TUESDAY EVENING DEC. 16, 1884.

CHRISTMAS VIOLETS.

Last night I found the violets
You sent me once across the sea;
From gardens that the winter frets,
In summer lands they came to me.

Still fragrant of the English earth
Still humid from the frozen dew,
To me they spoke of Christmas mirth,
They spoke of England, spoke of you.

The flowers are scentless, black and sere,
The perfume long has passed away;
The sea whose tides are your by year,
Is set between us, chill and gray.

But you have reached a windless age,
The haven of a happy clime;
You do not dread the winter's rage,
Although we missed the summer time.

And like the flower's breath over sea,
Across the gulf of time and pain,
To-night returns memory
Of love that lived not all in vain.

—Andrew Lang in Harper's.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's Baby.

Mrs. W. K Vanderbilt's baby, who was christened last week, has many exquisite long dresses. Its christening robe was made two yards long, and is of the finest white mulle. About the edge is a finger-deep ruffle of real Valenciennes lace, put on by hemstitch. All the way up the front are puffs of real Valenciennes, alternating with the puffs of the mulle. The little waist is made with lowneck and short sleeves and is entirely of the lace, a narrow white satin ribbon finishing the edges. The whole dress was made by hand, and was worn with real pearl sleeve clasps.

Lacking Harmony.

From the New York Sun.

Lady (in a book store)—Haven't you a copy of Shakespeare bound in red, instead of blue?

Clerk—No madam; we have them only in blue.

Lady (laying the volume down regretfully)—I am sorry. I wanted it to lay on an ebony centre table, but a blue book and a black table would be too inharmonious in color, I think.

Despair not, neither man nor maid,
Although your mouth has suffered ill,
Although your teeth are half decayed,
You can still save them, if you will.
A little SOZODONT be sure
Will make all balmy bright and pure.

OF GREAT VALUE TO VOCALISTS.

USHONVILLE, WESTCHESTER CO., N. Y., August 20, 1883.

I had carelessly exposed myself and sustained a very severe and tight cold on my chest and in my throat. I procured Allcock's Porous Plasters and applied one on the chest, well up on the throat, and relief came readily; the soreness of my chest was removed, and my vocal organs were kept clear the entire past winter, enabling me to fulfill public engagements in different parts of this country.

No more may be said than that Allcock's Porous Plasters, if applied by afflicted vocalists, will greatly assist their vocal rendition in public. B. FRANKLIN CHURCH.
