The Lancaster Intelligencer. LANCASTER, MARCH 20, 1885.

The Penalty of Greatness. We do not quite understand why a doctor's daily bulletins should now be numbered among the burthen of distinction.

Next. A local post of the Grand Army of the Republic has sent its protest to the legislature against the request of another post of the same order in the state to be allowed to establish a lottery for its benefit.

Next. The Philadelphia Evening News, which in six months under its sprightly management has risen up to a high circulation, has moved into its own new building next to the Girard hotel, and it printed a 12-page issue on Thursday in celebration of the event.

Next. The New York Sun performs a valuable public service in printing a table of the actual appropriations of the second session of the 48th Congress, and by contrasting the totals of the last with those of the previous Congress.

Next. The Connecticut oyster planters having succeeded in establishing profitable culture of the bivalve, the North Carolina legislature has passed a comprehensive law intended to promote and protect this industry.

Next. Mr. J. WILLIS WELLS, of the Millersville Normal school, has an article in the Boston Journal of Education on "How Shall We Pronounce," in which he points out many remarkable differences between the popular and the standard pronunciation of words.

Next. After an experience of over three years the "Thirteen Club" New York, makes an exhibit that vindicates the success of its resolute efforts to defy the old superstition that when thirteen sit at table the first one rising will die within a year.

Next. Judge and Jury. It quite often happens that judges who are not content with the verdicts of juries, undertake to reproach them from the bench for their verdicts.

Next. A characteristic fraud. Ex-Secretary Hayes was yesterday paid a sum of less than four thousand dollars which the government has owed him for eight years.

Next. The Illinois legislature is doing its little best to make the general assembly of Pennsylvania appear respectable; and New York and New Jersey are not far behind.

NOTEWORTHY POETRY.

The Compositions of HERMES and OTHER POEMS, BY PAUL HERMES, Philadelphia, D. McKays, 1884. Pp. 153.

It has been said that if a collection of the pretty verses that are floating through the newspapers without an apparent owner were made, it would form a library at once unique and as interesting as the works of the standard poets.

The New York Tribune, in a review of a new edition of the works of Alexander Hamilton, pronounces that statesman the most eminent and influential of his time.

The Tribune is not prevented from saying this of its political apostle by the fact that the complete edition of Hamilton's works, which it commends so warmly, is not without a certain amount of completeness.

Next. The Republican party has gone; and now it looks from the opinion of the Mormon church organ, as if polygamy must also make tracks.
