tany Educational Topics Intelligently Touched upon—ticorge Alfred Townsond, and life Spite and Misinformation,

Thursday Afternoon.—After several pieces of music had been given, Prof. Coughlin was introduced and lectured on the duty of directors and patrons to the public schools. The strongest point on the school system is the fact of individual taxation. The schools belong to the people, not to directors or teachers. The safety of the country does not depend on walled cities or ranks of bayonets, but in the schools, where children are educated to know and appreciate the rights and liberties that belong to free citisens, and pursue those paths that lead to wealth and happiness. An important duty of directors is to see that su table school houses are provided for the children so arranged and furnished that no injury can result to the health of those who attend them. Good teachers must be provided them. Good teachers must be provided and well paid. School visitation by diand well paid. School visitation by directors is also an important duty, as it encourages both teachers and pupils. Prof. Coughlir concluded his essay by giving a humorous description of the old fashioned school houses and schools.

Prof. N. C. Scheaffer took the stand and said he appeared there to make an appeal in behalf of his own sex. He claimed that they had as good a right to be able to distinguish colors as their more fortunate sisters. Yet statistics show that while a very large proportion of men are entirely or partially color blind, very few women are so. And yet it is most important that men should have a perfect knowledge of color. Railroad engineers and conductors, officers of sea going vessels and many others, do all their signalling by means of colored flags and by means of colored flags and lamps. How important, then, for the public safety is it that the officers in charge of cars or ships should be able to perfectly distinguish colors. The reason that men are so defective in a knowledge of colors is that they never study them; their dress is generally plain white and black; while on the other hand the women dress in many colors, and are always studying color. By giving boys proper instruction they may become as accurate in distin-guishing colors as the girls. His method is first to use "Froebel's first gift," rubber balls covered with different colored sephyrs ; second, color charts ; third, colored geometrical forms ; fourth, colored crayons; fifth, analine dyes; sixth, pig-ments. Prof. Shaub said it was not neoessary to give more than a five minute's lesson once or twice a week for a few months to establish a fair knowledge of color in those who are color blind. He urged teachers to take an interest in this SCIENTIFIC TEMPERANCE.

Rev. Satchell, of the Duke street M. E. church, delivered a lecture on "Scientific Temperance" in the schools. There are Pennsylvania 22,000 teachers and over 1,000,000 pupils. The magnitude of the figures show how important the school system is, and how necessary it is that acything affecting the schools should be gravely considered. There can be nothing moral aspect of the schools, so as to fit the scholars to become useful men and women. We will find that when they enter upon life truth will be antagonized by falsehood, purity by impurity, tem-perance by intemperance. And it will be admitted that up evil in the path of the young is of greater magnitude than in temperance. He believed in temperance work, as it has been carried on in this and other communities, but he confessed he had but little faith that it would do any great good. A better plan is to introduc into the schools text books containing descriptions of the relation of alcohol with the human system. He claimed that the use of alcohol quickened the action of the heart, thus giving it much more work to do than it would otherwise have. Its nction on the stomach is to prevent diges-tion. Its action on the brain is to produce apoplexy, epilopsy, paralysis and other Its action on the mind is to lower its moral tone; it invariably induces falsehood and other criminal practices. Rev. Satchell besought direc tors to introduce and teachers to make good use of text books such as had been Suggested. Music. Superintendent McAllister was intro-duced. After congratulating the institute on its numbers and the ability of workers, he said it was undoubtedly a fact that no other subject was of so great importance as education. He was to day to speak by invitation on the "new education." He did not intend to speak of novelties, but of some principles that have been long known but are not recognized in the school room as much as they ought to be. Our education, so called, dates from the renaissance of the middle ages, when the old Greek and Roman culture which had been lost for centuries, was revived. The speaker paid high complement to the old school masters of past centuries, and to Bacon Commenius, Locke and Pestalozzi, whose methods of instruction brought man back to nature. There are three periods in the growth of mind : First in infancy, the period of sensibility; the second, the period of childhood, when the perceptive faculties come into play; and third, youth, or the conceptive period. All education must begin with the training of the senses; hence the kindergarden is the best and most philosophic method of educating the very young. When the perceptive facul-ties of the child begin to develop, it must be taught by things. Arithmetic ought not to be taught by figures which represent things, but by the things themselves. All education ought to begin it observation, and the goal should be com prehension. Another principle of the new system is that education consists in the training of the whole being. The child must learn to do by doing. Physical education was another matter advocated by the speaker. The real end of all educa-tion is right living. The speaker called the attention of directors to the importance of a proper course of instruction in the schools. Wanted them to recognize the importance of the teachers and to give them a larger share in the selection of the course of study.

The evening entertainment was a lecture by George Alfred Townsend, the "Gath" of the newspapers. He entitled his lecture "Thomas the Doubter," and our Thomas, who occupied a back seat in the gallery, has no doubt at all that the lecture was the poorest and least interesting of the course. Gath undertook to review the lives of the presidents from Washington to Buchanan, and did'nt say a good word about any Democratic president. Jefferson was an unreliable visionary and a traducer of Washington; Madison was only a tool of Jefferson, and followed him much the same as a dog follows its master; Monroe was of no account, and finally fled the state of Virginia to escape arrest for debt; Jackson was the author of the spoils system; Van Buren was probably the son of AaronBurr, and that made him something better than he would have been had he been the son of his father, who was only a country tavern keeper; Polk and Pierce were hardly worth talking about, and Buchanan was "the most successful fallure of the age." The defeated candidates, however, Burr, Clinton, Calhoun, Webster, Clay and Biatue, were a very nice lot, and Gath gave them the benefit of a "poem." that GATH'S GAS. Bialue, were a very nice lot, and Gath gave them the benefit of a "poem," that was so sad in sentiment and delivered in such sepulchral tones that it had the effect of almost emptying the house before the recitation closed. Fortunately, nearly all good Jeffersonian Democrate were in the grand torchlight parade in honor of the triumph of Cleveland and honest government, while the great apostles of Democracy were being slandered; otherwise this modern Gollath of gas might have been hissed for his splentile and snobbish utterances. No one thought of applauding him.

