

The Lancaster Evening

Volume XXI—No 90.

LANCASTER, PA., MONDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1884.

Price Two Cents.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, & CO.

H. Z. RHOADS.

NOVELTIES!

New Idea in Enamelled Ladies' Watch, just received from Europe, that should be seen by all means.

The latest thing for letter sealing purposes is a pretty case containing a beautiful Stone Seal, Pen Holder, &c. Just the thing for that purpose.

Stones of the Alps Match safe for gentlemen; holds small candies besides the matches, and shuts up into a very small compass. Also Cigarettes and Card Cases, Same stone, entirely new thing.

Our Musical Boxes for Children, at the small cost of 75c; seem to be very popular and are getting off rapidly.

Our New and Beautiful Line of French Travelling Clocks is very complete; these clocks have a very delicate good strike, are of the finest workmanship and finish and at very reasonable prices.

H. Z. RHOADS,

Lancaster, Pa. No. 4 West King Street.

DRY GOODS.

COATS AND SHAWLS.

LADIES' COATS

-AT-

Metzger & Haughman's
Newmarkets, Russian Circulars,
Dolmans and Jackets.

CHILDREN'S COATS, for Fall and Winter.

Our Assortment of Coats for Ladies and Children was made expressly for us by the best makers of New York and Philadelphia, and are very cheap.

METZGER & HAUGHMAN'S CHEAP STORE
43 West King Street,
(Between the Cooper House and Sorell Horse Hotel.) LANCASTER, PA.
nov15-ly4w

NEXT DOOR TO THE COURT HOUSE.

FAHNESTOCK'S!

FOR THE COMING FESTIVE SEASON.

Silks, Blankets, Silk Umbrellas,
Shawls, Table Linens, Silk Handkerchiefs,
Dress Cloths, Table Covers, Linen Handkerchiefs,
Cloth Shirts, Napkins, Underwear.

Ladies' Coats, Piano Covers, Gloves,
Children's Coats, Stand Covers, Hosiery,
Gossamers, Countertops, Corsets.

Our stock was never so attractive as at the present time, and PRICES ALWAYS THE LOWEST.

R. E. FAHNESTOCK,

Next Door to the Court House, Lancaster, Pa.
J. B. MARTIN & CO.

TOY

DEPARTMENT!

MECHANICAL TOYS which would make the sternest man laugh are here displayed, and we invite all to call and see the

Braying Mules,
Bellowing Mules,
Neighing Horses,
Steam Engines,
Santa Claus,
Magic Lanterns,
Building Blocks,
Games,
Stables,
Horses,

And 100 other different Articles suitable for Presents and Gifts.

J. B. MARTIN & CO.

Corner West King and Prince Streets. Opposite Stevens House.
LANCASTER, PA.
CARPETS, & CO.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

-AT-

SHIRK'S CARPET HALL.

Selling Off to Close Business. Everything Must Positively be Sold.

A Full Line of BODY BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY, and All Grades of INGRAM CARPETS, USE, BLANKETS, COVERLETS and OIL CLOTH.

ALL AT A SACRIFICE.

Prompt attention given to the Manufacture of Bag Carpets to order.

SHIRK'S CARPET HALL,

COR. W. KING AND WATER STS., LANCASTER, PA.
nov15-ly4w

159% Watches and Clocks.

WATCHES, Clocks, Chains, Rings,
Spectacles, &c.

Repairing of all kinds will receive my personal attention.

Remember name and number. Directly opposite the City Hotel, near Penn's Depot. 15ly4

NOTICE TO TRADESMEN AND SHIRK'S CARPET HALL.

ALL PERSONS are hereby forbidden to trespass on any of the lands of the Corporation of Speedwell, situated in Lebanon and Lancaster counties, whether inclosed or uninclosed, either for the purpose of shooting or fishing, as the law will be rigidly enforced against all trespassing on said lands of the undersigned after this notice.

W. COLEMAN FREEMAN,
J. P. FREY ALDEN,
EDWARD C. FRANKMAN,
JAMES H. H. W. COLEMAN'S HEIRS.

159% POOR, WHITE & MERRIHOUGH, --BANKERS.--

PRIME RAILWAY SECURITIES ALWAYS ON HAND FOR INVESTMENT.

MINNEAPOLIS REAL ESTATE 7 PER CENT BONDS FOR SALE AT 104 AND INTEREST.

PROPRIETORS OF "POOR'S MANUAL OF RAILWAYS" CORRESPONDENCE INVITED. 45 WALL ST., NEW YORK.

