General John D. Imboden, whose battery bore the brunt of the artillery charge at Bull Run, relates some of the incidents of the battle in the May Century, from which we take the following:

"Several other batteries soon came into "Several other batteries soon came into line, so that by the time Griffin and Ricketts were in position near the Henry house we had, as I now remember, twenty-six fresh guns ready for them.

"The fighting was renewed, and was terrific. Jackson ordered me to go from battery to battery and see that the guns were properly almod and the fuses cut the right length.
This was the work of but a few minutes. On aimed and the fuses cut the right length. This was the work of but a few minutes. On returning to the left of the line of guns I stepped to ask General Jackson's permission to rejoin my battery. The fight was just then het enough to make him feel well. His eyes fairly blazed. He had a way of throwing up his left hand with the open palm towards the person he was addressing. He threw up his hand as he told me to go. The air was full of flying missiles, and as he spoke he jerked down his hand, and I saw the blood streaming from it. I exclaimed, 'general, you are wounded.' He replied, as he drew a handkerchief from his breast pocket and began to bind it up, 'Only a scratch—a mere scratch,' and he galloped away along his line.

"General Jackson's wound, received under

"General Jackson's wound, received under the circumstances I have described, became very serious when inflammation set in. On hearing, three days after the fight, that he was suffering with it, I rode to his quarters, was suffering with it, I rode to his quarters, in a little farm house near Centreville. Although it was barely sunrise, he was out under the trees, bathing the hand with spring water. It was much swollen and very painful, but he bore himself stoically. His wife and baby had arrived the night before. His little daughter Julia was still in long dresses, and I remember tossing her, to her great delight, while breakfast was being made ready on a rude table under the trees. Of course, the battle was the only topic discussed at breakfast. I remarked in Mrs. Jackson's hearing, 'general, how is it that cussed at breakfast. I remarked in Mrs. Jackson's hearing, 'general, how is it that you can keep so cool and appear so utterly insensible to danger in such a storm of shell and bullets as rained about you when your hand was hit? He instantly became grave and reverential in his manner, and answered in a low tone of great earnestness: 'Captain, my religious belief teaches me to feel as safe in battle as in bed. God has fixed the time for my death. I do not concern myself about that, but to be always ready no matter when it may overtake me.' He added, after a pause, looking me full in the face: 'Captain, that is the way all men should live, and then all men would be equally brave.'"

Alternately Shaken and Scorched.

By the paroxysms of chills and fever, the wretched sufferer for whom quinine has been prescribed, essays in vain to exterminate the dreadful disease with that hurtful palliative, which at best only miligates the violence of the Ats, and eventually proves highly injurious to the system. In order to effect athorough cure of malarial fever, whether internittent or re-mittent, or to reader the system impregnable to its attacks, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters should be used daily. That this medicine is a search-ing cradicant of diseases generated by miasma, and a reliable safeguard against them, is a fact so widely recognized in this and other countries that to adduce evidence in support of it is un-necessary; but were it either essential or desirnecessary; but were it either essential or desiable to do so, it may well be supposed that from the testimony corroborative of its claims, which has been accumulating during the last twenty five years and over, sufficient proofs might be gathered to convince the most inveterate skep CHRONIC COSTIVENESS CURED BY BRAN DRETH'S PILLS, BULLY BUENO MILLS, ABIZONA TER.

For the last two years I have been greatly troubled with costiveness, often ten or twelve days clapsing withous any movement of my bowels. I have tried many remedies, but none with success, until I used your VEGETABLE PILLS—taking three pills and increasing one each night until I took nine, then decreasing one each night. Since then my bowels have continued regular cach day, and my beadache, sour stomach and general institude have left me, and I feel like another men—which is entirely owing to your pills—and I would not be without them in this new country.