Friday Morning.—The institute opened with music, after which Rev. Thompson of St. Paul's M. E. church, this city, read the XO Pasims and offered prayer, after which the long meter doxology was sung. Supt. Brecht regretted to notice that many teachers absented themselves from the seasions of the institute, after giving their names to the roll-keepers. He animadverted on such conduct and hoped it would not be repeated.

Prof. McCaskey again called attention to the objects on exhibition under the microscopes on the second floor of the building.

LECTURE ON LITERA Prof. Westlake took the floor and spoke of the methods of teaching literature in the public schools. He hoped the time would soon come when every school district would have a library of good books. Another difficulty is that teachers who may be very we'l fitted for teaching arithmetic or geography, may be but poorly may be very we'l fitted for teaching arithmetic or geography, may be but poorly fitted to teach literature. The teacher should not only be well informed of literary matters, but they should possess that magnetism which will draw their pupils to them; they should also be good readers. One method of teaching is the birthday method—entertainments in which readings and recitations from the writings of distinguished authors on their birthdays. Another is the Pittaburg method, where instead of confining the reading to the birthday, they have stated times, say once a month, for reading each author. The oral method is the only one practicable for teaching very young pupils. These should be supplemented by interesting stories, by he same author, where this the same author, where this is practi-cable. These stories should be in-structive, never silly. Prof. Westlake used the oral method in his own classes at the normal school. The use of the text-book was another method he had used with advantage. He regarded the memorizing of good language to be a valuable exercise. It is also of great value to know something of the lives of the men who have given us the advantage of great thoughts. Biography is to the study of literature what the guide book is to the traveler—it tells him what there is to see and how to see it. Teachers should use their best efforts to raise a library for their chools; this may be done partly by themselves, partly by the pupils, by giving literary entertainments and by other methods.

He afterwards gave an explanation of how he tested the knowledge of the children in the object lessons given them. He closed with advice to teachers to keep their health, to not grow old, to not take too much responsibility; love your work and then you will be able to love your chil-

MATHEMETICAL GEOGRAPHY. Prof Appar continued his discourse or mathematical geography, prefacing his re-marks by stating that the Lancaster county teachers institute was the largest and best school he had ever attended, and he thanked the teachers for the close at-tention given him. His lesson descriptive of the earth's real motion and the sun's apparent motion through the heavens during the year was illustrated by blackboard

SCHOOL ROOM EXPERIMENTS. Dr. Groff, of Lewisburg. Pa., lectured on easy experiments in the school. He made it a point to send the boys and girls of his school home with question. In this manner he sent them home thinking, and set their parents to thinking, with the result of soon making them your friends. He also made it a point to These may be made without any apparatus other than a few simple articles always to be found about the school house or children's home. He made a number of interesting experiments.

BRANDY.

Brandy as a Medicine.

The following article was voluntarily sent to Mr. H. E. SLAYMAKER. Agent for REIGART'S OLD WINE STOKE, by a prominent practicing physician of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice. It is commended to the attention of those afflicted with Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE This now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was nover intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of the destructive diseases which sweeps way their annual thousands of yietims. With a purely philanthropic motive, we present to the lavorable notice of Invalids—espectally those afflicted with that miserable disease, Dypapepsia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than BRANDY.

The aged, with feeble appetite, and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly, A Sovereign Remedy

For all their ills and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is Reigart's Old Brandy, MARKE. This brandy has stood the test for years, and has never falled, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preference over all other Brandles—no matter with how many law-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifics, would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case or cases, in proof of the curative power of

Reigart's Old Brandy

In cases of Dyspepsia we can summon numbers of witnesses—one case in particular we will cite:

A hard working farmer had been afflicted with an exhausting Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind of food; he had sour cructations constantly—no specific—in fact, he was obliged to restrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and as a beverage he used McGrann's Boot Beer. He is a Methodist, and then, as now, preached at times, and in his discourses often declaimed earnestly against all kinds of strong drink. When advised to try Reigart's Old Brandy

In his case, he looked up with astonishment; but after hearing of his wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near sequalntances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was all taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which he choose to cat. He still keeps it and uses a little occasionally; and since he has this medicine, he has been of very little pecuniary benefit to the doctor.—A Practicing Physician.

DARKER'S TONIO.

Where the Fire is Out.

Magio No More, a Mystery-Se From Across the World,

sli included the reinvigoration of the intiple of itia."

In this the Eastern sage merely opposed the practice of the best physicians of to day. What life itself is, nobody Enew them—nobody Enews now. But we have learned something of the reasons why the mysterious life rises and fails. Provided the great organs of the body are not irreparably destroyed, medical science can always relieve, and often saye. Yet no reputable playsician now adheres is the barbarous and stupid processes of depiction, such as bleeding, by which it was altempted to cure disease by reducing the petion's ability to resist it. Nowadays we do not tear down the fort to help the garrison-we strengthen it. In this intelligent and beneficent work, it is conceied that PARES. EA'S TONIC leads all other modelines. Is an invigorant it acts immediately and powerfully upon the circulation and the organs of digestion, thus giving Nature the assistance she calls for. It follows that all allments of the stomach, kidneys and liver are at once relieved or cured. No other preparation embodies the same qualities or produces similar results. It is delicious to use, and the beat known anti-intexcent. Price, 50c. and Elisson & Co., New York.
