She remained silent and thoughtful for a moment, and then seemed to comprehend it at once. She told me that a sister of hers, an only one, to whom her fither was devotedly attached, died hear four months previously; that her father had never yet recovered from the shock of her death. He had often expressed the most earnest wish for a portrait of her; indeed, it was his one thought; and she hoped, if something of the kind could be done, it would improve his health. Here she hestated, stammered and burst into tears. After awhile she continued: "It is no use, hiding from you what you must be very soon be aware of. Papa is msane—he has been so ever since dear Caroline was buried. He says he is always seeing dear Caroline, and he is subject to fearful delusions. The doctor says he cannot tell how much worse he may be, and that everything dangerous, like knives or razors, is to be kept out of his reach. It was necessary you should not see him again this evening, as he was unable to converse properly, and I fear the same may be the case to-morrow; but perhaps you can stay over Sunday, and I may be able to assist you in doing what he wishes. I asked whether they had any materials for making a likeness—a photograph, a sketch or anything else for me to go from. "No, they had nothing." "Could she describe her clearly?" She thought she could, and there was a print that was very much like her, but she had mislaid it. I mentioned that with clearly?" She thought she could, and there was a print that was very much like her, but she had mislaid it. I mentioned that with such disadvantages and in such an absence of materials I did not anticipate a very satisfactory result. I had painted portraits under such circumstances, but their success much depended upon the powers of description of the persons who were to assist me by their recollection; in some instances I had attained a certain amount of success, but in most the result was quite a failure. The medical attendant came, but I did not see him. I learned, however, that he ordered a strict watch to be kept on his patient till he

him. I learned, however, that he ordered a strict watch to be kept on his patient till he came again the next morning. Seeing the state of things, and how much the little lady had to attend to, I retired early to bed. The next morning I heard that her father was decidedly better; he had inquired carnestly, on waking, whether I was really in the house, and at breakfast time he sent down to say that he hoped nothing would prevent my making an attempt at the portrait immediately, and he expected to be able to see me in the course of the day.

Directly after breakfast I set to work, aided by such description as the sister could give by such description as the sister could give by such description as the sister could give me. I tried again and again, but without success, or, indeed, the least prospect of it. The features, I was told, were separately like, but the expression was not. I toiled on the greater part of the day, with no better result. The different studies I made were taken up to the invalid, but the same an-swer was always returned—no resemblance.

I had exerted myself to the utmost, and in fact, was not a little fatigued by so doing—a circumstance that the little lady evidently noticed, as she expressed herself most grate-ful for the interest she could see I took in the matter and referred the unsuccessful result entirely to her want of powers of descrip-

She also said it was so provoking! she had a print—a portrait of a lady, that was so like, but it had gone—she had missed it from her book for three weeks past. It was the more disappointing, as she was sure it would have disappointing, as she was sure it would have been of great assistance. I asked if she could tell me who the print was of, as, if I knew, I could easily procure one in London. She answered Lady M. A. Immediately the name was uttered the whole scene of the lady of the railway carriage presented itself to me. I had my sketch-book in my portmanteau up stairs, and, by a fortunate chance, fixed in it was the print in question, with the two pencil sketches. I instantly brought them down and showed them to Maria Lute. She looked at them for a moment, turned her eyes full upon me, and said slowly and with something of fear in her manner, "Where did you get these?" Then quicker, and without waiting for my answer, "Let me take them instantly to papa." She was away ten minutes or more; when she returned her father came with her. He did not wait for salutations, but said, in a tone and manner I had not observed in him before, "I was right not observed in him before, "I was right all the time; it was you that I saw with her, and these sketches are from her and from no one else. I value them more than all my possessions, except this dear child." The daughter also assured me that the print I had brought to the house must be the one taken from the book about three weeks before, in proof of which she pointed out to me the gum marks at the back, which exactly corrections to the blank leaf responded with those left on the blank leaf. From the moment the father saw these sketches his mental health returned.

I was not allowed to touch either of the pencil drawings in the sketch-book, as it was leared I might injure them, but an oil picture from them was commenced immediately the father sitting by me hour after hour di-recting my touches, conversing rationally and indeed cheerfully while he did so. He avoided direct reference to his delusions, but from time to time led the conversation to the manner in which I had originally obtained the sketches. The doctor came in the evening and, after extelling the particular treat-ment he had adopted, pronounced his patient decidedly, and he believed permanently, improved.

The next day being Sunday, we all went to church; the father for the first time since his bereavement. During a walk which he took with me after luncheon he again approached the subject of the sketches, and after some seeming hesitation as to whether he should confide in me or not, he said: "Your writing to me by name from the inn at Lichfield was one of those inexplicable circumstances that I suppose it is impossible to clear up. I knew those above me considered my intellect was disordered, and that I spoke incoherently, it was only because I saw things that they did not. Since her death I know with a certainty, that nothing will ever disturb, that at different times I have been in the actual and visible presence of my daughter that is gone—oftener indeed, just after her death than latterly. Of the many times that this has latterly, I distinctly remember once seeing her in a railway carriage speaking to a per-

LETTER FROM A PEMALE PHYSICIAN.

My specialty is diseases of women and chil-ren. I like Allege's Perous Plasters because they are so quick and efficient, and never irri-tate or mark the tenderest skin I have found them most useful in my practice, and they are certainly the best plasters now made. To illustrate: my son of ten years of age took a bad Cold and coughed incessantly; no medicine would relieve him; after some twelve hours I applied Allecce's Ponors Plaster to his throat and upper chest. The cough ceased entirely in an hour, and the next day the boy was well.

I told the case to a gentleman who suffered in the same way; he, too, was cured in twenty-four hours of his cough by ALLCOCK'S POSOUS PLAS-

TERS. Another patient suffered from pain in the small of the back-Alleock's Perous Plaster Breaking Up.

On every hand we see gvidences that winter is breaking up, and will soon have to yield to the advancing spring. It is a most important question amongst scientific men what causes the general feeling of debility and issettude so prevalent in this region. White some regard it as the result of confinement and juaction, others suppose it to be caused by the decay of vegetables and animal debris which has necumulated during the whiter. What is especially needed at this time, however, is something to overcome these influences. It is too late to talk about the causes; what is the cause? Thousands of persons all over the country who have given Kidney-Wort a faithful trial are ready to testify that no other remedy is equal to it for cleaning the system, purifying the blood, regulating the bowels, and curing all kidney and liver diseases. It is in fact the king of all spring medicines.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the exeruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it: there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians in the United States. Sold everywhere. 25 cents a bottle.