STORAGE --AND--

Commission Warehouse, DANIEL MAYER, 16 West Chestnut street. dec1-ly4

"WE CAN CALL OFF, BUT NONE CAN EQUAL THE HAVANA YELLOW FRONT No. 1 Cigar." BARTMAN'S YELLOW FRONT CIGAR STORE.

CLOTHING.

MEN'S & BATHING.

Holiday Suits and Overcoats,

FOR MEN, FOR YOUTHS, FOR CHILDREN.

What more acceptable and appropriate gifts for the holidays are there than an elegantly fitting suit

OR-- OVERCOAT?

We have a great selection of SUITS IN THE PIECE, embracing all the latest Novelties in Foreign and Domestic Woolens.

From which it is easy to make satisfactory selections.

Our Cutters are skilled in their calling and will guarantee to fit you perfectly in any style desired.

Our Tailors are numbered among the best of Lancaster mechanics, and their work always bears evidence of superior manufacture.

We know prices when they are low down. We are ready to supply you at those at any one we have. We only ask for a chance to convince you of this fact.

London bridge is known to be the most thronged thoroughfare in the world. Four lines of vehicle traffic are with difficulty kept moving by police stations within a few yards from each other and the sidewalks are proportionately crowded for eight hours out of the twenty-four.

A year ago the strong police patrol stationed between the city and the Southwark side were kept in constant motion by the police dynamites, but at the end of three months the cars died away and the extra force was withdrawn.

Within fifteen minutes after the explosion, and as soon as the locality of the attempt could be ascertained, your correspondent hurried to the river at Blackfriars, hired a boat and rowed to the second arch of the bridge on the Southwark side, which appeared to be the very focus of the explosion.

He found there a number of policemen examining the piers and buttresses, and razing anxiously at the superstructure. His first question, however, resulted in his arrest and despite cards, papers of identification and protests he was immediately hurried ashore and to the nearest police station.

A special messenger sent to a well known news bureau finally brought word, and the suspect was released. While under the bridge and parleying with the officials such examination as the waiting light permitted showed the damage to have ever had been done. The massive granite work of the piers had not even been chipped. This fact would seem to justify the police theory, which was freely discussed at the station and en route, that the dynamite was hidden in a tin case and had been thrown from the western or upper side of the bridge.

At midnight the police had scoured the river for five miles above and as far below the bridge without finding any clue the perpetrator of the attempt, and all hope has practically been abandoned of any immediate discovery of the dynamites.

The detonation caused by the explosion was so starting that for some time the excitement in the crowded vicinity was intense. On the railway bridge, a short distance above, all became confusion. Trains stopped, and waiting for ten or fifteen minutes, reigned supreme.

Experts from Sootland Yard estimate that while the damage done was slight at least fifty pounds of dynamite must have been used to cause an explosion so great as to smash windows on both sides of the river and put out gas lights for a space of at least a quarter of a mile. They are astounded at the small damage done. It is not at all likely that the police will succeed in making any arrests as they have long since relaxed all precautions against overt acts of this description, except in the vicinity of the government buildings proper.

If police now think that a boat containing explosives was allowed to drift beneath the bridge with a burning fuse attached. An eye witness says that the flames shot up simultaneously from each side of the bridge, showing that the fuse had been nicely timed to cause an explosion when half way beneath the bridge.

The explosion was heard ten miles outside of London. At Woolwich the arsenal gates were shaken.

A Senatorial Bachelor.

Senator Saubury is a gay young bachelor of sixty seven winters, upon whom the belles of Washington have for long years tried their batteries in vain. His brother senators often joke him upon his continued resistance to the blandishments of the fair and false. Recently Senator Beck and Hampton and some others got up a story that he had made an oath in 1880 never to marry until a Democratic president was elected; that he has long been smitten with the charms of Frances Beck, a young heiress of the Eastern states, and would lead her to the altar on the day that Cleveland was inaugurated. This fiction they have circulated far and wide, and the consequence is, as Senator Saubury says, that every pretty girl that he has met with in the last ten years now looks at him as if she expects him to get on his knees and declare himself at once. He says he must do something at once to protect himself as he may be confronted with a half-dozen suits for breach of promise. His therefore, engaged Senator Pugh, of Alabama to bring a suit for heavy damages against Beck, Hampton et al. for slander.

The Ostrich as a Kicker.

