A Fight Between Thomas Martin and San Campbell - The Picnie Season - News ong the Churches - The Latest Happenings Around the Town.

Regular Correspondence of the Intriniouscen. Columnia, June 8.—About two weeks Samuel Campbell sold a pair of mules Phomas Martin. They did not prove satisory and on Saturday they were returned Campbell. About 4 p. m., Saturday, Martin in company with Mose Gitbert, en-tered Campbell's stable, and began abusing that centleman with language more foreible that gentleman with language more forcible than elegant. Campbell attempted to quiet them and not succeeding ordered them from is stable. Once outside they renewed their ligraceful action, and upon daring Campbell to fight them were accommodated, an to their sorrow, for they were easily defeated. Martin then brought suit against Campbell, before 'Squire Young for assault and battery. Although the liveryman was placed under bail for his appearance at court, the matter will probably be settled.

CONFESSED HERSELF A PERJURER. The Testimony on Which Abe Buzzard Ex-pects to Vindicate His Character.

The story of Mary Goodenderfer's perjury in giving the testimony on which Abe Buzzard was convicted of robbing the Steinmetz store and the blacksmith shop adjoining, is thus told by a correspondent of the Philadel-

It was two years ago that the robber, through his friends, began to circulate stories about a deathbed confession made by the woman, which exonerated him from the crime. Little attention was paid to these asseverations. It was not until a short time before Abe's surrender that Amos Rutter and other leading citizens of New Holland and the Welsh mountain neighborhood had sufficient belief in the story to investigate It. This they did and the consequence was a promise to interest themselves in the procuring of a pardon. This was the reason of Abe Ruzzard's surrender. uzzard's surrender.
"But what had the woman against you?"

"She wanted to git me away from my wife," was the outlaw's unabashed confos sion, "she was in the jail when I was before. She was here for livin' with another man besides her husband, and she said that if she didn't git me she would ruin me. What she confessed to I don't know, I aint never seen her confession; but Jacob Amwake, who was my lawyer, has it. She confessed to him when she died."

A prim and precise practitioner of the old.

when she died."

A prim and precise practitioner of the old school is Mr. Amwake, who, in his office in Centre Square, shortly after the conversation in the jail, told the story of Mary Goodenderfer's confession. "Buzzard's second escape," he said, "was quite unnecessary. I had the confession at that time and could have ablained his ravious for him. Of course had the confession at that time and could have obtained his pardon for him. Of course, his action put any movement of that kind out of the question. Moreover, I have not been in a position to be active in obtaining a pardon for the reason that my appearance in the character of counsel would prejudice my testimeny as a witness. I am not Buzzard's counsel now and I shall not appear or take any step as such in this matter. When Mr. Rutter and the New Holland people came to me I simply said that Buzzard's statement as to the confession was true, and now I await their action.

to the confession was true, and now I await their action.

"My connection with the case was simply this: As counsel for Buzzard I was convinced that the woman's testimony was false. She was confessedly particeps criminis, her story was contradictory, and against any one else it would have had no weight. When the woman had completed her term of imprisonment for receiving the geods which she charged Abe with stealing, she reformed. She had consumption and grew rapidly worse. At the last she sent for me. Now, I wish to say that I do not consider myself at liberty to make public the details of testimony which I shall be called upon to deliver before the board of pardon. I will tell you this, that she confessed to having committed perjury in swearing to Abe Buzzard's complicity in the Steinmetz robbery, and that her motive was jealonsy. The woman was sinking so rapidly that there was no time to take her deposition in writing. Two hours after she sant for me she was dead."

Ordination and Installation in Manhetm.
On Sunday evening the Rev. Warren J.
Johnson, recently elected paster of the Reformed churches in Manheim and Petersburg, was solemnly ordained to the ministry and installed in the pastorate by a committee of Lancaster classis. This committee consisted of Rev. E. V. Gerhart, D. D., Rev. J. H. Dubbs, D. D. and Rev. W. F. Lichliter. Religious services were held in the Reformed church of Manheim, and notwithstanding the threatening state of the weather were attended by a large audience. The ordination sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Gerhart, who was assisted in the act of ordination by the other members of the committee. The installation services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Dubbs, who had been chairman of the committee on supply while the church was without a regular pastor.

Mr. Johnson enters upon his pastorate with encouraging prospects of success. The church is unanimous in his support, and his services are fully appreciated. His talents, energy and devotion insure him a successful career in his chosen vocation. installed in the pastorate by a committee

A Runaway Horse in Front of a Train. Last evening Justice Buckwalter, son of of Abraham Buckwalter, of Paradise township, was out driving, when his horse either got away from him or broke loose from a post. The animal attempted to cross the Pennsylvania railroad, just west of Gordonville, when the buggy was struck by a freight engine, which was running at a pretty good rate of speed. The vehicle was broken to pieces, but the horse escaped unhurt. The railroad men stopped their train and cleared away the wreck. The horse was afterwards

Democrats Carry Wilmington. At the city election in Wilmington, Del. held on Saturday, Calvin B. Rhodes, Democrat, was elected mayor, to succeed Dr. Wales, Republican, by a majority of about 452.
