THEIR OWN CHILD KILLED.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS REJECT THE CONGRESSIONAL APPORTIONMENT.

The Governor's Veto of an Intense Partisar Measure Sustained by the House-Within Five Votes of Passing the Bill Over the Chief Executive's Head.

Thursday was Governor Pattison's day to laugh. The day before the legislature made merry with his works, but when his turn to smile came he doubtless recalled the adage about the fellow who laughs last. The windy Republicans who sat on the benches in the park and unmereifully chaffed the Democrats as they passed by were last evening as mute as the harp that hung on Tara's

The governor began work in the morning by directing the attorney general to no-tity the auditor general and state treasurer to make out no warrants and pay no money mentioned in the items of the general appropriation bill passed over the governor's veto.

This was done.
In the House, about 5 o'clock, the speaker In the House, about 5 o'clock, the speaker cleared his table of the governor's veto of the cleared his table of the governor's veto of the congressional apportionment bill. The House was crowded in expectancy of this, and every member was in his seat except Beach, of Crawford, and Hassett, of Philadelphia, both of whom are sick. There was a good bit of trouble experienced in clearing the aisles, but this was finally accomplished. Hulings took the floor in the bill. He defended the work of the com-mittee as an effort to make a fair and honest

Sponsler followed in an impassioned speech, asking that the bill receive fair consideration, because it was framed to give the Democrats more districts than they are en titled to, and, unlike the representative ap-portionment bill, was not partisan. None of the Democrats approach the Democrats answered.

The call of the "roll then began, almost everybody keeping tally. Barton, Cox and Sample, of Allegheny, voted no because they desired to save Tom Bayne's district; Berry because Forest was buried under a Democratic majority; Dinan because Lycoming was placed in a Democratic migration and proposition districts where it was placed in a Democratic district, where belonged; George S. Graham, Brit Hart and Johnson because they wanted Beaver as it is, and Morrison and Stevenson because they regarded the interests of Lawrence regarded the interests of Lawrence as jeop-ardized in the new bill. Of the Democrats, Bowell, of Fayette, and Lantz, of Greene, were quite content with the bill and voted aye, while George McGowan voted the same way because the new bill puts his ward into a Democratic district. Hardenburg, (Rep.), of Wayne, and Gale, (Rep.), of Northumber-land, deliberately dodged because their counties were put into Democratic districts,

HOW THE VOTE WAS RECEIVED. When the clerk had finished calling the roll, and it was seen that the bill had fa a number of persons rushed to the Republi cans who had voted no and tried to pull them back, but Mackin jumped to his feet an angrily protested against this electioneer-ing, which put a stop to it. A great deal of time was consumed in counting up the vote, but at last the speaker announced that the veto was sustained, the vote being 129 yeas and 68 nays. Five more votes for the bill would have changed the result. There was some very loud applause on the Democratic side, which Faunce and Crawford vainly tried to suppress, and some hisses from the Republicans. Then the House settled down routine work again.

The Republicans are very angry at what they term the "Mugwumps," but will make no effort to reconsider the vote, as Speaker Graham has decided that a motion to recon sider a vote taken on a veto cannot be enter

Extra session talk is again revived, but the general impression is that the governor should be content with his vindication, and let the odium of no apportionment rest on the Republicans. Senator Cooper says it is It seems that some of the Republicans who were anxious to have the House pass the congressional bill over the governor's veto had bogus telegrams by the hundreds sent to the recalcitrant Republicans, alleged to be signed by Republicans at their homes. Somebody here sent bogus telegrams to Col. M. S. Quay, signed by Representatives Marshall and Sterling, asking whether they should vote for the congressional apportionment bill over the governor's veto. Quay said in reply to Marshall and Sterling, which reply they were very much astonished to reserve that the traffic much astonished to receive, that the traffi in the Domocratic vote in the Senate last night relieved the House Republicans of any political obligation to support the apportionment, "I could not vote, and cannot asl my friends to do what I could not do myself. The Republicans of the the Forty-ninth senatorial district are pretty unaminous in sus-taining the governor. I decline to interfere pro or con." Marshall and Sterling say that hey sent no telegram whatever to and that they have all along intended to vote to support the governor. The Magee faction are working this telegram for all it is worth connection with Quay's candidacy Overcome Us Like a Summer Cloud. From the Reading Herald.

Governor Pattison has been exercising h veto powers to prevent a clean steal of about sixty thousand dollars from the state trea sury, but the House, which seems never so happy as when it can appropriate the state's money to some one who is not entitled to it promptly voted not to sustain the veto. The bill which he did not approve gave salaries to officials amounting to four or five times the compensation allowed them by law, among others giving to the notorious Dela-ney, the so-called librarian of the Senate, some seven thousand dollars. If the gover nor had signed such a bill he would have nor had signed such a bill he would have torfeited all his reputation for honesty, and the state would have rung with denuncia-tions. Yet, so accustomed are we to these things in legislatures, that, though they may cause a feeling of disgust, they occasion little or no surprise. The persistency with which such steals are urged in legislative bodies, and the support they receive are mysteries hard for honest men to fathom.

