THE Lancaster Intelligencer.

LANCASTER, MARCH 28, 1885.

Let Them Telp.

Secretary of the Interior Lamar is now being subjected to very much the same sort of clamor that was raised against him some years ago, when he attracted such wide and honorable attention by his memorable eloquent oration upon the death of Charles Sumner.

Now Mr. Lamar has offended another lot of narrow-minded people. Having had notice of the death of Jacob Thompson, an ex-secretary of the Interior, he made the usual order closing the Interior department out of respect to the memory of one who had the head of his department from 1857 to 1861.

Mr. Lamar quietly answers this affectionate notice of super-lorality by pointing to the fact that when he came into his department he found upon the wall of his room a portrait of Thompson, side by side, with one of that canonized Republican, the late Zachary Chandler, deceased.

It and complete as the answer is, it was scarcely needed. The intelligence of the country pays no heed to the barkers who are forever yelping over the "traitors" of the South.

A Tongue Tied Woman.

All law-respecting and law-abiding people will be rejoiced, of course, to learn that the release of Becky Jones, the contumacious woman witness in New York, from her imprisonment for contempt of court, in refusing to testify, is made purely on technical grounds.

EDWARD A. TROTT, says that the country's silver is not as valuable as its eggs. PATTI likes "smoked beef and beer." Well, they make a very good lunch.

CONGRESSMAN ELBERT RICHARDSON, of Tennessee, stands seven feet in his stockings. N. H. ELDRIDGE, congressman from the second district of Michigan is dangerously ill at his home in Adrian.

THOMAS W. PALMER, who has given some study to the Mormon question deprecatingly declares his belief that before long the Mormon church will renounce polygamy in order to get Utah admitted into the Union as a state.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' POEM. A correspondent of the INTELLIGENCER, "G. W. H.," the other day recalled some scattered stanzas of a poem written by John Quincy Adams, long after he had retired from the presidency of the United States.

The law is right, no doubt; its administrators ought to execute it. But the average popular acclaim is "Hail! Becky Jones, the woman who can hold her tongue."

Mr. CHRISTOPHER L. MAGEE is reported to be for the Bullitt bill, against the Bullitt bill, and indifferent to the Bullitt bill. The truth is that Mr. Magee is for Mr. Magee.

A GOOD SAMPLE of an absurd will is that of Aaron Somers, of Bridgeport, near New York, who bequeathed his estate of $10,000 to the "Democratic widows" of that town.

INDIANA, New Jersey and Connecticut were potent factors in Cleveland's election. In what sweet accord with the eternal fitness of things would be the naming of three big men from these states to some of the choice posts yet at the president's disposal!

A NEW YORK German, whose wife had deserted him, found himself in such reduced circumstances that he was unable to provide for his eleven-year-old daughter. He succeeded in placing her in an orphan asylum, but hearing that he could sell the child at a good price, he put an advertisement in a city paper offering her for sale.

BRUNETTES are now declared to be "more quick-tempered than blondes"; a solemn protest is entered against the enhancing of this temporary advantage in fashion's capricious circles that brunettes now enjoy by a slander on her fairer-haired sister.

MISS KATE FIELD, who has given some study to the Mormon question deprecatingly declares her belief that before long the Mormon church will renounce polygamy in order to get Utah admitted into the Union as a state.

THE WANTS OF MAN. The poem to which reference has been made, and which was written under the circumstances related by Mr. Westlake is as follows:

"Man wants but little here below Nor wants that little long. 'Tis not with us exactly so, But 'tis no less the case with you. My wants are many, and it told Would master many a score, And were such with a mint of gold, I still should long for more."

What I first I want is daily bread, And canvas-shoes and wine; And all the realm of nature spread Before me in its various kind. Four courses scarcely can provide My appetite to quell, With four choice courses from France, beside, To dress my dinner for my life."

What next I want, at heavy cost, In elegant attire— Black satin furs, for winter's frock, With white and blue for summer's wear, And Cashmere shawls, and Brussels lace My bosom's front to deck, And diamond rings my hands to grace, To dress my dinner for my life."

I want a garden and a park, My dwelling to surround— A thousand acres (beside the mark), With walls and towers round— Where flocks may range and herds may low, And kids and lambskin play, And flowers and its mingled glow, All Eden to display."

Of silver and of gold, Of twenty pounds in weight, With crystals and with diamonds, Plates, dishes—all the same; And porcelain vases, with the stamp Of Serres, Angouleme.

And napies, of fat glossy stain, Must form my chamber doors, And carpets of the Wilton grain Must cover all my floors; My walls, with tapestry bedecked, Must never be outdone; And damask curtains must protect Their colors from the sun."

I want, (who does not want?) a wife To love and cherish me, To soothe all the woes of life, And all its joys to share. Of temper sweet, of yielding will, With all my faults to love me still, With sentiment refined."

And when my bosom's darling sings, With melody divine, A peal of many strings Must with her voice combine. A piano, exquisitely wrought, Must open to my ears, That all my daughters may be taught To walk the stranger's stairs."

I want a kind and tender heart For others to bestow, And bosom armed with steel, To bear divine chastisement's rod; My mind to my own pleasure, Submission to the will of God, With charity to man."

I want the genius to conceive, The talents to express them, Designs, the virtuous to retrieve, The virtuous to uphold; Inventive power, combining skill, A persevering and untiring will, Of human hearts to mould the will, And reach from pole to pole."

I want the seals of power and place, The ensigns of command, Charged by the people with authority, To rule my native land. No crown, nor sceptre would I ask, But from my country's hand, By day, by night, to ply the task, Her cup of bliss to fill."

I want the voice of honest praise To follow me behind, And be thought in future days The friend of human kind; That after ages, as they rise, Existing may proclaim, In choral anthems to the skies, Their blessings on my name."

These are the wants of mortal man; I cannot want them long, For life itself is but a span, And earthly bliss a snare, My last great want, absorbing all, Is, when beneath the sod, In choral anthems to the skies, The mercy of my God."

And oh! while circles in my veins Of life the purple stream, And yet a fragment still remains Of nature's transient dream, My soul, in humble hope unscar'd, Forget not thou to pray, That this thy way may be prepared To meet the Judgment Day."

Complicated Troubles. Sometimes they are brought on suddenly by accident or straggling disaster. Generally they steal on without notice, the result of anxiety, over-work, hard study and a close devotion to business. Life loses its sparkle and every act becomes a burden.
