

What Are You Going to Be About It? The proposition will hardly be gained that a county so rich, so prosperous, so densely settled and with such an intelligent and progressive population as Lancaster, should maintain free highways, passable at all seasons and open to all travelers.

AN APPEAL FROM THE SOUTH. Representative of Georgia Asks That His People be Given a Chance to Solve Their Problems. Henry W. Grady, of the Atlanta Constitution, has an article in the April Century, in reply to Mr. Cable, from which we quote as follows: "Let no one imagine, from what is here said, that the South is careless of the opinion or regard of the counsel of the outside world. On the contrary, while maintaining firmly a position she believes to be essential, she appreciates heartily the value of general sympathy and confidence."

PERSONAL. HERB ROSENTHAL, the German tragedian, has sailed from New York for home on the steamer Ems, of the North German Lloyd line. MADAME CLARA SCHUMANN, the widow of the composer, has not with a serious illness in the last of her husband's manuscripts from her house at Frankfurt-on-Main.

The South's Case. The Southern people are making themselves heard and felt in the literature of the country. Joel Chandler Harris; Sidney Lanier, "Charles Egbert Craddock," Paul H. Hayne, his son, William M. Hayne, and George W. Cable; not to speak of progressive newspapers, like those of Mr. Waterston, Mr. Grady, Mr. Burke, and others; polished orators and scholars in public life like Lamar and Hampton, Daniel and Tucker, are commanding for their section a respectful attention even from that cultured, but somewhat narrow-minded and intolerant class of people who were very loath to believe that any good could come out of the South.

A Congenial Mission. Mr. Cox, who goes to Turkey, has found a congenial mission. His very long term of service in the House has made him ready to welcome a change to new pastures; and the Turkey field is one which will yield him a good opportunity to cultivate the literary tastes to which he inclines. He will find in the manners, customs and institutions of that peculiar land the materials for description which will be fruitful for a book or two; and though many pens have been employed upon it, Mr. Cox will find fresh views to picture. There will not be any heavy diplomatic work, nor any hurry and rush of business among the sedate people with whom he sits down to make himself agreeable, as he will know how to do. The Turks will like Cox and Cox will like Turkey; and his shadow will be cast upon the land no doubt for at least a year, and for as many more as our Democratic administration lasts.

PERSONAL. MR. PETER STENGER of London, Franklin county, father of Hon. W. S. Stenger, celebrated his birthday on the 15th inst. He reads without glasses and is still able to attend to business. PROFESSOR DAVID SWING, formerly identified with the Atlantic at Chicago, and later with the University of Chicago, has been drawn from the latter and become permanently connected with the Cornell in an editorial capacity. COL. F. LACEY GODDARD, of the Pennsylvania national guard, confirms the INTELLIGENCER's statement that the state militia were taken to the front during the war, and back without expense to the state. Phenomenal liar of an esteemed contemporary, please take notice.

"DRESS HIM UP FINE." A Churlish Indian Commissioner Who Would Not Rig up Red Cloud. Red Cloud and Interpreter Randall called on Secretary Lamar last week. While waiting to be admitted Assistant Secretary Joslyn noticed that the Indian chief was rather shabby dressed, and going into the secretary's room suggested that an order be given for the purchase of a new suit for Red Cloud. The suggestion pleased Mr. Lamar, and he came out immediately, shook hands cordially with Red Cloud, and invited Mr. Joslyn to "dress him up fine."

Why He Won't Hit It. Ex-Attorney General Benjamin Harris Brewster, of the late magnificent surroundings of the attorney general's office in Washington, has astonished a company of his Philadelphia friends by declining a welcome home banquet which they tendered him. He puts his declination on the ground that he does not think it seemly for public men to be feasting in these "calamitous days."

Will You Walk Into My Parlor? So Mr. Blaine "feels friendly to Cleveland," does he? And Mrs. Blaine goes to the White House, she does? And the Blaines approve the administration and think it will be a success? And they are looking forward hopefully to a Democratic split over Cleveland's policy, are they? And Gail Hamilton won't print a diagram of the president's head in the editorial columns of the Tribune, won't she? How nice and obliging to be sure.

