The entertainment is as good as can be expected for the small sum of money. It opened with an act, which is said to be laughable. Nellie Harcourt, a very pretty little miss, followed, singing a number of songa in the style. The Cummings were fair in their Irish sketches and wound up with a good clog. Kearney and Foy gave a laughable Dutch and Irish act. They created lots of fun but spoiled their business by remaining on the stage too long. The Irish end of the team would do well to practice the brogue before claiming to be an Irish comedian, and his make up was way off. Mens. They created lots of fun but spoiled their business by remaining on the stage too long. The Irish end of the team would do well to practice the brogue before claiming to bo an Irish comedian, and his make up was way off. Mons. Louis Dupont is a wonderful contortionist, and he astonished the audience by his feats in bending. He seems to be boncless. Miss Mattie Lee Price, the electric girl, who is revertised as a great attraction with the show, gave an a great attraction with the show, gave an exhibition of her powers. She is a hand some young girl, and very muscular looking. A number of gontlemen were called upon the stage to witness her act. She succeeded in lifting three men, seated upon a chair from the floor by placing her hands on the back of the chair. Six large men took hold of a stick and were told to hold it tight and stand still. The girl succeeded in moving them all around stage. Saveral men attempted to set a chair upon the floor, but were unable to drop it as long as the girl had her hands upon the seat. These features of her entertainment pleased everyone.

The show will remain to-night and tomorrow night, with a matinee to-morrow afternoon, and those who desire to have a couple of hours fuu, can be cheaply enter-

PROBIBITION DISCUSSED.

A Lecture by Frances E. Williard at the

The court house was well filled last even ing by an audience embracing many of the better classes of our citizens, and delegations from Manheim, Strasburg and other places assembled to hear a lecture by Miss Frances E. Willard, of Evanston, Ill. The meeting was under the auspices of the Womens' Christian Temperance Union. Rev. J. T. Satchell, of the Duke strest M. E. church, presided and opened the service by reading the 146th Psalm. The hymn "Coronation" was sung by the audience and prayer was offered by the Ray. Dr. J.

B. Shumaker. Rev. Satchell in a short address introduced Miss Willard, taking occasion to say that through the efforts of the W. C. T.U. of this city, our citizens have been given opportunity to hear several of the most distinguished temperance lecturers of the country, and none of them all were more deservedly held in high esteem than Miss Willard, the president of the National W. C. T. W., one of the most eminent and eloquent women of our day and nation.
At the request of Miss Willard the audi ence sang two verses of the hymn "What a friend we have in Jesus," at the conclu-sion of which she spoke for an hour and ten minutes on the question of the pro tection of our homes from the destroying influences of the salones. The means of gaining this end is to abstain ourselves from the use of intoxicants; to urge others to abstain ; to teach in our schools the effects of alcohol on the human sys tem ; and finally to abolish the licens laws and enact laws prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages. Miss Willard is a woman of very superior intellect, with a highly cultivated mind, and a thorough knowledge of the subject she discussed, and besides possesses the rare power of clothing her thoughts in the most beautiful and ap propriate words and in the most fluished oution. She kept her auditors spell bound throughout her entire address

M.B. ADAMS DISOWNS IT.

An Owast Wanted For a Published Mr. Occar Fay Adams, late of this city, writes to the Oritic as follows: "In the latter part of July of the present year a graceful sonnet, entitled 'Love in a Morn ng Gown, and signed Oscar Fay Adams, appeared in the Continent. Some weeks later, when I noticed it, I wrote to the editor disclaiming the authorship of the poem. After some delay I received a raply, in which the editor stated that the sonnet had been found with the endorsement of a previous editor that it should be published with an article of mine, which, by the way, appeared two years ago. Supposing me to be the author of the poem also, it was printed with my name attached. I requested that the Continent should note the fact in its columns, but before that could be done the magazine's career was closed, and not very long long ago I received from the office the manuscript of Love in a Morning Gown,' with a printed slip informing me that it was not available for publica tion! So now I am the unwilling posses-sor os a manuscript not mine, in addition

An old Hat and Cane,

From the Easton Argus. During President Buchanan's adminis ration Mr. Jonathan Hamman, a life long Democrat of Emans, bought a silk hat an cane, he then being in his best years, and neat and stylish in his habits and ways. On learning of Mr. Lincoln's election he however set both his hat and cane aside, and vowed that he would not again bring them into use until the Democrats had a president. He was given a long wait, but stuck to his resolve determinedly, and the Democrats having come out victorious in the late election he last week brought out the long retired stove pips and cane. The hat has quite an sucient shape, the crown being at least a foot high, and the shape of it very much after the build of the peach brakets we now see. It however is in an excellent condition, and Mr. Hamman would not exchange it for one of the latest style of tiles, for it brings to his mind the good old days of the long ago.

The Ux-Roast at Millersville, The Democrats of Millersville and vicinity celebrated the election of Cleveland and Hendricks by an ex-roast on Thursday. The attendance was large, many from this city and the adjoining townships taking part. The ox was thoroughly roasted and served in the afternoon. After all had feasted to their heart's content the order was given to fall in for a short parade. The Millersville club and horsemen from the surrounding country made up the procession, and after an hour's walk-around the parade dis-missed. There were no speeches made.

