THE LIGHTS O' LONDON.

Performance at the Opera House-A Stirring Fight in the Gallery.

A large audience groeted Shook & Collier's Lights o'London'' in Fulton opera house at evening. This well known spectacular nelodrama has been given here before, and melodrama has been given here before, and has proved to be quite a favorite with local theatre-goers. It deals with the fortunes of Harold Armytage who had been cast off by his faher, and Clifford Armytage, who by a skillful robbery manages to get possession of Harold's heritage. The story is rather clev? erly told, but much of the plot seems to be accificed to the exigencies of the stage situa-tions. In other words the dialogue often seems to be made to fit the scenery. The scenery carried by the company is among the finest ever shown here.

The parts were taken capably by the any last evening and the audience was very the applause of the audience them. There was quite a row in the gallery ing the performance, and the facts as isveloped at the hearing before Alderman Fordney this morning were about as fol-lows: A boy named Julius Lechler was meating a disturbance and Special Officer Harry Groff took hold of him to put him out of the hall. Lechler re-disted, and in the scuffle Groff fell Jacob Baumgardner, William Overly and three other boys jumped on and began pounding him. Officers Olt, Musketnuss and Barnhold happened to be near, took a hand in the row, and the belligerent boys spent the night in the station house.
