Dr. Burchard's Explanation.

Dr. Burchard is evidently a philos pher. He declares that the result of the tion must be cheerfully accepted as the voice of God, since it is the voice of the people. The reverend gentleman is prepared to practice what he preaches a calm submission to the Lord's will. It is a happy frame of mind to be able to command. Perhaps Dr. Burchard is aided in reaching it by the notoriety he has received. There are a good many people who love to be talked about ; and the spokesman of the delegation of clergymen who were marshaled to help to elect Blaine, would naturally be one of that kind. There was a youth once who fired the Ephesian dome to have may feel something of his satis faction in getting to be a historical character as the slayer of Blaine. No doubt he thinks he did a good thing, instead of a bad one, in trying to elect Blaine ; and he can ac cept with a clear conscience the celebrity he attains by reason of the failure of his good intention. If he could give some of his contentment at the issue of his essay to Blaine himself, it would be well for the digestion of that demoralized gentleman. But the doctor must do better than he has done in the way of explanation of his speech to get himself forgiven by his candidate. He explains that he does not have any antipathy to Romanists, but only to the Democracy who use the Romanists. Whether he objects to rum, or to the consumption of it by the De mocracy, and to rebellion, or to the Democracy, as practisers of it, he does not clearly say, but a fair inference would be that as he does not hate Ro manists, neither did he intend to say that he hated rum and rebellion. It would seem from the obscurity of Dr Burchard's explanation that he is one of those gifted gentlemen whose words conceal their ideas. He did not mean to denounce rum, Romanism and rebel lion in bailing Blaine as the country's deliverer from them ; no leaves us in delightful uncertainty whether he likes them all taken sep arately and only objects to a quadruple alliance with the Democracy. or whether it is Romanism only that he can abide. Our experience with temperance men teaches us to have mis givings of their practical hatred of rum ; and their performances give us a vivid idea that they are first class hands at rebellion against the laws and institu the poolselling. tions of the country. Upon the whole we are convinced that in view of the well known tendency of the Barchards of the world to mean something a good deal different from what they say, the address of the preachers to Mr. Blaine was too seriously taken.

Analyzing the Figures.

Mr. Blaine's plurality in Pennsylva nia is $1.019, and his majority over all presidential opponents is 48 280. It seems that the Democrats polled 15 643 votes less for Cleveland than for Hancock, while the Republicans cast 29 100 6,000 applications. more for Biaine than for Garfield. The

in a state assured to them at the begin- SULLIVAN MAY FIGHT. ning. This was Mr. Blaine's particular and peculiar stronghold ; and his canvass was pitched in a key to solidify and summon every energy of his party here to his aid ; of Independents opposed to him there was a bare handful in Pennsylvania. Under all the circumstances the Democracy of Pennsylvania did not do well; they could not well have done worse, but it is not fair to keep out of view the special disadvantages under which they labored.

THE next most momentous question after the decision of the presidential issue has now received judicial settlement and that is that Mr. John L. Sullivan and Mr. Alf. Greenfield may spar tonight in Madison Square Garden, New York. It will be remembered that Messrs. Sullivan and Greenfield were his name in history, and Dr. Burchard arrested on Saturday on the information and belief that they contemplated a breach of the peace. At the hearing on Monday Justice Barrett decided that the illegality of the exhibition could not be determined in advance where the contestants affirm that the combat is to be a frendly one. But the line of demarcation between a slugging match and a friendly bout is so fine that the judge very wisely left it to the discretion of the police authorities who will be present on the occasion. In the testimony taken at the hearing, Boston's pet, when asked if he would try to hit Greenfield, replied that he would try to "score points" This classical Bostonese language is understood to mean that he would bang the physiognomy of his opponent when ever and wherever he could. If the law is carried out, there will be little interest in the exhibition for the spectators. They go to see slugging, as good sparrers are by no means as rare as black swans, and as the contestants are practically the judges of the harmfulness of the contest, those who desire to see heavy hitting will not be disappointed .

