SPURRIER NOBLY VINDICATED.

THE PEOPLE OF LANCASTER DECRARE HEARTILY FOR MISGOVERNMENT.

The Republicans Carry Their Seven Wards Solidly For Councils-Elect Three Aldermen of the Regulation Pattern-Little Interest in the Contest.

The result of the city elections yesterday was no great surprise to people who watched the progress of events during the day. Under the present system of districting the city the Republicans have decided majorities in seven of the nine wards and they carried them all yesterday with solid council delegations and without the loss of a ward officer. This makes a gain for them of a member of select council in the Ninth ward. In other respects the new councils will stand politically as the Select Comeil-Seven Republicans, two Democrats.

Common Council-Twenty-one Republicans, six Democrats.

In the First ward there was no eventful contest of any kind; and little in the Seventh and Eighth, where the feeling of indifference was very great and the vote exceedingly light. In the Ninth some interest was attached to the contest for alderman, but it was quiet and the result was no surprise.

THE SENSENIG-HALBACH PIGHT. In the Second ward the Sensenig element of the Republican ticket gave unconcealed aid to the Democratic ticket for council, and brought a considerable number of votes to it; the "floaters" who claim to be Democrats were very generally bought up by the other side and nearly offset the Republican defections, so that the opposition had about its regular majority. Toward evening some-thing of a row occurred, mainly between the Republican tactions, over the vote of the Shertzers, father and son. The elder got his ballot in ; and a few minutes before seven young Shertzer was objected to for taxes. He had a receipt at home, and although he swore he had paid his tax, the board decided that he must produce his receipt. As it was too late then to get it his vote was rejected and a melee ensued, in which outsiders broke down the partition of the election box, and down the partition of the election box, and inspectorClark protected the ballot box. Some excitement was also aroused over the admission of the vote of "Hoggy" Rote, He swore that his residence was at Kitch & Stapleford's saloon, where nobody has any residence, and as nobody else would vouch for him Jim Macaleer swore to it. The vote set in.

IN THE REPUBLICAN STRONGHOLDS. In the Third ward the McMellen faction gave some help to C. Kohler, the brower. who ran for council on the Democratic ticket and this, with his personal popularity. ran him far ahead and brought him within 6 votes of election.

In the Fourth ward the fusion ticket was supported by many of the better class of Republicans and by the Democratic organization; but Spurrier and his party picked of every weak brother that could be secured and had a sweeping victory.

In the Fifth the anti-Sensenig men kicked a little at the council ticket and John J. Jetteries, Democrat, made a good fight for coun-rils. During the afternoon he was violently abused by "Pickle" Trover, and trounced him. He ran ahead of his ticket, but the Republican majority up there is a stone wall.

In the Sixth ward the fight for alderman, In the Sixth ward the fight for aderman, aggravated by the opposition of Fraim and other Republicans to Deen, called out the largest vote in the city, and a good deal of feeling was manifested, but no fights occurred. The polls closed with an enormous majority for the Republicans in the box.

On the whole it was a very dull election On the whole it was a very dull election day, and the popular indifference was as manifest as it generally is the year succeeding a presidential election. The returns in full worse a follow:

A RATHER SERIOUS WRECK. A Box Car Goes Through a Bridge on the Quarryville Railroad.

On Monday evening a rather serious wreck occurred to the mixed freight and passenger train which leaves this city for Quarryville at half-past fiveo'clock. As it was passing over the bridge which crosses the Beaver creek, just below Refton; the track spread and a box car loaded with feed, which was near the box car loaded with need, and was the bridge. It hung suspended between the creek and the bridge. None of the passenger cars were damaged, but the people on board were badly frightened. The locomotive had crossed the bridge in safety. The passengers of that train and the one which leaves here at 8:10 in the evening were carried to New Providence and Quarry-ville on an engine. The wreck was not cleared until yesterday forenoon, and the Monday evening train did not reach Quarry-ville until vesterday noon.

SLOW AND SLEEPY SENATORS.

LANCASTER, PA., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1885.

THE DIFFCULTY OF SECURING A QUORUM IN THAT BODY.

The Grave and Reverend Fathers of the Reput lie Have to Wait for Their Associates. Business in Congress To-day-Attacking The Hennepin Canal Job.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 18,-In the Senate but three senators were present at prayer this morning. A call of the Senate was ordered. Before the roll was completed 16 senators had reached the chamber. The roll was then called for absentees; at the conclusion of which 26 senators had reached the chamber. Mr. Conger asked if there was not a sufficient number of senators present to admit of the reading of the journal. He was not disposed to appear in the role of an alarmist but he vished merely to be informed.

