One of the distinguishing features of Bryn Mawr is to be its college for the higher education of women, situated in the midst of thirty two acres of choice land, and connected with which are the cottages already built and others yet to be built for the pleasant accommodation of the faculty and any overflow of students. Quick This Bryn Mawr college was founded by the late Joseph W. Taylor, M. D., a prom-inent member of the Society of Friends, of Burlington, N. J. He bought the land and began the erection of the buildings in 1879. Dying in 1880 he left an endowment of $560,000 for the continuance of the work he had begun. The buildings now in course of construc-tion, and to be completed ready for use in June next, comprise the college proper 130 feet long and three stories high, with rooms for chemical, biological and botan-ical laboratories, an assembly room, a library and reading room and recitation rooms. A second building contains the dormitories, with study rooms connected with the bed-chambers of the students. A third building, eight feet by seventy-four, is intended for a gymnasium, with all the most perfect appliances, offices, bath rooms, a dressing and an examination room. The laundry occupies a fourth building. The trustees of this college, under the will of its founder, are to be members of the Society of Friends. store).

The Majority in the Senate. The securing of the Illinois Legislature by the Democrats, and the consequent election of a Democrat to succeed General Logan in the Senate, will cause the Senate, after the 4th of March, to stand exactly as it does now-38 Republicans, 86 Demo-orats, and Mahone and Riddleberger. Mahone and Riddleberger, if so disposed, Mahone and Riddieberger, in so disputed, would have it in their power to make the Sonate a tie, and thus give the casting vote to Vice-President Hendricks. But General Mahone has burned his bridges, and there is no prospect of his acting with the Democrats, and probably not much more prospect of Riddleberger going over to them. The Republicaus may therefore to them. The Republicans may therefore with good reason calculate upon a good working majority in the Senate for two years to some, whether they can for the two succeeding years or not. The control of the Senate for the last two years of Mr.

Cleveland's term may depend upon the wisdom of his policy in administering the government and the character of his ap-pointees.