YESTERDAY was resurrection day for the high hat in this city. POSTMASTER MARSHALL ran up the black flag yesterday. He knows well enough there's a storm brewing.

TREASURER WEEKS, of the Republican national committee, says there is a chance yet for Blaine-a chance to see Cleveland insugurated.

DR. BURCHARD has found a running mate in Rev. Justin D. Fulton, of Brooklyn. Is the race of asinialty it is hard to prodict which will come out second best. At the present time, however, Burchard leads in

SHERIFF CLEVELAND don't do business by halves ; he has scooped in the whole Republican party by reason of its general cussedness. The fun will commence next spring when he gets among the office holders and begins to "turn the rascals out."

Tax United States used to be considered the home of place hunters, but the flag must now be sent to France. For a vacant situation in one of the Parisian banks-a place worth about $250 a yearthere have been, it is said, no fewer than the end of an hour he sent for Richard K. THE elopement craze has invaded a new regim-that of grandmothers. It might be supposed that a dame who had reached that dignified period of life would have a buckler against which the arrows of Cupid would fall harmless ; but Mrs. Daniel Hopkins, of Sardinia, Erie county, New York, though rejoicing in grandchildren, pined and was exceeding sorrowful be cause she had not a young husband. Her pensive eyes fell longingly upon George Wiley, her husband's farm hand, a youth of 23, and she eloped with him on Satur day. So runs the world away. THINGS must be getting a little serious when the editor of the Examiner, and congressman elect of Lancaster county, deems it necessary to tell how he voted and to explain his Republicanism. Mayhap the cloud that took its origin from the honest hanling down of the Republican flag after Republican defeat, when dishonest organs mendacionsly floated it to the breeze, has become larger than a satisfied with the decision. man's hand. But even from a pagan standpoint, honesty is the best policy, and the journal that does not fear to tell the truth, even when it is disagreeable to its readers, obtains a credit for manly consistency that needs no explanation or apology among intalligent men.

have never been more deer hounds in this region than there are this fall, nor more deer killed by chasing them with dogs. THE GLOVE CONTEST NANUTIONED.

Justice marrell, of the New York Supres Court, Leaves the Matter in the Bands of the Police

The prize-fighters, Sullivan and Greenneld, appeared before Justice Barrett in Tuesday, November the Fourth, the supreme court, New York, Monday afternoon, and their counsel, Colonel Spencer, turned on his eloquence. After ten or fifteen minutes he was invited by Those marked thus " are re-elected ; fustice Barrett to come to the point Assistant District Attorney Gove wanted to introduce testimony as to the nature of the proposed contest. To this and nearly everything else that Mr. Gove said or did

Colonel Spencer objected. "There is no evidence," he said, "that this contest is to be anything but an exhibition of the manly art of self-defense. just as there might be an exhibition of skill in fercing in every civilized country on the globe. Even in Vermont they permit sparring exhibitions."

There was a sensation when Sullivan was called to the witness stand. The crowd tumbled over one another falling back to make a passage for him. He sat sullenly down inside the rail among the reporters, After the usual preliminary questions Mr. Gove asked :

" Have you made any arrangement as to the receipts at this entertainment ?

"Yes. I was to receive 65 per cent. of Eph Myers, B the receipts and the other 35 per cent, was to go to the other parties," Mr. Sulli-van growled out. "The agreement was not in writing. There has never been Sstockieger anything written to my knowledge. There was to be no referee," Mr.Sullivan continued, in answer to a question from Mr. Gove. "The men were to use ordinary soft boxing gloves, stuffed with hair. "Do you intend to knock out Mr. Greenfield ? "1 intend to get more points than he does, if I can.' What do you mean by points ?" "Hitting and then getting away, the same as in fencing." "Shall you hit Mr. Greenfield hard ?" "If he hits me hard I shall hit him back the same way." " Do you remember a similar contest with Tug Wilson ?" "That was the little fellow that fell down so many times," said Mr. Sullivan, with a grim approach to a smile.