On Wednesday next, at 10 o'clock, the inter-county bridges at Pine Grove and Kirk's mill will be inspected by the commissioners of this and Chester counties and the inspectors appointed by the courts of Lancaster and Chester counties.

Sixteen Univer. From the Ephrata Review.

Last week a cow balonging to George Keller, of Springville, dropped an ordi pary sized calf, and in a day thereafter gave birth to fiften more. The latter were quite small, not much more than the size of a full grown rat, and poorly developed. The freak is known among farmers as "wild calves."

An Amount Case Settled.

John Wagner, charged with assaulting Michael and Sarah Young, appeared at the office of Alderman McGlinu for a nearing on Thursday night. After the parties talked the matter over they concluded to settle the cases, the defendant paid the costs and the prosecutor withdrew the complaints.

What are called "Buzzard Hunts," on Berks counties, while natural enough a one way of looking at them, appear to be rather absurd proceedings. If there is any evidence that "Abe Buzzard" and others of his family or gang controlled by others of his family or gang controlled by him are implicated in the robberies so frequent in that region, there is regular and proper way to proceed against him and them; and if they attempt to defy the ordinary course of legal proceedings, then the sheriffs of the counties name the sheriffs of the counties based should proceed with their armed posses, should proceed with their or drive end either capture them or drive them out of their counties. As the thing is going, the authority of the law is being sunk in contempt, and "old Abe Buzzard" is being put into the position of a mouvtain "hero" to some, and a martyr to others. There can be no doubt that he is a very bad man—about as bad as men of his breed can be—but there is nothing thus far to connect him with the recent robberies except his residence in the vicinty and his villainous reputation. purifies and enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles and nerves, and tones and invigorates the system:

Allopath Doctor Ordered to Allow a Mrs. Follansbee, of Cleveland, Ohio, a Mrs. Follansbee, of Cleveland, Ohio, a poor woman, was notified last week that her little daughter Julia, an inmate of the orphans' home at Xenia, was very sick. The case grow critical and the mother went to Xenia. The attending physician at the home is an allopath, and the mother who has always consulted homeorathic physicians, chiested to his homopathic physicians, object treatment, but she was refused per-mission to employ a doctor of her own selecting. The mother stoutly refused to give the medicine left by the physician at the home and the matron was instrucat the nome and the matron was instruc-ted to give it. It was impossible without a scene to remove the mother from her sick child's room, and yet it was evident that without medicine the patient would that without medicine the patient would die. The mother finally went to an attorney, at whose instigation the court granted a temporary injunction restraining the superintendent and matron of the home from preventing the mother from employing such a physician as she saw fit. Mrs. Follansbee, with a homeopathic doctor, is now in triumphant possession at the bedside of her girl, but the latter can hardly recover.

CAPITRING A GROST,

Young Man in Woman's Dress Frees Mysthe trees a Terror-Inspiring Visitant.

Three ghosts have been frightening the women and children of the quaint little village of Mystic on the sound, claft or ten miles east of New London, Conn., for several weeks. Women and girls were at first pursued almost nightly by a tall, white figure that rose up suddenly from the wayside, and seemed to their excited fancy to float swiftly on the wind toward them. They sped down the street closely chased by the apparition and dashed into their homes out of breath and fell on the floor. At length the terror became so general that few women and girls ventured out of their houses after dark, and when they did so harried along the roads, often turning an affrighted glance over their shoulders leat the three ghosts might stoal on them unawares.

lest the three ghosts might steal on them unawares.

Next a company of young men was organized to lay in wait with loaded shot-guns for the ghostly disturbers of the peace, and several parties stayed out all night for a week or more, at different points about the village, lying in the frosted grass behind walls and fences, or in the shadow of unlighted buildings.

od grass behind walls and fences, or in the shadow of unlighted buildings. No spectre appeared in the silent streets, and the watchers went home and thawed out in the chimney place with draughts of hot cider. Thereupon a committee of two or three young men arrayed themselves in hoop skirts, dresses and bonnets, and after dark minered ecquettishly up and down the sidewalks hoping to lure the ghosts into pursuing them.

For two nights the ruse was without result, but a few evenings ago one of the ghosts was tempted out. He sprang at one of the marqueraders, who at first fled, leading the ghoston, until he suddenly wheeled, and, throwing his arms around the ghost, held him in a merciless hug. The captive was lugged before a peace justice, who had him locked up. The ghost was Albert C. Briggs, a jack-of-all-trades of the village. He was sentenced to thirty days in jail for disturbing the peace.

Who the other ghosts are are not known, as Briggs refused to expose them. They have not been seen since his arrest. A Prediction Verified.

Frederick K. Klemm, says a dispatch from Boston, died at Dedham a few nights ago of pleurisy, just two weeks after the death of his wife, upon whose demise he said, though then in apparently good health, "I will follow her in two weeks."
