and magazine rifles and with all the necessary Gatling guns, Hotchkiss guns and field pieces.

MR. HENRY GEORGE BORN, the London author and publisher, is dead.

BRUNSON HOWARD, editor and play writer, has become noted as a bicyclist in London.

GAS TRUSTEE SAMUEL S. KELLY, of Philadelphia, died on Sunday evening in his seventy-third year.

SEVENTH FORTY has returned from Washington to his home in Geneva, N. Y., in falling health.

COMMISSIONER DUNPHY, it is rumored, will resign, because of differences between himself and Secretary Teller.

VERY REV. PATRICK REILLY, vice general of the Catholic diocese of Wilmington, Del., celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood on Sunday morning.

THIEVING CATTLE MEN.

HOW THEY STEAL THE PUBLIC LANDS.

Between five and six million acres of the public domain are being stolen by the cattle kings of the West.

Some time since the commissioner of the general land office at Washington ordered a survey of certain public lands in Colorado and Nebraska, with a view of bringing suits at the next term of the court against cattle companies that have illegally encroached on large tracts of land in those States.

BLAINE is said to be descended from a King of Wales; he got his spurs, however, from the king of the lobby.

RUSKIN charged the weather with having deteriorated in a most shameful manner since he was a young man. Perhaps the same might be said with more truth of Mr. Raskin.

The latest stand-and-deliver demand of Highwayman Jones, chairman of the Republican national committee, is for subscriptions to start an illustrated campaign paper. The galled jule is wincing under the thrusts, as savage as truth, of Post and Harper's Weekly.

THE CLERK AND THE BEANS. The clerk took his coffee, and the beans took his coffee.

CHINA may not be such an easy plum for France to swallow. I read that at one hour's notice she can put in the field one hundred thousand men armed with Remington breech-loading and magazine rifles and with all the necessary Gatling guns, Hotchkiss guns and field pieces.

MR. HENRY GEORGE BORN, the London author and publisher, is dead.

BRUNSON HOWARD, editor and play writer, has become noted as a bicyclist in London.

GAS TRUSTEE SAMUEL S. KELLY, of Philadelphia, died on Sunday evening in his seventy-third year.

SEVENTH FORTY has returned from Washington to his home in Geneva, N. Y., in falling health.

COMMISSIONER DUNPHY, it is rumored, will resign, because of differences between himself and Secretary Teller.

VERY REV. PATRICK REILLY, vice general of the Catholic diocese of Wilmington, Del., celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood on Sunday morning.

BILLY DEUTSCH, the noted Continental bankrupt bank breaker, styled in Paris as "Billie de France," has come to America to live, and says he will never touch cards again.

LORD COLIN CAMPBELL'S commitments in Argyleshire decline to support him for reelection to the House of Commons on account of the bad treatment of Lady Campbell as shown by the recent divorce proceedings.

JEROME LYON, of Mississippi, who has been visiting his brother, Professor A. J. Lyon, of Washington, Pa., died suddenly this Sunday morning, of heart disease. His mother and sister also died. Judge Lyon was about forty-five years of age and unmarried.

JAMES JOHN RICHARDS, of Wilkesbarre, aged 77, died on board a vessel which reached New York Saturday night. He was on his return from Germany, where he had gone for his health. It was his twenty-sixth trip across the Atlantic. He was associate judge of Luzerne county during the rebellion, and has been in the brewing business for over fifty years.

THE ELECTRICAL EXHIBIT. The display of electricity that the Government intended for the display to be made by the ordinance department of the United States navy at the international electrical exhibition in Philadelphia, have already arrived at the building, and Lieutenant Fiske is busy placing them in position. Among them are two Gramme dynamo mounted on one shaft of a three-cylinder Brotherhood engine. Each of these dynamo runs a hand lantern, fitted with a Magnin projector, which is the most powerful projector known, and they are intended especially for torpedo service in watching for the approach of torpedo boats and in keeping under surveillance a channel in which a hostile fleet is expected to appear. When both machines are attached to one lamp the light will be equal to 40,000 candle power without the projector. By the aid of this light a small object can readily be distinguished at a distance of two and a half miles.

