

George P. Morris in a letter to a friend, dated New York, February 1, 1837, gave in substance the following account of how he came to write the poem by which he is best known: Riding out of town a few days mince, in company with a friend, and old gen-leman, he invited me to turn down a little, romantic woodland puss, not far from Bloom-ingdale. "Your object?" inquired I. "Merely to look once more at an old tree planted by my grandfather long 'efore I was born, un-der which I used to play when a boy, and where my sisters played with mo. There I often listened to the good advice of my pa-rents. Father, mother, sisters—all are gono, nothing but the old tree eremaining." And a paleness overspread his fine countenance, and tears came to his eyes. After a moment's don't know how it is ; I never ride out ree should not be cut. These circums ony toit, and can cheerfully recom pure and pleasant Tonic and Appetizer. api8-lyd&w W&S

Half the diseases of the human family spring com a disordered stomach, and may be preed by invigorating and toning that abused he kidneys, the intestines, the muscles, the lig nts, the bones, the nerves, the integument

はい意味いいいない。素味いい、強いいいという