" Do you remember the contest with Laffin and his condition after it ?" " I do." "Was his face bloody when the sparring was over ?" Not that I remember of."

" Was he confined to his bed from his injuries ?"

Not that I know of ; I heard he was on the street next day." Mr. Greenfield was called. He came awkwardly forward, evidently laboring under bashfulness. When he took the witness chair he made a minute examinaion of the crown of his hat and then executed feats in whirling it which eclipsed all his former efforts. He stated that he kept a beer house in England. "Shall you bit Mr. Sullivan hard ?" asked Mr. Gove. "Why, sir, I doan't know, sir, what you would call 'ard, you know. I shall 'it 'ir. no 'arder than I do fifty gentlemen I gives lessons to at 'ome." "Did you ever see a man's face bloody after a contest similar to that you have arranged with Mr. Sullivan ?"

"Why, I 'ave seen gentlemen in my boxing school a goin' around with their faces bloody after they 'ad been a-bustin' of one another's noses All friendly and pleasant like, you know, and no 'arm done. Mr. Sheedy was called and testified in clear and strong terms to the purely lamb-like and gentle nature of the proposed contest. Justice Barrett then appeared and the testimony was read to him. He took it and Lawyers Gove and Spencer to his private room, announcing that he would give his decision in writing. At

Blaine to Be Serenaded.

The Augusta, Me., Republicans, as manifestation of their confidence in and respect for Blaine, will tender him a ser-

anade at his residence Tuesday evening

There will be no organized procession but a general gathering of citizens. The statement which has been published to the effect that Mr. Blaine would leave for Washington about the middle of the pres-

ont week, and that he had leased a house on Farragut square, is incorrect. Mr. Blaine has not rented a house at the national capital, nor has he fixed any time for his eparture from Augusta. He will bowever

Fired Bluself Off. At the weekly meeting of the Baptist Pastor's association, Thursday morning, Rev. Dr. Justin D. Fulton, of Brooklyn, in the course of an essay "Oa a New Opportunity," indulged in severe animadversions upon the Roman Catholie body, which created no little sensation Among other declarations was one to the effect that "all ignorant people became Roman Catholics." He also alluded to the "rum, Romanism and rebelliou address of Rev. Dr. Burchard to Mr. Blaine, and thanked his reverend brother for the moral courage he had displayed on that occasion. He Mr. Blaine of being also accused league with the Roman Catholics of this city," and of "corresponding with Cardi-nal McCloskey, who he said, had pledged to the Republican candidate the Catholic vote of this city." At the con clusion of this extraordinary essay the moderator said he did not agree with any of the many statements of Rev. Dr. Fultor, and he hoped the conference would not disperse without repudiating them. He would ask the doctor to with draw those statements unless he could support them with sufficient proofs. Thereupon the doctor sprang to his feet and shouted, "I'll give you the proofs." Rev. Dr. Hiscox took the floor and said he believed the Republican leaders were corrupt. and that he coincided with Dr. Fulton's statement. On the other hand, Dr. Sheldon, of Troy, could not agree with any part of the essay, and that Mr. Burchard's address at the Blaine meeting place. Rev. Dr. Morse aud Rev. Dr. Hutchings made similar addresses. Finally, Dr. Fulton read a number of newspaper statements in support of his essay. The moderator, however, intimated to him that his statements proved nothing, and thereupon the conference adjourned, ----

