THE TELEGRAPH EDITOR. ANI RECERTANT SEWASCAPES ATTACHES Bares A Description of Several Section Several Section of the Section of

My experience, I am aware, does not cover many years. There are hundreds of newspaper writers at their desks now who were veterans in the service ere I began. And yet it is possible that I may have observed some things, some changes, some peculiarities during the brief period of my connection with this business, or profes-sion, or whatever you are pleased to call it, which will prove interesting if not instructive.

I am not able to tell you why the telegraph editor arose before my vision the moment you asked me to contribute somebing to your excellent magazine. But he did, and he has remained there ever since, Looking down the long corridors of momory I can see him leaning over the shabbiest and most uncomfortable table in the office, round-shouldered and prema torely gray, struggling with the associated press report and damning the operator. Oue of the highest privileges as well as one of the most prized prerogatives of the telegraph editors position is his unques tioned and unassatiable right to damn the operator at all times and under all circumtances. I can see him with a sheet of 'special'' report before him, under the glare and heat of the midnight burner, filling in the "the's" the "aud's" the "a's" of's and as I watch him, his pencil but tops and obstinately refuses to go on. He noves nervously in his rickety chair ; he scratches his ear with the point of his lead-pencil ; he holds the dispatch up to ad I can see him as he straightens out this tangle, and I hear his multered exects tions, as they fall in a perfect avalanche upon the head of-no, not the operator-the correspondent. Poor, lonesome, ob scure buried-out of sight telegraph edi-tor ! I am sorry for nim. His life is a hard one even on the best of papers; on the average paper it is one of the purse thankless, endiess drudgery. No one appreciates or values his work, for Lo ore nows him. He enters the office at dusk, goes home at day break and sleeps during the busiest and best hours of the twentyfour. Aithough he has it within his power

A HORKIBLE ORIME. A Jenious Husband Outs His Young Wite's

has occurred in the Schuylkill countyregion in a long time was enacted on the top of the Mahonoy Mountain, between this place and Ringtown, at dusk on Tuesday evenand Ringtown, at dusk on I decay even-ing. John Osenbach, a man about 27 years of age, and his wife, Sarah, aged 19, were on their way to Shenandoah, when her husband, who had been jealous of his wife for some time, deliberately cut her threat. Osenbach and his wife were married four Osenbach and in white the second seco to the jealous disposition of the former. They had been separated for about a year. Yesterday Osenbach met his wife and asked her to go to the Catawissa Valley with him to-day. She went and worked all day in a field picking potatoes. On the way home he asked her for a kiss and, when he embraced her, he pulled back her head and deliberately cut her throat. Osenbach took to the woods and the woman ran into Shenaudoah and fell exhausted on the street. Dr. Stroup sewed

up the wound, but the woman cannot liv

Facts About the Onlid. A healthy child is a loy in the Louse. A sick and feeble child is a constant worry. The diseases which attack the child are chiefly those which attack the algestive organs and the blood. Brown's iron Bitters acts gently but powerfully on these, restoring the child to health and vigor. It is a pleasant medicine to take, and the children under its use will gain strength in every portion of the body.
