This was a scire facias on a mechanics' lien to recover $322,34 for lumber iurnished for a building for Shiftner near Mastersonville. From the testimony of plaintiffs it appears that some time after the building was erected Shiftner transforred the same to Masterson was to pay the mechanics' lien above mention, which he refused to do. At the conclusion of the plaintiffs' testimony a motion was made for a non-suit on the property, and as a consequence the mechanic's lien above mention, which he refused to do. At the conclusion of the plaintiffs' testimony a motion was made for a non-suit on the ground that Shiftner that no title to the property, and as a consequence the mechanic's lien must fall. The motion was argued at length, and the court this morning refused to grant the non-suit. The defense examined only one witness, and the case was then submitted to the jury to ind for the plaintiff for $468.43, the full amount of their claim with interest. Wilmer Moore vs. Thomas Towson, appeal by defendant from the judgment of Justice John C. Lewis. The parties to this suit reside in Fulton township, and there are a large number of witnesses in attendance. The facts as developed by the plaintiffs witnesses are as follows: On the 22d of March, 1883, Towson had a public sale and among the stock disposed of was a mare. She was guaranteed to be sound and it was said would work anywhere except in the lead. Moore paid $199.50 for the mare and took her home. On the next day he hitched her to a vehicle and she balked, plunged and kicked. A few days afterward he again kicked and he could do nothing with her. He then went to Towson and asked him to take the mare back, as she was not as represented. Towson declined to do ahead of the mail, came in it would have been impossible NOTICE. tions between the pupils of the advanced primary schools of the several sections of the ily, and they were productive of much good. The plan is for the teacher to select six pupils and to have the examination of the repre sentatives of four five schools in a school room designated. Yesterday afternoon the first of these examinations was held in the room of Miss Shirk, in the Lemon street school building The branches in which the school building The branches in which the children are examined are reading, spelling and writing. For the reading test a daily paper of the date on which the examination is held is used. The examinations are begun at 430 in the afternon. Yesterday the New Bra was used. This afternoon the INTER-LIGENCER will be used, and at all the exam-ingtions the scholar is privileged to select the Area was used. This interficient and it the examinations the scholar is privileged to select the article he or she desires to read. After the reading test each of the children is given a picture cut from a book or paper, and from his picture the child is expected to write a composition. These compositions show the scholar's penmanship and spelling.
 The pupils selected for yesterday's competitive examination were as follows:
 Miss Shirk's school—Willie Barnhold, Dan Myers, Harvey Houseal, Bertha Marahali, Alice Byrne and Mars Cogley.
 Miss Holbrook's school—Frank Musser, David McNeal, Harry O. Conn, Stella Oster, Bertha Fatterson and Vinnie Kauffman.
 Miss Smith's New street school—Charles Marion, Fred. Goos, Augustus Smith, Harry Stroun and Grant Johnson.
 All of the young folks acquitted themselves well and reflected great credit on their instructors.

THE SMALL BOY DISAPPOINTED.

Five Hundred Urching Making Things Lively in Centre Square, It has been customary with almost every ircus that has visited this town for years past to send an agent ahead to give a stereoptican exhibition several evenings before the "big day." The large shows are trying to econo nize this season and Barnum has done away with the lantern. The small boy has had no notice of this, however, and he is determined to see large pictures thrown upon the front of the INTELLIGENCER building. For several evenings past a great many little fellows have gathered in Centre Square where they waited patiently until 9 o'clock and even inter, only to be disappointed. Last night they thought the show would certainly come they thought the show would certainly come off, and by S o'clock the square was filled with urchins of all sizes, ages and conditions. They kept yelling and cutting all kinds of capers until a late hour, when they again exitered and went home disgusted with the dircus. A great deal of amusement was created by their antics and the old people looked on in amazement. One source of amusement that the boys indulged in is very dangerous and the noble chief of police should stop it. They persist in "sailing" pieces of heavy card board at each other, and last even-ing several persons were hurt by being struck in the face. The gang will no doubt be on hand again this evening to see the ex-hibition.

"The Oriflamme."

"The Oriflamme." Vol. 111 of this sprightly publication, of the junior class of F. & M. college for 1885, is out. It is a handsome book of 130 pages, alled with interesting matter, prepared by a competent editorial corps headed by Geo. B. Walbert. It is profusely illustrated, the frontispicce being a steel engraving por-trait of Prof. Wm. M. Nevin, with his characteristic autograph. Class histories, rostors of college societies and clubs, poetry and humor of all sorts, with apt woodcut, illustrate every phase of college haw, life light and learning in The Oriflamme.

The Circus To-morrow. The great Barnam Circus will be here to mor-row morning bright and early, and the street parade will take place about 11 o'clock. The New York papers speak highly of the show, and the following are some of the opinions: "The entertainments is certainly a wonderfully varied and interesting one. What with a stage and three rings, in all of which the exhibitions were going on at one and the same time, there was a bewildering embarrassment of riches, and the observer feit that something more than the normal allowance of eyes was necessary in order not to miss anything.