From the testimony on the part of the commonwealth it appeared that St. Michael's society of this city celebrated their tenth auniversary with a basquet on the third floor of the postoffloe building on the night of November society arrived The in front of the building ...bout 9 o'clock with band of music The music attracted a crowd and for a time access to the postoffice was almost impossible. Mr. Keller had business at the postoffice and in his effort to get into the building was surrounded by a crowd. He observed Young in front of him p etending to keep the crowd back, while Fisher was behind him. Amoment after wards he missed his pocketbook containing $200. The robbery was reported at the station house and Officer Barnholt started out in search of the thieves. At the Schifler house he saw the men now on trial, and in order to properly shadow them, went home, removed his policeman's suit and put on citizen's lothes. The officer again saw the men at the railroad depot and arrested them, with the assistance of other officers after they had boarded a train bound for Harrisburg. Weish, one of the accused, got on the train between two baggage cars. When Barnholt told Welsh he wanted him Welsh was very reluctant in getting off the train, but he evidently got off and while doing so dropped five ten dollar notes which were found a few hours afterwards. The prisoners were taken to the station house and searched. Young resisted but was overpowered and in his coat pocket about $70 were found. Various sums of money were taken from the pockets of the prisonof the accused corresponded with that stolen from Mr. Keller. Detectives Miller and Wolf, of Philadelphia, identified three of the accused-Ned Tulley, Paddy O'Niel and Josh Mulley,-residents of Philadelphia. They had known them under those names for several years. They were not allowed to testify, to the reputation they have in Philadelphia. On tria!

in sufficient quantity to cause her death. A close watch was kept on the girl after the attempt on her life ; it was not relaxed until Saturday, when Mrs. Brown went to Beaver Falls, to visit a married daughter. The mother failing to find Priscilla when she returned home on Saturday evening, Miss Annie, an elder sister, started out on a search for her, and at a late hour discovered her in the company of Gross and compelied her to go home. She was very angry at this and went into hysterics. When a physician had brought hor to, she declared that she oved Gross and would meet him in spite of all her relatives could do. Toward midnight she became calmer and expressed contrition for her conduct. Sunday mornng when the family arose she appeared in unusually good spirits and went to water the flowers while her sister prepared breakfast. When the meal was ready Miss Brown called for the sister in vain, and a few minutes later found pretty, wilful Prisilla hanging by a cord to a rafter in the barn. She had tied her feet together with a haudkerchief, mounted a chair, fastened the cord and then kicked the chair from under her.

total vote of the state Was 899,328 against 847,739 in 1880-an increase of littleover 6 per cent. a smaller per centage than the usual quadrennial increase. This phase of the figures is observable the country over. It may have been in a measure due to the miserably bad weather of election day ; partly to politi' cal indifference and a degree of dissatisfaction on both sides ; and, again, it is not probable that there was the same increase of voting population from 1880 to 1884 as during the four years preceding. It will be seen that there was a larger vote for congressman at-large on both sides than for president. "Gen." Osborne had 2,450 more votes than Blaine, and Gen. Davis had 8 257 more than Cleveland. In part this was the result of the Democratic candidate's personal strength and of his opponent's weakness ; there were likely a few who voted for congressman-at-large and not for president, because of the larger local interest in some places in the county ticket; but the difference is more rationally explained by the circumstance of the Prohibition candidate for president receiving 5 266 more votes than the nominee of that party for congress at large, while in the Greenback Labor party the disparity between the presi dential and congressional candidates was 7,318. It is obvious that a considerable number who voted with the side parties on the main issue followed their old party predilections for congressman-at-large.

The result in Pennsylvania was certainly as much of a surprise for the Republicans as it was a disappointment to the Democrats. While few of the last named hoped for anything better than a 20,000 to 30,007 Blaine plurality, the most sanguine Republicans did not look for more than 40 000. The high excess of these figures is not easily explained. The causes which wrested from the Democracy staunch counties like Westmoreland, Luzerne and Schuylkill, lie below the surface. These special instances prove that the defection represented and influenced by such journals as the Irish World was more radical than it had been gauged to be.