The chair (Mr. Edmunds) replied that under the rules a quorum was necessary. Mr. Hale (Maine) moved that the reading of the journal be dispensed with, The chair informed the gentleman that a motion was not in order. [Laughter.] After the senators sat silent for tifteen min utes, Messrs, Miller (N. Y.) and Gibson (La.), appeared in the chamber, and in answer to their names, instead of answering "Present," answered "No," which occasioned considerable merriment. Five minutes before eleven Mr. Edmunds announced that the chair had been advised that a quorum was present. He therefore directed the secretary to proceed with the reading of the journal of yesterday's proceedings. It was 11:35 a. m., when the morning session began.

The chair laid before the Senate among other documents, a resolution of the legislature

The Senate resumed consideration of the bill to quiet titles to Des Moines river lands, which has been under discussion in the morning hour for nearly two weeks. Lapham continued his opposition to the bill, offering a number of amendments, addressing the Senate at length on each, and in this manner consumed the time till noon.

On motion of Hoar the Senate went into executive session for the purpose of further considering the nomination of Emory Speer to be judge of the United States circuit court for the Northern district of Georgia, but without action on the nomination the doors were again opened, and at 12:30 the unfinished siness, the foreign contract labor bill, was laid before the Senate.

M'PHERSON'S BREEZY SPEECE. In the course of the debate McPherson nade a statement which was received with exclamations of surprise by Mr. George and others. He said that on representation being made that laborers in glass factories were protected, Congress inreased the duty on glassware; whereupon the manufacturers immediately demandthat their laborers submit to a reduction of 10 per cent. in wages. the men refused to submit to this reduction the manufacturers first imported Belgians to take the place of those shut out and when that did not work then they imported goods and paid duty on them in order to keep their our men out of employment. From this he deduced the opinion that there were other evils than those named in the bill against which it was necessary to protect workingmen. They should be proceted from combinations of manufacturers which prevented their receiving a fair share of the benefits of the tariff.

Mr. Butler opposed the bill as crude and inoperative; he thought it far better to relieve the laborer of the average taraff tax of $85 a year laid upon him for the necessaries of life. He moved a burlesque amendment, which was voted down, 56 to 11.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE HOUSE.

Finishing Yesterday's Seedon and Starting Fresh at 11 O'Clock. In continuation of yesterday's session the House went into committee of the whole on the river and harbor bill. Mr. Bayne (Pa.) addressed the committee in opposition to large appropriations for the ower Mississippi, declaring the plan of the emmissioners a demonstrated failure.

Mr. Potter, (N. Y.), followed in opposition o the Hennepin canal project to build one canal. He said it would open the door to others, and a railroad would naturally fol-

The twenty minutes remaining for a debate was extinguished and then the commitee proceeded to dispose of the amendments. Mr. Willis, (Ky.) from the river and haror committee, submitted a substitute for the entire Galveston harbor clause. It appropriated $500,00 for the examination and survey of this harbor by a special board, to be created and who shall report to Congress through the secretary of war.

On a proposition to amend the substitute, no quorum voted and at 10:55 a, m, the committee rose and the Huose adjourned. At 11 o'clock the House was called to order for to-day's legislative session.

A bill appropriating $100,000 for a govern ment building at Chattanooga, Tenn., and several others of private interest passed. A Senate bill was passed appropriating $25,000 for the relief of sufferers by the low of the government steamer, J. Don Cameron.

Investigating the Peasion Abuses.

The House committee on pensions, bounty and back pay to-day examined Mr. Sawyer who is in charge of the statistics and of the special agent division of the pension office. The effect of his testimony was to show that there had been an increase of 150 special agents by the action of last session, which had increased the cost of the service 52 per cent.; while the increase in work accomplished was last 7 per cent.

MISS FANNY DAVENPORT.

Her Great Impersonation of "Fedora" at the Opera House. It is little wonder that Fanny Davenport took the critics by storm in "Fedora," for it would be hard to conceive much finer work than that which she gives in this, her greatest play. Fulton opera house was crowded last night on the lower floor and the gallery was fairly filled to witness this dramatic event, before which all others this season must pale their ineffectual fires. "Fedora" from the pen of Emile Sardou, and in its artistic arrangement of emotional situations and quick movement it shows the master

Miss Davenport thoroughly captivactd her audience last evening by the thorough man-ner in which she sunk her own individuality into the part of the lovely Princess Fedora. It was a character with which the most ordinary as well as the most intelligent speciators could sincerely sympathize. The languid opening of the drama followed by languid opening of the drama followed by the rapid movement that characterized the death scene in the first act prepare the au-dlence for surprises, and the expectation is faithfully realized.

