A talegram to relatives in this city Wednesday afternoon brought the shocking news of the drowning of Mrs. Rebecca Reynolds, widow of Admiral Wm. Reynolds, at Fortress Monroe, Va., on Wednesday noon. From the meagre particulars now attainable it appears that Mrs. Reynolds together with a party consisting of her niece, Miss Rebecca Krug, Miss Knowlton, of Washington, Mrs. Clarence D. Senseman, another niece, of Philadelphia, and a baby two months old, set out from Hampton in a flat-bottomed boat, rowed by two negroes, to visit Old Point Comfort. The wind was blowing hard and a high sea was running at the time and the boat was capsised within one hundred and fifty feet of the beach. All the members of the party were rescued, but Mrs. Reynolds died shortly after from exhaustion.

The deceased was in her sixty-ninth year and was the daughter of George H. Krug, an old-time Lancaster tanner, whose residence and tannery occupied the site of the present Stevens house. In the old stone house at the corner of Prince and West King streets the subject of this sketch was born. She was married to Admiral William Reynolds, son of the late John Reynolds, of this city, and brother of General John F. Keynolds, who fell at Gettysburg, and General James L. Reynolds, who died in Lancaster a few years ago. In company with her husband she traveled through many countries of the East and through Europe. She was with her husband when he was stationed at Honolulu in the Sandwich Islands, in the service of the government.

oned at Honolulu in the Sandwich stationed at Honolulu in the Sandwich Islands, in the service of the government, and also accompanied him on his flag ship, the Tennessee, when he was in command of the East India squadron. This cruise lasted from 1875 to 1877, and before it was ended failing health compelled Admiral Reynolds to give up a life at sea. His wife and himself then came to Lancaster on a brief visit, finally going to Washington, which became their after residence.

after residence.
Since the death of Admiral Reynolds in November, 1879, Mrs. Reynolds has lived in Washington, frequently visiting Fortress Monroe, the scene of her tragic death. Having no children of her own, she reared from a tender age two children of her brother, John C. Krug, Miss Rébecca, who was with her at the time of her death, and Frederick Krug, now a lieutenant in the army stationed in Oregon. The Admiral Reynolds Post 405, G. A. R., of this city, was named in honor of her dead husband, and she but lately gave the organization some valuable relics of the admiral.

The remains will be brought to Lancaster and interment will be made by the side of her dead husband, in the family lot, in the Lancaster cemetery. There will be services at the Moravian church, of which creed the decessed was a devout follower.

vania Legislation to Prevent Freight Pennsylvania Legislation to Prevent Freight Discrimination.

After a struggle of weeks the Pennsylvania House of Representatives on Thursday, by a vote of 108 to 65, adopted an amendment to the bill prohibiting discrimination on freights, imposing a fine not exceeding $5,000 on any person convicted of violating the law. The clauses requiring publicity of freight rates and providing imprisonment for offenders were rejected by a decisive vote. A section providing treble damages for injuries sustained by shippers through violations of the law is retained. The members from the large counties of Philadelphia and Allegheny were almost solidly arrayed against the bill in all its features.

The Senate judiciary committee has decided to report favorably the bill from which the House bill took its shape, with the imprisonment and publicity of rates clauses retained. The Pennsylvania railroad company is fighting this species of legislation very vigorously.

MYERS DID NOT COME TO TIME.

ohn Trewitz Has a Walk-Over in the Great ntest of Lungs, Lips, Hands and Feet. Notwithstanding the frightful weather of last evening, there was a very large audience present at the Mænnerchor rink. Many were no doubt attracted by the announce-ment that a musical contest would take place between John Trewitz,of this city, and E. E. Myers, of Marietta. Long before 8 o'clock the floor was crowded with skaters and it remained thronged until 9 o'clock, when the bell was rung and Manager Kreider an-nounced that Mr. Myers had falled to put in an appearance as yet and the audience would be entertained and the audience would be entertained for a short time by Mr. Trewitz and his sister Sue. The former played on eighteen different instruments, in wonderful style. He certainly is an artist and deserves the success which has attended him. Miss Trewitz accompanied her brother on the piano. At the close it was found that Mr. Myers was not present, whereupon Mr. Trewitz called Mr. Beyser from the audience to act as his judge and he then proceeded to fulfil his part of the contest. He played a number of difficult pieces on the organ and harmonica, at the same time, and at the close was declared the winner and was awarded the gold medal, which was very pretty.

From the prologue until the curtain fell on the last act, the spectators looked upon a succession of fine scenes and continuity of good acting. The spectacular features of the entertainment reach their best in the third and fourth acts, where the ice scenery is very effective, and the situations thrilling in the extreme. Mr. Collier, as Christian Christianson, is the star of the piece; but he is well supported by a strong company, and Miss Wayland as Priscilla Sefton, Miss Hudson as Kate, and Mr. Bruno as Jabez Greene, the shepherd, especially deserve praise.

Oak Hall enters a twenty-fifth ear of history to-day. on the 18th of April, 1881, its doors were first opened for business, and then began the long struggle for success that now finds expression in the various enterprises of the Wanamaker Organization. We won't bore you with autobiography. Only this: Oak Hall never was younger nor brighter nor more pushing than now. The fact that we are here, the originators of progress and reform in the Clothing Trade, and doing the greatest Relait Clothing business of any house in America; from a single store, proves our claim to your continued confidence.
