rne Best Game of the Season in Lancaster.

News From the Field. The best and shortest game played this season by the Lancaster was the one with Jersey City at McGrann's park Wednesday afternoon, when the clubs met for the third time. Lancaster put in Smith to pitch and the Jerseymen found less trouble in hitting him than on Monday. He was well backed up by Oldfield. Hughes pitched a good game for the strangers, and although the Lancas-ters hit him very hard in Jersey City they were not so fortunate yesterday. The field-picked up in front of E. D. North's law office, on North Duke street, a young seven-teen-year-old locust, which had been no doubt deposited thereatoouts by his parents seventeen years ago, and which had beard from the naturalists that this was the year for him to come out. He was introduced by Mr. Eby to that other appreciative naturalist, Mr. C. A. Locher, who steered him to the INTELLI-GENCER office where he made himself quite at home. He is about double the size of an oyster crab, of a rich leather color, and took a nap this afternoon, lying on his back, in a pill box. Being subjected to an interview, he reports that a great many of his kind are on the way to the surface and may be expected early in June. His attention having been directed to a recent statement by J. Williams Thorne in the Lancaster Inquirer, to the effect that there were only two broods of the cicada in these parts, he

Such a nominee would have no friends to reward nor enemies to punish and from another district to try cases in which he is interested, which would be a saving of money in the end. The name of Simon P. Eby, a member of the Lancaster bar and law partner of Mr. Ellmaker, has been sug-gested. He is known to some members of the bar for an argument before Judge Wood-ward about 1869. There are other good men who could be taken from other adjoining counties who would be willing to accept the position.
