SALT RHEUM.

And Every Species of Itching and Burning Diseases Posi-tively Oured.

CZEMA, or Salt Rheum, with its agonizing itching and burding, instantly relieved by a warm bath with Curicura. Soar, and a single application of CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure. This repeated daily, with two or three doses of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the New Blood Purifier, to keep the blood cool, the perspiration pure and unirritating, the bowels open, the liver and kidneys active, will speedly cure Ecsema, Tetter, Ringworm, Psorisais, Lichen Fruritus, Scalled Head, Dandruff, and every species of Itching, Scaly, and Pimply Humors of the Scalp and Skin, when the best physicians and all known remedies fail.

Will McDonald, 2543 Dearborn St., Chicago, gratefully acknowledges a cure of Salt Kheum on head, neck, face, arms and legs for soven-teen years; not able to walk except on hands and knees for one year; not able to help himself for eight years; tried hundreds of remedles; doctors pronounced his case hopeless; permanently cured by Curicura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Curi usa and Curicura Soar (the great skin cures) externally.

Chas. Houghton, esq., lawyer, 28 State St., Boston, reports a case of Salt Rheum under his observation for ten years, which covered the patient's body and limbs, and to which all known methods of treatment had been applied without benefit, which was completely cured by the Curretral Rumming, leaving a clean and healthy skin.

F. H. Drake, esq., Detroit, Mich., suffered untold tortures from Salt Rheum, which appeared on his hands, head and hace, and nearly destroyed his eyes. After the most careful doctoring and a consultation of physicians failed to relieve him, he used the Curistra Remedies, and was cured, and has remained so to date.

Mr John Thiel, Wilkesbarre, Pa., writes:—

A Correspondent Throws Some Light on the Political Condition of the Negro in the Sinte of Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 19, 1884.—I have been a close observer of events during the great political canvass just ended. I have honestly aimed to farmiliarize myself with all the questions involved, and above all made it a chief point to become acquainted with the inner workings of party organization as existing here in the South. Watching closely the maneuvres of the leaders of both great political parties, to see and satisfy myself as to the truth or untruth, the justice or injustice, of what has been said and written on the subject by Northern speakers and Northern papers, and now while I do not lay claim to any special powers of comprehension or superiority of judgment, I must admit that as far as my knowledge of the conduct of political campaigns goes, we have had one of the most quiet that could possibly have been conducted, where important issues are involved.

My object in volunteering my impress. ortant issues are involved.

My object in volunteering my impressions, is not to gain reputation, but rather to disabuse the minds of those who are not familiar with the South and Southern people, of erroneons impressions, formed after hearing or reading some of the cam paign speeches and articles uttered during the heated contest at the North.

I will state that I propose to deal fairly and sot in a partisan spirit. I shall give fa ts only and not fancy sketches, nor will I give hear say stories, but only such matters as I have learned by observation and intercourse with the populace. It is now about four years that I have been in this state. I came here with some of the this state. I came here with some of the prejudices natural to all Northern men who visit here for the first time, but was soon cured of those prejudices, after becoming acquainted with the people, and to-day look back with surprise that I could fever have been so egregously mis-taken with regard to them. Yet was it not pardonable under the circumstances? Had I not been taught by the press that Southerners were Ku-Klux, assassins and haters of the North and Northerners? Was it not a natural effect of the training of youth? The only difference between some of the Northern party leaders and myself was, that they misrepresented the people here, because it was to their interest to do here, because it was to their interest to do so, while I, misled by their false preaching, acted in ignorance of the true character of that people, until I came to know them better by living among them.

Of all the glaring slanders uttered by that class of men, is the charge of unjust dealing with the negro, of intimidation and coercion at elections and deprivation of any rights enjoyed by the white man. If such things exist I have not been able to discover them even with all the to discover them even with all the pains I have taken during a four year's residence to find an instance which would sustain the charge. If such outrages exist at all, it is not here in Georgia, at least not within a range of country accessible by railroad or mail service from Atlanta. I may perhaps be best able to give clear idea of political affairs in this city, by giving my experience of one election day and let that serve as a truthful picture Sandford's Hadical Current Sale of all that I have lived through since I am here. After this little sketch, I will leave the reader to judge as to "intimidation" > with our colored fellow citizens, that I concluded to wait a few hours until the crowd should thin out. My second attempt to vote once at least if I couldn't "vote early," was also fruitless. Later in the day, rather than forego the pleasure of voting at all, I finally determined to join the procession in single file, by falling in the rear with two colored gentlemen immediately in advance of me gentlemen immediately in advance of me my rear being soon closed by any number of gentlemen of both persuasions, and thus for a long half hour in the rain I moved, inch by inch, with the motley throng, until word reached us "end men" from the front, that the polls were closed but that we could go to the court house and vote there, as the polls would not close there until 6 p. m.; (this was at 3); off to the court house then moved the disappointed freemen of all colors. procession, single file, was joined, extending about 290 feet to the rear and now jammed closely together, colored and white, slowly, very slowly, moved towards the window. It only lacked about twenty minutes of closing time when I had discharged my duty as a loyal citizen of these great United states, by voting for the best NOT AN UNKIND WORD. Now in all this there may be nothing uncommon to the mind of the reader, yet I think I can make it appear that there was (and has been at every election I have attended here) something very uncommon to the mind of some of my Northern friends, when I assure them on the honor of a man who has no selfish end in view, that not one unkind word, no profaulty, no loud and boisterous talking by me during all this time. Colored and white alike appeared for the time being to stand on the most friendly relations with each other, and all seemed equally happy after having exercised the sacred right and duty of voting for their choice,

