What Did It In Michigan,

From the Detroit News (Ind.).

The total vote in Michigan on judge of the supreme court was 307,580. This is an extriordinarily heavy vote, and completely dissipates the twaddle to the effect that Cooley's defeat is due to apathy in the Republican ranks, and to abstention from Republican ranks, and to abstention round voting. There was no apathy. On the contrary, the people were never before so thoroughly aroused. With one exception it was the heaviest vote ever east in this contract a state election, even when the government. so thoroughly aroused. With one exception it was the heaviest vote ever cast in this state at a state election, even when the governorship and legislature were involved. The truth is that the people were thoroughly aroused by an issue most vital to their dearest interests, and having only an indirect and remote relation to party questions and party rivalry. The charge, presented to the people of Michigan by the Evening News that for many years past the supreme court had been falling into the hands of the railroads and other great moneyed corporations, accompanied by overwhelming proof, and that Mr. Justice Cooley's opinions were the chief cause of it, was what stirred the voters of Michigan as they were never stirred before, and brought them to the polls in such unusual numbers. Mr. Cooley was tried on that charge by the intelligent people of this great common wealth, and was convicted by such a vote as was never cast against a judicial candidate before.

He Gave His Reasons Promptly.

"I am afraid," replied the editor, as he looked it over, "that it will not meet with the approbation of my readers,"
"No? Why not?"
"Because it will never have a chance."

position to observe what is daily and nightly transpiring on the streets of Lancaster, that never were there so many young girls known to be throwing themselves in the way of temptation to ruin as at the present time. Young men of the Crowley type loaf on the street corners, especially on Sunday nights, for no other apparent purpose than to "flirt" with young girls who are silly enough to give them encouragement by look or gesture, and there are scores of that class who do so without intending or suspecting any harm to themselves. But there is dan-ger in it, and to this cause can be traced a large majority of the unhappy unions and worse which have brought sorrow to many a happy household.

It is difficult to say who are most culpable, the fathers and mothers who so lightly regard their parental obligations, or the police who tolerate the gaping crowds of young men who congregate on the street corners to stare at the passing girls, and who would be quickly made to "move on" by the police of any other city.