The fact does not appear to work on natural history, but the ostrich is a first-class kicker. The Los Angeles Express relates that Dr. Skottelohy, who has charge of the ostrich farm at Anaheim, was plucking one of the birds a few days ago. When they pluck them they are kept on the head to blind the bird. While he cannot see he is quiet, but if his blinks get uncovered, then he "goes for" the plucker. The doctor moved his arm so as to disturb the stocking, and instantly the bird was down and went head first out of the pen, not caring for any more plumes just then. As he tumbled head first over the fence, the bird--he was a jack one, of course--let fly a kick which, striking a fence-board, made toothpicks of whole panel length. The male's occupation as a kicker is gone in this country since the ostrich came.

The Cunning of a Dog.

There is a dog in Kansas City owned by a gentleman who is a member of the Catholic church, and who does not, therefore, have much to do with the house on Friday. This the dog soon discovered, as he did also the fact that the next door neighbor was not an observer of this ancient custom. Every Friday for years the sagacious canine would ignore the food given him by his master and make a friendly visit to his Protestant neighbor, who never failed to supply him with meat. These weekly visits were kept up regularly for years, the dog never failing winter or summer to put in an appearance at the neighbor's on the day his master failed to supply him with meat. Recently the family owning the dog moved to a remote part of the city, but the following Friday, faithful to his custom in the past, the dog appeared at the home of his old neighbor and made his mute appeal for dinner.

The Migratory Quail.

Some years ago a great deal of attention and some hundreds of dollars were given to the importation into this country of the European migratory quail. A number of clubs joined in the enterprise. Thousands of birds were brought over and distributed in different parts of the Eastern and Middle states. A few leagues and months later reports were heard of their subsquent whereabouts, and then all information about them suddenly ceased. They may have increased or multiplied and migrated, but their abiding place is known of no man to this day. The individuals of no very well satisfied with the results so far obtained, and in fact are so much discouraged that they have given up all hope of ever seeing or hearing of the game again. A recent report, however, in the columns that more quail could be had led to excite much interest. Has any one recently seen any of these birds? Intelligence of them would be welcome. While the migratory quail experiment failed so far as the average sportsman is concerned to transplant our own American bird, "Bob White," have been very successful. Many depleted covers have been restocked and the shooting restored. The results of endeavors have not been uniformly satisfactory, but the average sportsman is waiting further work in the same direction. Our game clubs and associations can engage in no more profitable labor to increase the game supply than this transplanting of the quail.

Eating Just Before Sleeping.

D. M. Stone in New York Commercial Advertiser.

A healthy person who goes to bed on a full stomach will always wake in the morning with a better appetite for his breakfast. If dinner is eaten in the middle of the day and a light supper is served at 6 in the afternoon a hearty luncheon should be provided at 10 in the evening or just before the hour of retiring. The rule should be to eat at the last moment before going to bed, whatever that hour may be.

And this latest meal should not be of "light" viands, as this phase is commonly understood. The person who eats at any time of cake or pie, or the countless dainties that go to make up a fancy tea-table, will have no appetite for his dinner. Milk is perhaps the best of all where the pure article can be obtained; "Borden's condensed" will supply the best shape to suit our taste, and if this is used it should be mixed with warm or hot water, instead of cold, and eaten before it cools. With bread and fruit (baked apples will serve when berries and peaches fail) this makes a very wholesome evening meal.

The French Tax on Bachelors.

A tax is proposed on bachelors in the next French Budget. The probable result, according to the growing decrease in the population of France, it has become necessary to impose a tax on all single persons over thirty years of age.

Some of the causes of this decrease are that no Frenchman under 25 can marry without the consent of his parents. This consent is invariably withheld if the girl is penniless. On the other hand, if the girl be well provided for, her kinsfolk will not only let her marry unless the man's marriage portion be in proportion to hers, but they will effectually prevent all possibility of her making the acquaintance of a poor man.

In France an invitation to a private dinner or ball is generally preceded by an inquiry into the financial position of the recipient of such an invitation, which, for thoroughness, will beat anything and everything detectives in London or Paris could accomplish.

A Minneapolis Mother.

Many a mother will read with interest what Mr. Deane, 307 Cedar Avenue, Minneapolis, says: "Since attack of diphtheria, a year ago, I have been troubled greatly with a cough, which no doctor's medicine would help. I began using Brown's Iron Bitters two months ago, and it acted like a charm. I am now well, and my child is as healthy as when my children are ailing."

"The Dead Line."

Many old soldiers remember "the dead line" at Annapolis, Md. It was a dangerous neighborhood. Dyspepsia, biliousness, and liver and kidney diseases are full of perils for the old soldier. For such there are certain remedies, sold everywhere. For sale by H. B. Cochrane, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster, Pa. Large size, 50c, 75c, 1.00.