The general increase of Republican majorities and the almost universal abatement of the majorities in Demo cratic counties was in large measure owing to the very general abandonment of Rennsylvania by those in charge of the national cunvass at the outset

Very likely this was a wise policy looking to the more decisive points of the battle, but the organization in the state and its various branches, felt it to be their duty to keep up the fight as beat they could, and to compel the vigilance of the enemy here at home. The result -----PERSUNAL.

---A DEEB IN A POND.

On Friday last a large buck, followed by three hounds, came from the hills on the east of Morrowville, Pa., and entered the village dashing down the principal street and jumped into Trout creek, below Stokes' saw mill. A score of men with guns were soon thronging the street in pursuit of the deer. A woman was washing clothes in the creek and she headed the deer off, and it swam up the creek and climbed out on the opposite shore and started back for the mountain before any of its pursuers had fired a shot at it. On its way for the woods a man with a gun confronted it and fired at it. The shot had no effect, except to turn the deer in still another direction. It ran through the back yards of half a dozen houses and made for Stokes' mill pond, a large, deep body of water a mile up the creek. Every resident of the place was now aroused, and the poor doer was forced to run the gauntlet between irregular rows of men with guns. It escaped every shot until it jumped a fence into James Morton's garden, when a shot from Morton struck it in one foreshoulder and it fell to the ground. It was quickly on its feet again

Two boys were fishing in the pond, sitting in a boat near the bulkhead of the dam. When the deer plunged into the pond the boys began to halloo at it to chase it back. kept on up the pond and the boys tried to row ahead of it, but could not. The deer, in spite of its wounded leg, swam to the upper end went ashore. It struck out once more for the woods, when it was again headed off by two new men in the chase. The deer reentered the water. The boys now rowed up to it and one of them struck at it with one of the cars. The other boy grabbed the buck by one of its antlers and the next instant was floundering in the pond. His companion turned his attentio to rescuing the boy in the water and the deer swam aimlessly about.

All sides of the pond were now lined with excited men, women and children, shouting and hallooing and shooting indiscriminately at the unfortunate animal. Finally the hounds that had run the deer in from the woods plunged in the pond and swam out to the deer. A fight between and swam out to the deer. A fight between them and the buck then ensued. Then an old hunter jumped into a boat and rowing out sent a rife ball through the deer's head and towed the prize ashore. There is a striot law sgainst killing deer run by hounds in this state, but there

Nearly Five Hundred Excardionists From

Lanoaster-The pign Hat Division The Democracy of Harrisburg cele brated the victory of honest government last evening with a monster parade. A. Penn Lusk was chief marshal of the prosession, which was composed of funr divisions and, including the men in wagons and on horseback, who were legion in number, there were estimated to be 6,000 persons in line. Many houses on the route of the parade were illuminated and decorated, notably the Patriot building ; but the throng on the street was no nearly so great nor the popular enthusiasm so striking as on similar occasions in this city. It was a little after eight when the head of the procession moved, and about quarter of eleven o'clock when the tramp was finished. The route was painfully long, and seemed to reach every corner of the town, but the divisions held well together to the end. The largest single body of men in line was the delegation from Laucaster, who mustered over 400 men. They had assembled at the committee rooms in this city at 4 p. m., two-thirds of them uni-formed with high black hats, old gold badges and light canes. After a short street parade, headed by the City band, they marched to the salitand they marched to the railroad station and a special train carried them to Harrisburg by 5:45 p. m. They marched from the station to Market square, where ranks were broken and reformed at 7:15 p. m., Accompanying the larger body, who were marshaled as "The Central club," was a company of fity one in command of Richard A. Bair, who marched under the banner of "The Printers of Lancaster" wearing a pink badge with a rooster garbed in fashionable fall attire. The two associations commanded much attention and applause.

Alderman W. J. Fordney was marshal of the men from Landster, and his aids were Robt. Clark. John F. Deichler, Wiliam H. Reilly, R. M. Reilly and E. H. Flinn.

