LANCASTER, JUNE 1, 1885.

The Republican Contest.

There is impending in the Republican party of this state a very curious and significant political situation.

There is a time when the following lines seemed safely indicative of Irish patriotism:

There are many, otherwise very sensible people, who pin their faith to a meat diet; and who become very much alarmed about the future of the little ones when they find it almost impossible to persuade them that to obtain good physical health, animal flesh is the one thing necessary.

Mr. James W. King, a bright young journalist, of no small experience in newspaper and political work in Philadelphia, has brought out his Sunday Argus.

Where can the couple be found? "No rogue ever felt the halter draw With good opinion of the law."

Political reformers who wage battle against the Mulhoolly kind of statesmanship that history will condemn as a crime at the end of their campaign.

Each of the "Chestnut." The New York Sun, with generous credit, copies from the Philadelphia Times, a version of the story of the drunken man who buttoned his coat around a lamp-post.

Albeit, we desire to direct the attention of the brethren to it as a dangerous story to tackle; as much to be guarded against, so to speak, as monkeying with the buzz saw.

of copy," adapted it for the occasion and location, and put the occurrence on one of the citizens of that town.

The story of the man, with the duster or ulster and the lamp-post, had better be let alone.

The Brooklyn bridge would-be jumpers do not seem amenable to that law of New York which punishes suicidal attempts as felonies.

The city council of New Orleans passed an ordinance some time ago appropriating $5,000 for a marketing office in Philadelphia, the excuse being the return of the Liberty bell to that city.

MADNESS OF late seems to be making the fatal mistake of killing other people than themselves.

A LEGEND OF EPHRAATA.

By Rev. Dr. J. H. Debus in "The Guardian" (John Peter Miller, who had been in early life a Reformed minister, was for many years Prior of the Protestant convent at Ephrata, Lancaster county, Pennsylvania.)

Miller was Prior here, you know, More than a hundred years ago.

There came a time when the following lines seemed safely indicative of Irish patriotism:

THE PEOPLE ASTONISHED. Many people are astonished when they read the wide circulation of "Thomas' Electric Oil." There is hardly a drug house in the country that does not have it on its shelves.

AN END TO BONE SCRAPING. Edw. Johnson, of Harrisburg, Pa., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know that I have cured my rheumatism in eight years; my doctors told me I would never get well, but I have now recovered."