Beats the World.

This is what H. C. Holburn, a druggist of Marion, Ohio, says: "Thomas' Electric Oil beats the world. Sold me bottles yesterday and today. One bottle cured me of seven years' rheumatism. It is splendid for rheumatism. For sale by H. B. Cochrane, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street."

Stuckien's Ankle Pain.

The Best Salvo in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sore, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever, Stomach, Discharge, Chills, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or may be required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money returned. Price, 25 cents per box. For sale by H. B. Cochrane, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.

We Challenge the World.

When we say we believe, we have evidence to prove it. Shirk's Consumption Cure is decidedly the best Lung Medicine made, inasmuch as it will cure a common or Chronic Cough in one day, relieve whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, and cure more cases of Consumption cured than any other medicine. It will cure whooping Cough, Stomach Discharge, Chest or Back Pain, use Shirk's Porous Plaster, sold by H. B. Cochrane, druggist, Nos. 137 and 139 North Queen street. feb1-ly4w

MILLERS.

BLACK DIAMOND

COUGH SYRUP.

sept15-ly4w

CONSUMPTION--HAVE A POSITIVE REMEDY FOR THE ABOVE DISEASE BY THE USE OF ONE OF OUR MOST VALUABLE AND MOST EFFECTIVE LUNG MEDICINES.

Send two BOTTLES FILED, together with a letter, to J. W. MILLER, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster, Pa. Give express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. FLORENCE, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster, Pa.

There is a dog in Kansas City owned by a gentleman who is a member of the Catholic church, and who does not, therefore, have much to do with the house on Friday. This the dog soon discovered, as he did also the fact that the next door neighbor was not an observer of this ancient custom. Every Friday for years the sagacious canine would ignore the food given him by his master and make a friendly visit to his Protestant neighbor, who never failed to supply him with meat. These weekly visits were kept up regularly for years, the dog never failing winter or summer to put in an appearance at the neighbor's on the day his master failed to supply him with meat. Recently the family owning the dog moved to a remote part of the city, but the following Friday, faithful to his custom in the past, the dog appeared at the home of his old neighbor and made his mute appeal for dinner.

The Migratory Quail.

Some years ago a great deal of attention and some hundreds of dollars were given to the importation into this country of the European migratory quail. A number of clubs joined in the enterprise. Thousands of birds were brought over and distributed in different parts of the Eastern and Middle states. A few leagues and months later reports were heard of their subsquent whereabouts, and then all information about them suddenly ceased. They may have increased or multiplied and migrated, but their abiding place is known of no man to this day. The individuals of no very well satisfied with the results so far obtained, and in fact are so much discouraged that they have given up all hope of ever seeing or hearing of the game again. A recent report, however, in the columns that more quail could be had led to excite much interest. Has any one recently seen any of these birds? Intelligence of them would be welcome. While the migratory quail experiment failed so far as the average sportsman is concerned to transplant our own American bird, "Bob White," have been very successful. Many depleted covers have been restocked and the shooting restored. The results of endeavors have not been uniformly satisfactory, but the average sportsman is waiting further work in the same direction. Our game clubs and associations can engage in no more profitable labor to increase the game supply than this transplanting of the quail.

Eating Just Before Sleeping.

D. M. Stone in New York Commercial Advertiser.

A healthy person who goes to bed on a full stomach will always wake in the morning with a better appetite for his breakfast. If dinner is eaten in the middle of the day and a light supper is served at 6 in the afternoon a hearty luncheon should be provided at 10 in the evening or just before the hour of retiring. The rule should be to eat at the last moment before going to bed, whatever that hour may be.

And this latest meal should not be of "light" viands, as this phase is commonly understood. The person who eats at any time of cake or pie, or the countless dainties that go to make up a fancy tea-table, will have no appetite for his dinner. Milk is perhaps the best of all where the pure article can be obtained; "Borden's condensed" will supply the best shape to suit our taste, and if this is used it should be mixed with warm or hot water, instead of cold, and eaten before it cools. With bread and fruit (baked apples will serve when berries and peaches fail) this makes a very wholesome evening meal.

A CITY PANIC-STRICKEN.

EFFORT TO BLOW UP LONDON BRIDGE.

Fifty Pounds of the Explosive Works Only So Worthy of Damage--Detectives Fail to Discover Even the Traditional Utter.

London Bridge to New York Times.

