COL. M'CLURE'S ADDRESS. The event of the evening that had been ialy awaited was the address by Col. A. anxiously awaited was the address by Col. A. K. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, who was introduced by W. B. Given, esq. He spoke for a half hour in a very interesting and practical manner upon the relations of education and industry. Very deftly weaving together the threads of thought in the different essays and gracefully compliment-ing the efforts of all the graduates, Col. McC. went on to impress upon his audience the supreme necessity of supplementing educa-tion with industry if it would be made effective. To wars of ambition and degeneracy resulting from indolence was due the degradation of once powerful nations, and this process of decay, from like causes, is going on all the time in states, families and communities. Webster's orations, Brougham's speeches, Gray's "Elegy," and all the great masterpieces of literature and art were the product of industry. He deprecated the increasing tendency of young deprecated the increasing tendency of young people to delude themselves with the idea people to define themselves with the idea that wealth or education would bring success without industry. The home is the place to cultivate this habit of well-directed assiduous labor, and the mother must be the great in-without industry. The home is the place to cultivate this habit of well-directed assiduous labor, and the mother must be the great mstructor. Too many parents, who have risen to affluence by their own industry, educate their children to shirk it. The result is a race of "dudes," "loaters," "mashers" and the like, who were caricatured by the speaker. The need of the day is men trained to industry. Good mechanics always command good wages. Splendid positions are waiting for fit men to fill them. Men worth $5,000 are never without a job that pays that. An advertisement for a ten-dollara-week clerk gets hundreds of answers, and the respondents are hardly fit even for such a place; but good men are wanted everywhere at higher prices and cannot be had. In Philadelphia, or New York, from Boston to San Francisco there are openings everywhere for those who are not afraid to grapple with great tasks, and who are fit to meet the responsibilities of their places. In conclusion Col. McClure extolled the common school system, hoped for its further improvement and percentify, but word in the provement and perpetuity, but arged in the home and school room the great lesson of ceaseless toil and sturdy labor with head and nands. The address was closely listened to, freds. The address was closely listened to, fro-mily applauded and met with general apas a wholesome, sensible talk to parents and children.

The report that Thomas Dunnon, a C. & P. D. R. R. brakeman, had been killed while coupling cars yesterday is untrue. He is alive and in good health. On June 4th Hi Henry's minstrels will

Your correspondent, yesterday, visited Washington borough and gleaned the following particulars of Tuesday's accident. Twenty-five years ago the well at which the accident occurred was abandoned, but for conve-nience sake, Rev. A. H. Kauffman, on whose nience sake, Rev. A. H. Kauffman, on whose property it is situated, determined to have it cleaned and repaired. Frederick Myers on Monday asked for the job, but Mr. Kauffman at first hesitated, as Mr. Myers was old and infirm; but upon receiving the assurance that the work would be properly done, he finally gave his consent. It is customary with well-diggers to test the foundation of a well bypicking outsmall stones from the sides. This Myers did when lowered, and he found the well unsafe, and called to Mr. Kauffman to be drawn up. While doing this the cave-in occurred, beginning at the bottom, and before Myers had been hoisted six feet from the bottom, he was caught by the falling earth and stones and drawn backwards.

Several attempts were made to extract his body, and although the accident happened on Several attempts were made to extract his body, and although the accident happened on Tuesday at noon, Myers' remains were not recovered until Wednesday at noon. The only wound found upon him was a slight gash in his head. A coroner's inquest was held, and "met death by suffocation" was the verdict rendered by the jury. A. J. Musser, of Columbia, took charge of the remains, and interred them yesterday afternoon in the Washington cemetery.

An Unfounded Rumor.

A ramor was on the street about noon today that Daniel Logan, the well known dealer of this city, was killed at Harrg this morning. A FIELD FIGHT.

The Slates Made Up for the Local Contest Be-tween Quay and McDevitt. The local politicians have been busy ever since Monday trying to arrange slates for the contest for state delegates; and it is now altogether certain that there will be a square stand-up fight here between the friends of Quay and McDevitt. Both understand very well that if Quay beats McDevitt here, the contest is virtually over, so far at the latter is oncerned. Hence, what at one time promised to be a dull primary, now bids fair to be an exciting can case. The New Era faction, with Mentzer, McMellen, Shirk and others, are for Quay: the Examiner, with J. Hay Brown, B. F. Eshleman, Sensenig & Co., are

In this city for representative delegate the contest is between John D. Skiles, who runs in the McDevitt interest, and J. W. B. Bausman, who is the Quay candidate.

In the lower end senatorial district the McDevitt people back J. Hay Brown, esq., and the Quay forces run Wm. M. Slaymaker.

Stober and C. A. Shaffner for Quay. Some of these contests are really indicated by the same of these contests are really indicated. are preliminary to larger affairs next year.

REPUBLICAN KU-KLUX.

"Offensive Partisan" Office-Holders Scare Democratic Negro. About a week ago a colored man from Virginia named Joseph Wooden, a Demo crat, was appointed on the watch force of the treasury department. All the rest of the force are Republicans who have been, as a rule, more violent partisans than if they received ten times the salary they did. They objected very seriously to the appointment of Wooden, giving as a rea son that he had not been a soldier, but Sec retary Manning ordered the appointment to be made. Wooden was given a post down under the sub-basement, where there is no more necessity for a watchman than there would be for one on the top of the flagstaff. He was then reminded ten times in an bour that the last man who had been posted down there had committed suicide, had been half crazy for ten years. In an hour Wooden grew nervous, and before hour Wooden grew nervous, and before midnight, when the hour for his relief arrived he came up stairs and he said he seen something like a ghost. The moment the other watchmen saw that he was frightened they began to take advantage of it. After Wooden's club and revolver were taken from him, several ghosts appeared in the sub-basement. One of the ghosts had three or four empty tomato cans tied to his legs. When Wooden saw the ghost he uttered a series of yells, that could be heard, several squares distant. The old negro—he is about forty three years of age—broke down com pletely. He was sent to a police station for medical treatment, but it is ascertained that his reason had flown and he is raving mad. Duliness was the only feature of the stock exchange this morning.
