Charles Reisinger Meets a Terrible Fate afternoon, as Columbia local engine 660, was drawing some cars out of the Marietta station siding, Charles Reisinger jumped upon an empty coal car. While still standing upon the step he was struck upon the shoulder by the stock tramway and thrown under the cars. The train passed directly over his head, completely severing it from his body and Manor Throws Up the Sponge. Mr. John S. Mann, the great Manor township farmer, visited the farms of Mr. B. J. McGrann, near this city, on Monday, and among the many objects of interest which he saw there, Mr. McGrann's stable of fat steers saw there Mr. McGrann's stable of fat steers most delighted him. For Mr. Mann is a judge of fat cattle. Not only is he a most extensive stock-feeder himself, but he has made it a point of late years to visit many of the best farms in the county. He says unhesitatingly that he has never seen cattle so fat in one feeding as the eleven head which Mr. McGrann bought from George Styer last fall and has fattened during the season. They and it is estimated that some of them now will drawnearly a ton. Ed. Yohn has bough them, but they will remain in the stalls a little longer.
