A SANE MAN PENNED

TEN YEARS IN A PRIVATE ASYLUM. An Attempt to Restore Charles E. Richards to the World—Ought to be a Warning to the Community.

Judge Barrett, in the supreme court, Brooklyn, Wednesday granted a writ of habeas corpus in the application of H. W. Leonard for the release of Charles E. Richards, confined in Dr. J. W. Barstow's private asylum for the insane at Brooklyn, N. Y., at the instigation of Mr. Leonard. Mr. Richards is restrained from his liberty and was committed without process. The writ was made returnable on November 1, at 10 a. m. Mr. Leonard is a lawyer who resides at 107 West 11th St., New York. The care of the asylum is in the hands of Dr. J. W. Barstow, who is known as Sanford Hall.

The case of Charles E. Richards is one of special interest. It is a handsome man between thirty-five and forty years of age, over six feet tall, with sandy mustache and beard. He has been in the asylum since 1874, and though it is claimed that he is perfectly sane he has been kept in solitary confinement. He comes from one of the oldest and most respected families of Philadelphia. His father was Benjamin W. Richards, who was mayor of Philadelphia in years gone by. His mother was a sister of Lord Dundas, an earl of Scotland, who came to this country and established a business in Philadelphia. His place was on the corner of Chestnut and Fourteenth streets, and was known throughout the state. Lord Dundas never returned to Scotland, but accumulated a fortune and evidently died in the City before his death. His sister was married to Benjamin W. Richards, a representative of one of the oldest families in the state. Mr. Richards was very wealthy and owned a large portion of the property which now constitutes the Park. This property he subsequently sold to the city. He has four children, Benjamin W., Jr., Selma, Howard and Charles E. Howard Richards is a prominent lawyer in Philadelphia and was married to Miss Mayo, a niece of Gen. Darius M. Raymond. Selma is the wife of Gen. B. Lawrence. A gentleman who has known the family intimately for thirty years said to a World reporter Thursday:

"Charles was a tall, handsome blond and one of the most loyal fellows I ever knew. He never, during all the time that I associated with him, showed any symptoms of insanity. The last time I saw him was, I think, in 1869. I did not know what had become of him until the other day, when he was told that he was in the asylum. I was amazed. I knew his family well. Charles and his mother, who was a sister of Lord Dundas, were there a number of years in Paris. It was there that Mrs. Richards finally died. Mr. Richards died in Philadelphia, and was a considerable property, which was divided among his children. Charles was a bachelor and spent a portion of his time in Paris and this city. My brother, I believe, considered him somewhat wild. He had become in a city. When they were broken out I enlisted and Charles served in the city regiment which went out from Philadelphia. This body was composed of a number of well-to-do young gentlemen, all of whom were tall, well built fellows. I have said, I do not know that he was in an insane asylum until the other day."

Mr. Leonard says that his attention was called to the case by persons who were connected with the asylum. Miss Selma Richards was a nurse in the institution for four months, first spoke to him of Mr. Richards. She said that she believed him perfectly sane. Mrs. Henrietta Wiley, whose release from the asylum he secured on September 7, said that she saw Mr. Richards there, always like a perfect gentleman and never showed any symptoms of insanity. Mr. Leonard says that he also received information from other sources which go to show that the man is unjustly restrained of his liberty. Ten years ago he says Richards quarreled with his brother in the law office in Philadelphia. Shortly after that he was brought to this city and thence taken to Brooklyn under the pretence to see a friend. He was placed in Dr. Barstow's asylum, where he remained for some time. He claimed. Twice he attempted to escape but each time he was captured before he could get away from the village. Dr. Barstow, Mr. Leonard says, is receiving $45 a week for keeping Mr. Richards. As far as the lawyer can learn there is no motive for depriving Mr. Richards of his freedom. The unfortunate man is worth $35,000 or more, which was left him by his father. The money is invested in real estate and stocks.

RAISED UP BY FAITH. After Years of Death in Life a Woman is Suddenly Restored to Health. Fifteen years ago A. J. Jernigan, of near Sander ville, Ga., married Miss Fannie Thompson, one of the most beautiful girls in that county. For a couple of years Mr. and Mrs. Jernigan were leaders of social circles, but after the birth of a daughter she found herself completely paralyzed, and for herself her condition has been such that not only was she unable to manage the household, but her tongue was paralyzed so that she could not speak, and she had to be fed on liquid food. A few weeks ago Mrs. Jernigan was given up for dead. The waters she stood around her bed momentarily expired, and she lay in a stupor, but she suffered lay almost without respiration. She seemed at length to fall asleep, and the waters let her the room. During the whole morning the sufferer, without the knowledge of her attendants, lay, not as they supposed in a stupor, but in silent prayer. She threw her whole soul into her appeal to God to save her for her daughter's sake. It was the fourth hour of her prayer when her attendants had retired. Suddenly she imagined she heard words repeated: "Arise, thy faith hath made thee whole."

Offering up one more fervent prayer, she found that the power of motion had returned to her, and the conviction came to her that God had indeed answered her prayer. Getting up, she felt as strong as on the day she was married. Hastily dressing, she opened the door into the adjoining room, where she appeared before her husband and friends as one risen from the grave. "Fear not," she said, "God has truly returned me to life." The whole company knelt down and thanked God for what had occurred. That afternoon she walked half a mile to church for the purpose of praying, at the end of which she was not in the least fatigued. The incident excited the whole county, and hundreds have been calling on her all of whom she assures that her cure has come from God.

THE FRUITFUL GARDEN.

Important suggestions for his successful management. From Powell's Vegetables for the Year.

"Proceed with the sowing and storing of the remaining crops. Letts should be placed closely in a narrow trench eight inches deep and covered when the weather gets quite cold. Cabbage may be planted closely in a furrow, but a much simpler plan is to set them, heads downward, where water will not lie and cover with leaves or straw, gradually according as the weather gets colder. Scatter some brush over the whole to keep the straw in place. There are various ways of treating celery, but the usual method is to earth it up where it grows nearly to the top and to cover with straw or litter on the approach of severe weather. It is very important that all winter vegetables should be covered gradually as we often have spells of warm weather quite late in the season when a close heavy covering would be certain to rot the plants. Pits out-doors should be ventilated by means of a tile or a tuft of straw projecting above the earth covering.

The early varieties of cabbage now in September will now be ready to plant out. They require much more fertilizer than late cabbage as, we repeat, most early crops do. Some people plant them on the sides of furrows sloping northward and toward the north wind, so that they may be assumed the point is of no importance. It is well to plant them rather closely as they are often badly damaged by an open winter. They should also be planted deeply as otherwise the frost would split the plants, so that it may be assumed would be benefited by a slight protection with straw or boughs, but it usually comes out well enough in spring without any. Seed onions should be protected, but the seed ones provided they were completely covered with earth at planting time. Bean poles should be removed and the garden cleared of rubbish of all kinds before winter sets in. Parsnips and salsify are quite hardy, but nevertheless they should be lifted and stored out-doors. When lifted they will spoil if not covered, as a protection against frost, or rather the sudden changes of temperature caused thereby.

KEEPING APPLES OUT DOORS. From the Country Gentleman. Where there is a large supply of winter apples, and a poor market, they may be kept out of doors through winter in the following manner: Seek a dry piece of ground, or where there is a perfect drainage in the wettest weather, make the surface perfectly smooth, and spread several inches of chaff over it, back with chaff and straw, and just before freezing up, lay just enough earth to hold the covering. A few holes are to be made along the top for ventilation. There is danger in having too much covering; we have seen apples completely rotted by it. They must be kept cool.
