TOO FOND OF DIAMONDS. GAT CAREER OF AN ADVENTURES. How Herself and Husband Lived in Style at the Pitth Avenue New York Motel-

New Herself and Husband Lived in Style at the Fifth Avenue New York Mosel-Explanamilous by Friends. Mrs. Georgianna Heustia, who is under arrest in Boston for obtaining diamonds to the value of nearly $20,000 from Theresa Lynch, a diamond broker of No. 925 Broadway, New York, by fraudulent rep-resentation, will probably not be brought to New York for several days, if at all. She has taken advantage of the Massa-obusetts law, and will be granted a hear-ing there before the requisition issued by the governor of New York will be con-firmed by the governor of the Bay State. Mr. and Mrs. Heustis have lived more or less at the Fifth Avenue hotel for two years past. They had an elegant suite of rooms, which were paid for regularly, whether the couple occuped them or not. Sometimes they would be away for weeks together, but the bill was always paid on their return. They registered as from East Marshfield, Mass., where Mr Heustis was building a handsome home. He kept a carriage and horses, and from his talk it was understood about the Fifth Avenue that he was worth some $2,000,000, and that he was a bruker or some some Avenue that he was worth some $2,000,000, Wall street. He left the hotel about four months ago with his wife and went to Massachusetts. His rooms were reserved as usual and his return was daily expected. He had been gone about five weeks when news of his death was received. Then the rooms were let and a bill for $700 was sent into his estate. Nothing was thought but that the bill was good, and at the Fifth Avenue yesterday the manager was confident that all right and that everything would be settled up in full. Mrs. Lynch, who is a woman past the prime of life, decked out with a forgeous white wig, sat behind her stock of diamonds yesterday and refused to say a word about the affair. She referred every oaller-and there was a multitude-to her lawyer, Mr. Abram Kling, of No. 261 Broadway. Mr. Kling was very com-municative. He was sure that he had a "dead open and shut" case against the fair Georgiana, who is only 35, and very charming. According to Mr. Kling, Mrs. Heustis had often borrowed diamonds of Mrs. Lynch for use at operas and balls. "Why." said the enthusiastic Mr

"Why." said the enthusiastic Mr Kling, "she once got a necklace worth $40,000. Return it? Yes. Why, young man, you're not up in these things. How many people reputed rich borrow geme for show you've no idea ! That's a feature of New York life that you should study.' Then Mr. Kling calmed down. He thought Mrs. Heustis a most accom plished confidence woman. She lived in splendid style at the Fifth Avenue, and made the acquaintance of Mrs. Lynch. They became great friends. Mrs. Heustis moved in fashionable circles, and, aithough possessed of a goodly number of gems, waated variety. So Mrs. Lynch ioaned diamonds to her whenever she asked the favor. Diamonds of fabulous ever she was seen in public. Once she had a ring and charm worth $35,000, which she wore for two days. About a year ago she got from Mrs. Lynch dia monds worth $20,000 to wear at a ball. They were to be returned, as the others had been, but they were not. The day after she lent the jewels Mrs. Lynch sailed for Europe, where she has been traveling ever since. She returned to New York three weeks ago. Then, ac-oording to Mr. Kling, a detective was that the proceeds of the estate, which is now in the hands of an executor, will be sufficient to pay his debts. The relations existing between the Lynches, mother and suc, and Mr. Mrr. Heustis appear accord-ing to letters and bills in existence, to have been intimate in both business and social affairs. It is claimed that the diamonds and inverte the amount of $20,000 mean affairs. It is claimed that the diamonds and jewelry to the amount of $20,000,upon the alleged larceny of which the criminal indictment is based, were bought on credit by Mr. Heustis and presented by him to Mrs. Heustis, The regularity of the purchase is apparently proved by a bill in proper form, amounting to about $28,000, but reduced by some thousands of dollars by payments on account which are properly oredited.

Overpressure in the Schools

Dr Crichton Browne, in his official report on overpressure in the British elementary schools, says : "The disintegrating effects of overpressure seem to be clearly revealed, for the number of lunatics in England, Scotland and Ireland has increased enormously of late years, and in a degree out of all proportion to the population, as may be seen from the following figures : The ratio of lunatics per 1,000 of population has gone up from 1 81 in 1862 to 2.41 in 1873 and to 2.84 in 1883. An increase of 43 346 in the number of registered lunatios in the three kingdoms in a period of twen. ty years betokens a decidedly greater pre valance of insanity in the population. Some of the most prolific cases of mental disease have been greatly circumscribed in their operations to recent times, especially when we remember that the elementary education act was passed only in 1870, and has not been applied with such stringency as to amount to overpressure until a still more recent date. We need not, there-fore, look for any but faint indications of its influence in the statistics of insanity for some years to come. We may be sowing the wind but we must wait for the whirlwind. We may be setting up pro-cesses which will ultimately eventuate in madness on a tolerably large scale ; but only after an interval of years, and through such a number of intermediate conditions as will make it difficult to trace out the connection between the effect and its cause. The rate of suicide, calculated on the entire population, seems to have been quintupled in the last century. The revival of suicide in almost every country of Europe has coincided in time with the modern extension of education, and suicides are now most numerous in the very regions where education is most widely diffused. The number of children under sixteen years of age in the list of suicides, although still comparatively small, is swelling annual