The unexpectedly large number who went from this city and who adopted the uniform suggested, caused a corner in high hats yesterday, and the rush upon the hatters for tiles of modern and ancient the natters for thes of modern and ancient pattern was unprecedented. The variety of styles exhibited in the club added rather than detracted from the interest attaching to it. The Buchanan banner, faded but venerable, which had been borne in the great local demonstrations of 1556 mas a conclusion in modern and the 1866, was a ourlosity in its way, and there were men in line-and hats-who had marched under its folds so long ago. The excursionists returning on special train reached Lancaster about 1 a. m. Near the close of the parade the line passed the executive mansion and was reviewed by Governor Pattlson and Secretary Steuger. The Putriot says of the Lancaster dele.

gation : "They were some of Lancaster's best people and were an exceedingly fine body of men, dressed in dark clothes, black high silk hats and wearing handsome badges, and preceded by the City band of Several well-known young Republicans this city accompanied the excursionists Harrisburg and marched over the entire route with the Central club. They occu-pied front positions in the line, and seemed to enjoy the fun as much as their Demo-oratic friends.

GRAND JURY RETURN.

Irue Bills-John Wheeler, felonious entry; David Warfel, horse stealing and aroony; Wm. Orr, larceny; Thomas Hughes, larceny. Ignered Bills-Pearl Ruby, alias Mary ayder, larceny ; Gotleib Kirchenderfer, eter Desber, Frederick Dietrick, tramp, with county for costs. Monday Evening.-The trial of Charles

Fisher et al for robbing H. K. Keller was resumed. There was no defense offered as to Taylor, Fisher and Welsh. Young, it was shown, was a produce dealer in Philadelphia and a dozen witnesses from that city testified that his reputation for honesty was good. The balance of the vening session was taken up in the argument of the case by counsel. Tuesday Morning.— The jury was charged in the robbery cases again Taylor and others. They returned a verdict of guilty as to all four defendants and recommended Young to the mercy of the court. A motion was made in arrest of judgment but subsequently withdrawn as to all the defendants except Young. Fisher, Welsh and Taylor were each sentenced to pay a fine of $100, pay the costs and undergo an imprisonment in the Eastern penitentiary for 18 months. Young' counsel will file reasons for a new trial. John Comfort was indicted for the larceny of an undershirt and pair of socks. The goods were stolen from in front of the store of Astrich & Bros., on October 16, and were found in the possession of the acoused by Officer Ritchey. There was no defense offered and the jury rendered a verdict of guilty. He was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment of six months. William Orr, Thomas Hughes and John William Orr, Thomas Hughes and John Browning were charged with the larceny of $3.50, the property of Christian Brown-miller. The prosecutor is employed as a hostler at Taylor's hotel, McCall's Ferry, and slept in the barn. On the uight of August 31, the accused were given permision to sleep in the barn, and after they left the next morning Brownmiller missed $2 50. Mr. Taylor started after the defendants and arrested them in York county. They appeared to know what he was after, said they had spent 75 cents of the money and claimed that they found the money in the hay loft. Jury out. David Warfel was put upon trial for horse stealing and larceny. The facts as developed by the commonwealth's witnesses were as follows : On the night of October 27, a sorrel mare and a brid.e were stolen from the stable of John A. Galbraith of Colerain township. The mare was taken from the stable to the public road, through the cattle yard in the rear of the barn, which is not in view of the house. The theft was reported to the society for the detaction of horse thieves, of which Mr. Galbraith is a member, and they sent riders to look for the stolen they sent riders to look for the stolen mare. The mare was recovored the morn-ing after the theft, having been abandoned on the road. Suspision pointed to the accused as the thief, and he was charged with the theft. At first he denied but finally admitted that he was the guilty He went with his scousers to his house and brought a bridle from an upstairs room. This bridle was identified as the property of Mr. Galbraith. The defence was that on the night of