Low Rates on Letters and Newspapers—Special Stamps for Immediate Delivery of Letters. By virtue of the provisions of a bill passed by Congress before adjournment, three important changes in postal rates will go into effect on the 1st of July next. First, the postage on sealed letters will be two cents per ounce or fraction of an ounce, instead of two cents per half-ounce as at present. Second, the postage on newspapers sent to regular subscribers, will be one cent per pound instead of two cents as at present; and single copies sent out by publishers will be charged a postage of one cent per half-pound instead of one cent per quarter-pound as at present. Third, a special delivery stamp, with a face valuation of ten cents will be provided for use in all cities or towns having a population of 4000 or more, and in all free delivery offices, without regard to population, and any letter containing said stamp, in addition to the legal postage, when it reaches its destination, should be immediately carried to the address on the envelope. The sections of the bill providing for the special stamp are as follows:

Kentucky Resignation. Gen. John S. Williams accepts his defeat for the Mexican mission very gracefully, and can afford to do so. Gen. Williams' name has been mentioned in connection with the commission for the administration of agriculture. It is a place of importance, and his exceptional qualifications for it are universally recognized. It was even reported that the place had been tendered him. This, however, Gen. Williams denies. He will ask nothing further of the administration, and should his claims be in no way recognized, his good fortune will be to return to a home of rare attractiveness, in a state where he still stands high on the hearts of the people.

The Dispensers of Office. Congressman Sowden has secured the appointment of his nominee for postmaster at Allentown and Congressman Scott has named the postmaster at Erie. Consequently it appears that the old rule which accords to the congressman of the district the selection of the federal officeholders in their districts is not to be changed under this administration, provided all the time, of course, that the congressmen present fit applicants. There has been a suggestion that perhaps the reforms in administration contemplated by the president included the abstraction from the people's representatives in Congress of their customary care for the filling of the offices, under the idea that the public service would be benefited by their single devotion to the duties of legislation. The other idea is that those whom the people have chosen to represent them, are best qualified to select the officers in their districts. And this now appears to be the view of the responsibilities and privileges of the member of Congress which is adopted by the present administration. Undoubtedly to most congressmen this construction of their powers and duties will be acceptable, for most of them are politicians who covet power, and the labor it brings with it. Many others would prefer to be freed from the vexatious officiating, but they are not in the majority.

Mr. Thompson, of Kentucky, is said now to be presented for the office of solicitor general or of assistant attorney general. Mr. Thompson being a man of murderous inclinations, which he gratifies at such times as suit his fancy, does not seem to be clearly pointed out as an officer of justice. When an office is found where a ready use of the pistol is called for, Mr. Thompson may properly apply to it.

THE Philadelphia Record performs a notable work in its splendid quadruple sheet issued to-day, containing the story of Philadelphia's rise from a quiet old Quaker city to one of the greatest cities of industry in the world. The causes and the men that contributed to these great results are touched upon in graphic style, and the whole recalls in its results an Arabian Nights' story. It is a great stroke of enterprise to have brought this history home to Philadelphians in the complete manner in which it has been presented, and it must tend to enhance the popularity of this very popular journal.

Mr. Henry Waterston is not an ogre; not by any means. For all the hard things he has to say about the Pennsylvania Democrats, whom he likes not to admit to be Democrats, he likes us and we like him. He had hardly got within the state the other day on his way East when he unobtrusively himself to a reporter in the Pittsburg station, and unceremoniously his admiration for Hay, Hopkins and Randall, just as in his paper the other day he lauded the general social qualities and the admirable intellectual ability of Black, Wallace and Curtin.

Suppose the people who are exercised about Higgins, and who are making an ado over the "charges" against him, let up for a period and give heed to Pearson, whose case is more pressing. The anti-Higgins case is more clamorous for the reappointment of Pearson, as postmaster of New York. And yet as early as March 24, 1888, Attorney General Brewster reported, upon an investigation of the case, that Pearson was interested with several private companies in New York city engaged in delivering different classes of mail matter in violation of section 3,982, revised statutes; that "he is guilty of gross offense against the law by being in any way connected with such company, and that his first offense is seriously aggravated by two facts: First, in advising the violators of the law how to evade it; second, because when called upon in an official manner to give the names of all companies who were violating the law in this respect he failed to report all the companies named in the complaints, suppressing carefully the name of the company that he was connected with, and that he is guilty of a crime under the law, and that he merits immediate and prompt punishment, and accordingly unite with me in recommending his immediate dismissal." If Higgins must go, shall Pearson stay? If so, why so?