The signal service branch of the war department has signified its intention of buying from the gallery to the main floor and joining the exhibit of the ordinance department. The electrical exhibit has now 700 eggs in the trays, and the first chickens ever hatched in Philadelphia by means of electricity are expected to arrive on September 3, one day after the opening of the great electrical show.

MEMORABLE DEATH OF BROTHERS. The death of Colonel Charles S. Smith, of Philadelphia, leaves but one survivor of a very remarkable family of brothers. Colonel Smith was 94 years old. His surviving brother is Daniel Smith, Francis and George Smith, Richard S. Smith and William S. Smith. Colonel Smith died from the effects of a fall from his horse, and it is a curious fact that all of the others met their death in the same manner. That, however, which was most remarkable in the lives of all these brothers is the fact that all of them reached the age of 80 years, and each lived to celebrate with his wife their golden wedding.

THE QUARTER SESSIONS.

THE HENRY CASE STILL ON TRIAL.

The testimony of the witness in the Henry case is still on trial. The testimony of the witness in the Henry case is still on trial.

Constable Sheik was recalled by the defense, and testified that he saw the defendant on the night of the murder.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

THE QUARTER SESSIONS.

THE HENRY CASE STILL ON TRIAL.

The testimony of the witness in the Henry case is still on trial. The testimony of the witness in the Henry case is still on trial.

Constable Sheik was recalled by the defense, and testified that he saw the defendant on the night of the murder.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

THE QUARTER SESSIONS.

THE HENRY CASE STILL ON TRIAL.

The testimony of the witness in the Henry case is still on trial. The testimony of the witness in the Henry case is still on trial.

Constable Sheik was recalled by the defense, and testified that he saw the defendant on the night of the murder.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

The defense called James Clark, jr., for further cross-examination in reference to the conversation made by Henry to witness at the county prison.

The defense, as outlined by P. D. Baker, was that Short was not murdered, but was accidentally killed by a leak of his horse.

COLUMBIA NEWS.

FROM OUR BUREAU CORRESPONDENT.

A list of accidents—From Personal Files—A train in the morning yesterday afternoon on LaMont street, below Second, between two members of the defunct Marietta bicycle club, both took "headers," and one had his right arm badly sprained.

Two P. R. cars were derailed on the warehouse tracks this morning while being taken to the main track. They caught near the "frog," and the one nearer the warehouse was half toppled over.

A runaway occurred on Bridge street, this morning by one of H. E. Brown's coal team, but was caught without any damage being done.

John Hable had the thumb of his right hand on Saturday evening between the rollers at the Sappaphanes rolling mill and severely mangled. Amputation, however, will not be necessary.

PERSONALS. Messrs. Wm. B. Given, F. A. Bennett and W. H. Shearer, and Rev. R. W. Humphries, the Columbia team who have been "taking in" the right of Europe, returned home last night safe, well and delighted with their trip. They arrived in New York at 8.15 A. M. yesterday. A heavy fog and sea was encountered on the return trip, and a narrow escape. Their vessel, the "City of Berlin," nearly ran into another steamer, which could not be seen for the fog.

Miss Clara B. Harvey, of Washington, D. C., left for home on Saturday. She had been the guest of Mrs. Wm. B. Given.

Mr. Z. C. Harley is home from his Virginia trip.

H. S. Farness, connected with the Philadelphia Press, is the guest of Sept. A. M. Wilson.

Miss Mary Grier, who has been visiting in West Virginia, returned home on Saturday evening.

A great deal of drunken and disorderly conduct occurred every day beneath the coal-shutes, and yet no attempts have been made to put a stop to it.

Samuel Reed on Saturday was arrested upon a charge of drunken and disorderly conduct. Squire Young released him upon $200 bail, and he was out in a few minutes, and a promise "not to do so again."

Officer M. Dreyer, while arresting "Patsy" Whalen, had new eyes of our law-abiding citizens intended against the officer.

For the second time this week a raft and fish shutes have to be closed on account of the low water.

The board of trustees of the Old Col arena building, at 200 North Second, held a special meeting this week to attempt to quiet the Sunday amusements in the park. It is about time.

Sailing on the river was the way in which some of our young men spent yesterday. A boat full of them was seen, and it was not noticeable about the river and the lands bordering docks, however.