A terrible concussion started London Saturday afternoon at 5:40 o'clock. It proved to be the result of an attempt to blow up London bridge. The effort resulted in a failure and the structure was unharmed. The only damage done, as far as can be ascertained, is the destruction of perhaps 450 worth of window glass in the warehouses on both banks of the river; a number of lamp posts twisted into fantastic shapes and a few travellers knocked over. One pedestrian, who was probably near to the explosion, is said to have been slightly bruised by being violently thrown against the stone parapet of the bridge. Had the outrage been carefully planned and had the perpetrators intended serious mischief, which doubtless the police officials, the result must have been appalling.

London bridge is known to be the most thronged thoroughfare in the world. Four lines of vehicle traffic are with difficulty kept moving by police stations within a few yards from each other and the sidewalks are proportionately crowded for eight hours out of the twenty-four.

A year ago the strong police patrol stationed between the city and the Southwark side were kept in constant motion by the police dynamites, but at the end of three months the cars died away and the extra force was withdrawn.

Within fifteen minutes after the explosion, and as soon as the locality of the attempt could be ascertained, your correspondent hurried to the river at Blackfriars, hired a boat and rowed to the second arch of the bridge on the Southwark side, which appeared to be the very focus of the explosion.

He found there a number of policemen examining the piers and buttresses, and razing anxiously at the superstructure. His first question, however, resulted in his arrest and despite cards, papers of identification and protests he was immediately hurried ashore and to the nearest police station.

A special messenger sent to a well known news bureau finally brought word, and the suspect was released. While under the bridge and parleying with the officials such examination as the waiting light permitted showed the damage to have ever had been done. The massive granite work of the piers had not even been chipped. This fact would seem to justify the police theory, which was freely discussed at the station and en route, that the dynamite was hidden in a tin case and had been thrown from the western or upper side of the bridge.

At midnight the police had scoured the river for five miles above and as far below the bridge without finding any clue the perpetrator of the attempt, and all hope has practically been abandoned of any immediate discovery of the dynamites.

The detonation caused by the explosion was so starting that for some time the excitement in the crowded vicinity was intense. On the railway bridge, a short distance above, all became confusion. Trains stopped, and waiting for ten or fifteen minutes, reigned supreme.

Experts from Sootland Yard estimate that while the damage done was slight at least fifty pounds of dynamite must have been used to cause an explosion so great as to smash windows on both sides of the river and put out gas lights for a space of at least a quarter of a mile. They are astounded at the small damage done. It is not at all likely that the police will succeed in making any arrests as they have long since relaxed all precautions against overt acts of this description, except in the vicinity of the government buildings proper.

If police now think that a boat containing explosives was allowed to drift beneath the bridge with a burning fuse attached. An eye witness says that the flames shot up simultaneously from each side of the bridge, showing that the fuse had been nicely timed to cause an explosion when half way beneath the bridge.

The explosion was heard ten miles outside of London. At Woolwich the arsenal gates were shaken.

A Senatorial Bachelor.

Senator Saubury is a gay young bachelor of sixty seven winters, upon whom the belles of Washington have for long years tried their batteries in vain. His brother senators often joke him upon his continued resistance to the blandishments of the fair and false. Recently Senator Beck and Hampton and some others got up a story that he had made an oath in 1880 never to marry until a Democratic president was elected; that he has long been smitten with the charms of Frances Beck, a young heiress of the Eastern states, and would lead her to the altar on the day that Cleveland was inaugurated. This fiction they have circulated far and wide, and the consequence is, as Senator Saubury says, that every pretty girl that he has met with in the last ten years now looks at him as if she expects him to get on his knees and declare himself at once. He says he must do something at once to protect himself as he may be confronted with a half-dozen suits for breach of promise. His therefore, engaged Senator Pugh, of Alabama to bring a suit for heavy damages against Beck, Hampton et al. for slander.

The Ostrich as a Kicker.

The fact does not appear to work on natural history, but the ostrich is a first-class kicker. The Los Angeles Express relates that Dr. Skottelohy, who has charge of the ostrich farm at Anaheim, was plucking one of the birds a few days ago. When they pluck them they are kept on the head to blind the bird. While he cannot see he is quiet, but if his blinks get uncovered, then he "goes for" the plucker. The doctor moved his arm so as to disturb the stocking, and instantly the bird was down and went head first out of the pen, not caring for any more plumes just then. As he tumbled head first over the fence, the bird--he was a jack one, of course--let fly a kick which, striking a fence-board, made toothpicks of whole panel length. The male's occupation as a kicker is gone in this country since the ostrich came.