Will any one give me a parallel case

Will any one give me a parallel case which transpired at any Northern voting place—now who will say that the colored man in Atlanta is restricted in his rights? Who will say in the face of such facts that the colored man is disfranchised in Georgia? I hurl back the charge as a foul slander upon an honorable people. A people who have proven themselves the best friend of the negro, and for the reason that the negro to them is indispensible. A people who do not court the negro only about election time and then ignore him the balance of the time, like our loyal patriots of the North.

patriots of the North. I think it about time that such slanders should cease. Thank God there seems to be a ray of light dawning even now, and I do sincerely believe that sectionalism has received its death blow, never again to be revived. Let us all rejoice and be grateful for a new era of peace and friendship. Let us hope that the last sectional speech ever uttered, was the one delivered at Augusta, Me., on the 18th of November, 1884, and that from henceforth the much maligned Southern people may find their vindication by the almighty force and power of truth :

For truth crushed to earth will rise again. The eternal years of God are hers." And I for one Northerner will, with all reverence say : Amen, so mote it be. 8. J. J.

SULLIVAN'S VISITORS.

The Popular God—Pilgrims to His shrine—Getting His autograph.

From the Boston Reraid.

John L. Sullivan is the biggest man in town. The pilgrimage to the wayside inn just out of the city limits, where he makes his headquarters under a bargain by which it is said, the barroom receipts are divided with him by the landlord, is made by hundreds every day. Sporting men of high and low degree, in wagons and afoot, making their way to the house, and wait patiently, sometimes for nours, until the champion returns from a wait. The lamentable feature of these gatherings of worshippers at the shrine of the slug god is the presence of boys in throngs. Imagine the burning desire of the little rascals to grow up into prize fighters! They have grow up into prize fighters! They have gone into training, every one: of them, as shown by the striding rapid gait with which they walk to the tavern from the nearest street car line. An audacious urchin asked Sullivan what he ate and

"Blood, nothin' but blood." was the

"Blood, nothin' but blood." was the reply. "I drain a boy about your size three times a day."

The anxious inquirer escaped with no delay; but the words of the illustrious man spread among the lads with puglistic aspirations, and they got the further belief somehow that, beef blood from a neighboring slaughter house really composed most of his diet. A consequence is that they go in numbers to the abattoir in question where the butchers provide all the blood called for. The boys take it from a tin cup, while it is yet warm from the slaughtered beasts, and some of them are able to gulp down half a pint without stopping for breath.

Not all of the callers on Sullivan are rude. The story is told in the tavern of a rude. The story is told in the tavern of a girl's morning visit. She sent in her card.

"Show the duffer up," the champion said without looking at the card.

"Tain't no duffer, sir. Anyhow, I think not, 'cause it's a girl."

"What's her sort?"

"Daisy."
"Rise her up."
"But she said she'd wait in the parlor, if you'd be kind enough to see her there."
Sullivan loafed down to the parlor, no more than half an hour awakened from his tipsy sleep, and loomed upon the startled vision of as dainty a little lady as ever surrendered her slender figure to the en-wrapments of fashion. She rose and advanced timidly to the giant, whose big, red, brutish face relaxed none of its characteristic scowl. A day's growth of black beard roughened it, several blows in the previous night's contest had orimson spots, his eyes were bleary and his clothes dishevelled.

"The Church of the Paulist Fathers is to hold a fair," the girl said, and I am on a committee to solicit articles to place on sale. I thought you might be willing to contribute a few autographs—"

"A few what?"
"Autographs, you know—your signatures—your name written on slips of paper by yourself, if you please. We would sell them for $1 apiece.' She did not know the ideal manner of the successful slugger is most threatening when he is amiable. When Sullivan glowered savagely down on her, with a wicked leer in his eyes and an expression of nausea around his mouth and nose, she wouldn't have been surprised if annihilawouldn't have been surprised it annihilation had instantly happened to her.

"Of course, Mr. Sullivan, if it would be distaseful to you, don't do it," and she shyly retreated backward, keeping her mild eyes fixed on his, because she had read of that method as the only one for getting safely out of a wild beast's cage.

"Oh, what ye givin' me?! he exclaimed. "I ain't no good at writin', but I'll have Dave Maloney make as many autcsoft smallness of her hand seemed to complete the conquest, and he very savagely added; "An" if ye can arrange a set to betwixt me an' one of your fellers, I'll put on the gloves for the cause, an' you shall take the gate money." The sweet missionary melted out of the room, satisfied that she had risked martyrdom for the church. Two Grim Monsters. Entirely too grim. Grim Monsters.