The Young Folk's Social society of St. John's Lutheran church, will hold an open air social in the yard of the church on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

The stores' moulders' picnic in Heise's woods on Saturday was largely attended, and as was expected, the most pleasant affair of the kind held there for a long time. The "Orchestra" correct band led the grand march.

AN ANTI-CREATIONIST. Rev. Paul Meister, L. L. D., reasons why Creation is wrong.

Rev. Emil Meister presented his second sermon against creation on Sunday evening to a large congregation. He opened with the statement that the creation of the world is a mystery to our city intelligentsia. In 1873, Rev. Meister said the water in the cemetery at Dresden, Germany, was analyzed and found to be purer than any other water in that city. He also said that creation is a mystery to our city intelligentsia.

Creation will not be as a burial, the speaker claimed, because in all cases a casket will have to be present, and the body will have to be buried in the earth. If the body is to be cremated, it is repulsive to the feelings of the people of the loved one who was cared for so tenderly, to have the body taken from the home and in a few hours have it return a small urn of ashes, and the body of the loved one be visible and chosen to be planted thereon, and one thinks of the dead as the latter was in life. Many verses in the Bible were quoted by Meister to show that burial was the proper mode of disposing of the dead. The frontiers of death say that method of disposing of the dead is not compulsory, but the speaker claimed that there was danger of its being made compulsory, through an act of assembly, because its advocates claimed that earth burial of the dead is a crime.

It was the intention of Rev. Meister to preach three or four sermons on the subject, but with the session of last evening he concluded all that he has to say about creation.

A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER. Accused with a Double Case Concerning Walter He Teller's Death.

On Saturday afternoon a man who gave his name as G. H. Holliday, but whose name is ascertained to be H. H. Enory, was arrested at the Cooper house, this city. He had in his possession a buggy, a horse, and a mare, the team answering the description of one of some days ago from Easton, Pa., of Harford county, Maryland. The man arrested not only gave the wrong name, but told some conflicting stories, one of which was that he had the plate on which the name of the maker of the buggy was engraved, which plate was found in the man's pocket by Officer Barnhold, who made the arrest. The accused was looked up on a warrant issued by Alderman Spruner, who notified Mr. Solby and Detective George W. Seabold arrived in Lancaster to day, and on looking at the team, failed to identify it. It is believed that the team stolen from Mr. Solby may have been exchanged for the one found in possession of Enory, who will be held to await further developments.

Attracted for a Notion Crime. Jefferson Stauffer, a married man of Londonderry township, Lebanon county, was arrested Saturday and lodged in Lohan county jail, charged by Mrs. Sarah Quigley with assault and battery, with intent to commit a rape, on the person of her daughter, Veritas Quigley, 10 years old.

Malignant Trespass. Martin McLaughlin, arrested for malicious trespass on the premises of John G. Rush of West Willow, had a hearing before Alderman Spruner and was dismissed on payment of costs. Mr. Rush not wishing to push the case.

Charged With Embezzlement. John M. Peoples has had another charge of embezzlement preferred against him by the Metropolitan life insurance company. A hearing of the case will be had before Alderman Spruner Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

St. Joseph's Picnic. A picnic is being held today at the Green Cottage park, the profits of St. Joseph's Catholic church. The attendance is large.

COLUMBIA NEWS.

FROM OUR BUREAU CORRESPONDENT.

A list of accidents—From Personal Files—A train in the morning yesterday afternoon on LaMont street, below Second, between two members of the defunct Marietta bicycle club, both took "headers," and one had his right arm badly sprained.

Two P. R. cars were derailed on the warehouse tracks this morning while being taken to the main track. They caught near the "frog," and the one nearer the warehouse was half toppled over.

A runaway occurred on Bridge street, this morning by one of H. E. Brown's coal team, but was caught without any damage being done.

John Hable had the thumb of his right hand on Saturday evening between the rollers at the Sappaphanes rolling mill and severely mangled. Amputation, however, will not be necessary.

PERSONALS. Messrs. Wm. B. Given, F. A. Bennett and W. H. Shearer, and Rev. R. W. Humphries, the Columbia team who have been "taking in" the right of Europe, returned home last night safe, well and delighted with their trip. They arrived in New York at 8.15 A. M. yesterday. A heavy fog and sea was encountered on the return trip, and a narrow escape