Regular Correspondence of the INTELLIGENCER.
COLUMBIA, Jan. 7.—The state of the Susquehanna river is about the same as was re-ported in yesterday's INTELLIGENCER. It has neither risen or fallen, although it was ed the former would be the case, owing to the recent rain fall. Such, however, did not occur, and although the water dderably higher than low water mark, it will probably remain so until all the up river water has descended. The Invention of the Repeating Gun.

Yourcorrespondent, this morning, gleaned several important facts from Col. Samuel Shoch, concerning the repeating gun, invented by Thomas G. Chambers, in 1814. Col. Shoch at that time was clerk in the Legislature at Harrisburg, and when the Legislature assembled to witness the test of the gun he was present. The weapon, cannon shaped, worked on the Gattling gun principle, so the colonel believes. After being loaded by Chambers, it was discharged several times in succession. At that trial it worked first-class but Col. Shoch cannot recall why no action was taken in not putting it into service. Neither does he remember whatever became of it after the trial, whether Chambers died before making it more thorough, or gave it up, after his contract with the state of Penn-sylvania was annulled.

Notes About Town.

While delivering bread in Washington borough, vesterday, the team of Henry Schlegelmilch, of Columbia ran off. At the time the horse started Henry was taking bread into a house, but dropped it, and started for the team. In attempting to jump into the wagon he missed his step, and his right foot catching between the shaft and wagon step he fell and was dragged two squares before he could be released. He received no injury other than numerous bruises and torn clothes.

An Old Tutor Gracefully Remembered.

From the Oxford Press. A graceful Christmas gift was conferred upon Wm. M. Way, of Fulton township,

Lancaster county, consisting of a bag of silver quarters, the united contributions of a large number of his former pupils. Up to the spring of 1883, when he was stricken with paralysis, he had taught thirty-six consecutive school terms in that township, and the children of many of his earlier pupils have gone to school to him. The gift was presented to him on Christmas morning, by Joel H. King, a near neighbor and a former pupil. It amounted to $21.7a, and was accompanied by a paper containing a short address of sympathy and regard, followed by the names of the contributors, with the sum contributed (twenty-five cents), opposite each name. quarters, the united contributions of a large

The entertainment at the Young Men's Christian association rooms on Saturday evening was very enjoyable. Sixty-one boys were present. The programme consisted of polyopticon views, recitations, vocal and instramental music. The views were shown by Mr. Westley Merenzy, who also recited aeveral selections in his usual good style, Mr. Trewitz, the obliging and accomplished musician, played quite a number of pieces on the mouth organ.

Seventeen prisoners were called before the mayor this morning for hearings. Sixteen were vagrants and were discharge!, One drank, a countryman, paid costs.

THE SECOND PRESENTATION.

The Bennett & Moulton Company Give "Oli-vette" to a Crowded House, Last evening Bennet & Moulton's opera company made their second appearance at the opera house. The house was large, the gallery being uncomfortably full. Alththe eard announcing "standing room only was displayed before 8 o'clock, it was not difficult for late comers to secure seats in the rear of the house. The opera of "Olivette" was given and the rendition was much better than that of the "Massot" upon the previous evening. The company contains but few first-class singers, and the chorus are not large. Ben. Lodge is a rather elever actor who overacted the character of Cognilicol. He made a hit with the song, "Bob up serenely." Many of the audience seemed to forget what they paid to see the show and wanted all they could get for their money. They called for Lodge again and again until he was tired making rhymes, and the majority of the audience became tired of the few who were making the noise. Miss Bessie Pairbairn made a pretty Olivette, and Miss Mambe Bruce did well as the Countess.

This afternoon the coupany is giving "Billee Taylor" and they repeat it this evening. There is no doubt that the show has caught on wonderfully. As much is given as ean be be expected for the money, and there is no doubt that large audiences will be drawn during the week.

At the evening performances twenty cents is charged for the four front rows of the galwas displayed before 8 o'clock, it was not drawn during the week.

At the evening performances twenty cents is charged for the four front rows of the gallery, and ten for the remainder. The small boy prefers to pay the smaller price and takes his seat behind. The front rows are usually not fully occupied. Last night as soon as the orchestra appeared the boys made a rush forward, and despite the efforts of the officers to prevent it they took possession of the remaining front seats. To give people an idea of the popularity To give people an idea of the popularity of cheap amusements it is only necessary to state that for to-morrow evening's performance of "Chimes of Normandy," by this company, nearly every seat down stairs had been sold at noon to-day.

DATID HOSTETTER BEATEN.

The Wealthy Pittsburger Loses An Appeal to The supreme court has decided in favor of the city of Pittsburg in the case taken up by David Hostetter on a writ of error to Beaver county. Hostetter was sued by the city as sondsman of Andrew Hartupee, contractor for the city water works ungines, to recover awards of $153,500 and $175,000, made by Arbitrator Lowry in passing upon the controversy between the city and Mr. Hartupee, relative between the city and Mr. Hartupee, relative to damages claimed by the latter for being evicted from the water-works and having the engines taken from him, extra work, etc. Hostetter claimed that a fair trial could not be obtained and had the largest case removed to Beaver county, where a verdiet in the sum named was secured. This decision by the supreme court applies to both cases, as they are similar, and it is hardly probably that the second one will be contested. The amount thus secured to the city is $333,740, with interest from February 21, 1884, on $190,240. The question rnary 21, 1884, on $190,240. The question before the supreme court, and finally decided by the chief justice, was as to the right of the mechanical engineer of a city to act as arbi-trator. This the chief justice holds to be objectionable under ordinary circumstances, but the parties having made an agreement in writing, submitting to his judgment, it is binding and should be sustained. Yesterday afternoon Joseph White had a hearing before Alderman McConomy to answer a complaint of R. S. Rahter, charging him with damaging his property.