The acting of Miss Davenport is of a sin-gularly fine character. Containing in it all the sweetness of womanhood, she at the same time shows in her moral peaks are a capacity

Her support was all that could be desired, Mr. Henry Lee, as Loris Ipanoff, carrying off the palm. His work was marked by a off the paim. His work was marked by a carefulness and grace through which shone the polished actor. Miss Blanche Weaver, as Connicss Olga Sonkareft, was well received by the audience, and the balance of the cast was all that could be desired.

SAVED BY A FIREMAN. An Audience of Fifteen Thousand People

Cheering a Brave Act. Substitute Victor, of Engine 22, is the hero f the night in Boston. An audience of fifteen thousand people was seated in the grand hall of the Mechanics' building enjoying a "Dickens Carnival," when the red curtain caught tire and a tongue of flame began creeping up tire and a tongue of flame began creeping up its broad surface. The curtain had just fallen on a song by Mrs. Barry. The people, who were packed like sardines, rose to their feet and stood gazing at the ominous flame. Conductor Baldwin signated to his orchestra and they struck up a lively air. At the same moment willing hands on the stage tore at the curtain, which was by this time fairly on fire. Victor, who was detailed for just such emergencies which was detailed for just such emergencies as this, jumped to the flies and, climbing up, clutched the supports of the curtain and broke them, allowing the cloth to fall to the stage, where the fire was quickly quenched. The where the fire was quickly quenched. The audience made no move toward the exits during this exciting moment and when it was ended broke forth in hearty cheers for Victor who modestly slunk out of sight. Two years ago, when an audience of like dimensions was listening to Patti in this very hall a sim-lar scene occurred and two journalists allay-ed sporadic symptoms of a panic which were manifest. The carnival to-night was a very grand affair. Its principal feature was a pro-cession of four hundred persons in costume, representing as many of Dickens' characters.

They down girl who was lying on the ground surrounded by a dozen or more mongrel dogs. They drove off the dogs, which were tearing the child's flesh. She was badly bitten and almost fright-ened to death. She said that her name was Mamie Hasson, and that she had been follow-ed by three or four dogs while returning from a butcher's shop with some meat. The dogs jumped around her and snapped at the meat. The child, are twelve, became frightenmeat. The child, age twelve, became frightened and started to run. The dogs were joined by others and quickly secured the meat, after which they attacked the little girl, throwing her down and biting her about the face, arms and legs. Several of the wounds are large and dangerous, and great care will be necessary to save the child's life.

Masquerade Carnival at the Kink.

Last evening the first masquerade carnivial of the season was held at the Lancaster skating rink. The doors were opened at 7:30 and the crowd was not long in pouring in Notwithstanding the large attendance at the opera house to see Miss Davenport, the gal-leries were packed with spectators, many of them coming from the opera house after the performance. The grand march took the performance. The grand march took place at 9:30, and there were $2 masked couples in it. All were on skates and no one was permitted on the floor except those who were masked. The costumes were very handsome. At 10;0 clock the march was concluded and all unmasked. The floor was then open to everyone and skating was kept up until 11:30. The affair was a success.

LONDON, Feb. 18.-The Duke of Cambridge, commander-in-chief of the forces, acsompanied by the Princes of Wales, inspected the guards to-day, previous to their departure for Suakin. The weather was fine and the men presented a fine appearance. As they rode past the reviewing stand, they were loudly cheered for their fine soldierly bearing and precision of action.

After review they were driven by the grand stand and the Duke of Cambridge in a short address urged them to remember that discip-line was one of the cardinal virtues of a good soldier. He hoped that they would rea and gracefully submit to all rules and re-strictions imposed on them. Continuing, the duke said, "Remember your discipline and duty, your gallantry is undoubted. Good-bye, guards."

During his address the duke was repeatedly interrupted by applause, and at the close of his remarks the band played the national hymn, while the crowds cheered and yelled themselves hoarse.

Ninth—The president-elect is not at all worried over the tremendous rush c? "advising statesmen" to his doors or the well filled baskets of advising letters daily received through the mails. There is no positive contradiction here of the statement that Mr. Bayard is to be secretary of state, and Mr. Manning secretary of the treasury. Then follow the somewhat well founded assertions that Mr. Gariand is to be attorney general and Mr. Vilas secretary of war. Beyond that all is uncertain. Mr. Lamar is talked of forpostmaster general, Mr. Thurman for secretary of the interior, and Mr. Mc Donald for secretary of the interior, and Mr. Mc Donald for secretary of the interior, and Mr. Mc Donald for secretary of the interior, and Mr. Mc Donald for secretary of the very last moment, and this statement is made upon authority that cannot be questioned. not be questioned.