The Cunning of a Dog.

There is a dog in Kansas City owned by a gentleman who is a member of the Catholic church, and who does not, therefore, have much to do with the house on Friday. This the dog soon discovered, as he did also the fact that the next door neighbor was not an observer of this ancient custom. Every Friday for years the sagacious canine would ignore the food given him by his master and make a friendly visit to his Protestant neighbor, who never failed to supply him with meat. These weekly visits were kept up regularly for years, the dog never failing winter or summer to put in an appearance at the neighbor's on the day his master failed to supply him with meat. Recently the family owning the dog moved to a remote part of the city, but the following Friday, faithful to his custom in the past, the dog appeared at the home of his old neighbor and made his mute appeal for dinner.

The Migratory Quail.

Some years ago a great deal of attention and some hundreds of dollars were given to the importation into this country of the European migratory quail. A number of clubs joined in the enterprise. Thousands of birds were brought over and distributed in different parts of the Eastern and Middle states. A few leagues and months later reports were heard of their subsquent whereabouts, and then all information about them suddenly ceased. They may have increased or multiplied and migrated, but their abiding place is known of no man to this day. The individuals of no very well satisfied with the results so far obtained, and in fact are so much discouraged that they have given up all hope of ever seeing or hearing of the game again. A recent report, however, in the columns that more quail could be had led to excite much interest. Has any one recently seen any of these birds? Intelligence of them would be welcome. While the migratory quail experiment failed so far as the average sportsman is concerned to transplant our own American bird, "Bob White," have been very successful. Many depleted covers have been restocked and the shooting restored. The results of endeavors have not been uniformly satisfactory, but the average sportsman is waiting further work in the same direction. Our game clubs and associations can engage in no more profitable labor to increase the game supply than this transplanting of the quail.

Eating Just Before Sleeping.

D. M. Stone in New York Commercial Advertiser.

A healthy person who goes to bed on a full stomach will always wake in the morning with a better appetite for his breakfast. If dinner is eaten in the middle of the day and a light supper is served at 6 in the afternoon a hearty luncheon should be provided at 10 in the evening or just before the hour of retiring. The rule should be to eat at the last moment before going to bed, whatever that hour may be.

And this latest meal should not be of "light" viands, as this phase is commonly understood. The person who eats at any time of cake or pie, or the countless dainties that go to make up a fancy tea-table, will have no appetite for his dinner. Milk is perhaps the best of all where the pure article can be obtained; "Borden's condensed" will supply the best shape to suit our taste, and if this is used it should be mixed with warm or hot water, instead of cold, and eaten before it cools. With bread and fruit (baked apples will serve when berries and peaches fail) this makes a very wholesome evening meal.

The French Tax on Bachelors.

A tax is proposed on bachelors in the next French Budget. The probable result, according to the growing decrease in the population of France, it has become necessary to impose a tax on all single persons over thirty years of age.

Some of the causes of this decrease are that no Frenchman under 25 can marry without the consent of his parents. This consent is invariably withheld if the girl is penniless. On the other hand, if the girl be well provided for, her kinsfolk will not only let her marry unless the man's marriage portion be in proportion to hers, but they will effectually prevent all possibility of her making the acquaintance of a poor man.

In France an invitation to a private dinner or ball is generally preceded by an inquiry into the financial position of the recipient of such an invitation, which, for thoroughness, will beat anything and everything detectives in London or Paris could accomplish.

A Minneapolis Mother.

Many a mother will read with interest what Mr. Deane, 307 Cedar Avenue, Minneapolis, says: "Since attack of diphtheria, a year ago, I have been troubled greatly with a cough, which no doctor's medicine would help. I began using Brown's Iron Bitters two months ago, and it acted like a charm. I am now well, and my child is as healthy as when my children are ailing."

"The Dead Line."

Many old soldiers remember "the dead line" at Annapolis, Md. It was a dangerous neighborhood. Dyspepsia, biliousness, and liver and kidney diseases are full of perils for the old soldier. For such there are certain remedies, sold everywhere. For sale by H. B. Cochrane, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster, Pa. Large size, 50c, 75c, 1.00.

Beats the World.

This is what H. C. Holburn, a druggist of Marion, Ohio, says: "Thomas' Electric Oil beats the world. Sold me bottles yesterday and today. One bottle cured me of seven years' rheumatism. It is splendid for rheumatism. For sale by H. B. Cochrane, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street."

Stuckien's Ankle Pain.

The Best Salvo in