FORAKER TAKES THE CAKE. He Will Not Hold It Long When the Democ

Judge Foraker will lead the Republicans of Ohio to battle again for control of the state government. He was nominated on Thursday, at Springfield, on first ballot, receiving fifty-two and one-half votes more than necessary. General R. P. Kennedy, his most for-midable competitor, was named for lieutenant-governor by acclamation, although he attempted several times to decline. The proceedings were attended with enthusiasm

Hon, William McKinley, chairman of the committee on platform, submitted resolutions which were unanimously adopted. They declare that the Democratic party, which owes its national victory last fall to the willful suppression of the ballot, cannot be looked to for the enforcement of the constitutional guarantees which secure to all citizens the equal enjoyment of suffrage and asserting that the hope of the friends of equal laws and equal suffrage is in the Republican party, which pledges itself to wage the contest to a successful end. They demand such legislation as will harmonize the relations of labor and capital, favor the enforcement of the eight-hour law, denounce the importation of contract labor, favor a protective tariff which will encourage American development and American labor, and oppose the British policy advocated by the Democratic party under the guise of a tariff for revenue only, demand restoration of the wool duty of 1857 or its full equivalent, and denounce the Democratic Congress for failing to make good the pledges they made in this behalf.

Notwithstanding an outward appearance of harmony, there is much swearing in private. and the 337 delegates out of the 799 who voted against Foraker are loud in condemna tion of the methods employed by the For-aker crowd in soliciting and openly buying delegates, and they declare that it will tell against the party next October. Men who came here as earnest supporters of General Beatty, and others who proclaimed on the street corners their allegiance to the states men from Erie's blue sea, all at once became quiet, and before long were blatant Forsker men. These violent and sudden conversion somewhat dim the lustre of Foraker's vic-tory. The colored men are especially up in arms, and Green, of Cleveland, a colored exmember of the legislature, says that 10,000 of the 30,000 colored voters of Ohio will refuse to support Foraker. The party, he says, should not have taken up a defeated candidate. The prestige is a bad one, and another disaster is in store for the party in the fall.

One of the Most Successful and Enjoyab Events in the History of the Association. Two Laucastrians Elected to Prominent Offices-To Meet Next in York.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 11 .- The sixteenth annual reunion of the society, made up of members of the Ninth Pennsylvania cavalry, was held in this borough to-day, and was a decided success so far as attendance, hospitality of the citizens and warm greetings extended to the members of the Ninth by their fellow-comrades of the late war residing in this beautiful town.

The members began coming yesterday, but the great majority arrived on this morning's early trains, and by ten o'clock the streets were full of strangers, a large number of whom were the uniform of the Grand Army of the Republic. The morning was spent in viewing the at tractions of the town and vicinity, among which may be mentioned Dickinson college and the Indian school. The last named place was visited by all the strangers, who were shown through the buildings, described at length in the INTELLIGENCER a few years ago. All expressed themselves as well pleased with what they saw.

From Jersey City.

The Jersey City and Lancaster clubs played their third game yesterday, when the home team was again successful. The visitors had the best of the batting throughout, but again they showed their lack of knowledge of base running, and after doing good work, they were unable to get off the bases. They earned their three runs, however. The Lancaster club played a remarkably fine game in the field, while the errors bly fine game in the field, while the errors of their opponents were very stupid at times. The umpire was decidedly off during the game, especially when he decided Mr. McLaughlin out in the sixth inning, because, as he said, he failed to touch third after Parker had caught a long fly. The home club were not damaged by his decisions. One of the features of the game was Flood's home run. The score follows:

and was 51 years of age. He began his career as a railroadman early in life, first serving in the capacity of a messenger boy at the Eric railroad freight office at Elmira. At the age of 15, Mr. Rutter was made chief clerk of the Erie freight office at Elmira, and when only 19 years of age was appointed station agen at that place. This position he held for two or three years, and at the end of that period he went to Buffalo and served the Erie as it commercial agent. After serving in this co. pacity for three years. Deceased accepted the position of local freight agent of the Chicago & Northwestern road, and removed from Buffalo to Chicago. He held this position but a short time, and from Chicago he went to New York and accepted the position of assistant general freight agent of the Erie and served in this capacity until 1872. The late Cornelius Vanderbilt is 1872 offered Mr. Rutter the position of general freight agent of the Central Hudson road which was accepted on June 1st, 1876. Mr. Rutter was made traffic manager, and in March 1880, he was elected third vice president. Mr. Rutter has not been a well man since 1854. At that time he was informed by his physicians that he could not live, his malady being a severe attack of diabetes. By careful treatment, however, he slowly railied, but in 1876 he became afflicted with sciatic rhoumatism and these two ailments had rendered his health very precarious ever since. Deceased was a man well-known throughout the entire United States, and possessed a large circle of warm personal friends to whom he was ever faithful and most highly esteemed. He was regarded as one of the ablest railroad managers in the country. Mr. Rutter leaves a wife, two daughters, Mrs. Alfred J. Manning, of New York, and Miss Hattie, aged 18, and two sons, Nathaniel, aged 24, and James H. jr., aged 16.

Lord Granville Announces the Resignation of the Gladstone Cabinet in the House of Lords-Conservatives to Be Given a

Chanco to Run the Governs LONDON, June 12 -- Lord Granville, scoretary of state for foreign affairs, announced in the House of Lords this evening that the queen had accepted the resignations of the cabinet, and had ordered Lord Salisbury, the Conservative leader in the Lord's, to form a new cabinet. SALISBURY OFF TO SEE THE QUEEN. LONDON, June 12-It has now been positively ascertained that the Marquis of Salisbury secretly left for Balmoral at midnight last night and the belief is growing that the queen has finally decided on accept-ing the resignations of the Liberal ministers and entrusting the formation of a Tory cabinet to Lord Salisbury. The secrecy which attended his lordship's departure was probably due to a desire on the part of her majesty for a perfect understanding with the Conservative leader before officially occept-ing Mr. Gladstone's resignation. No positive announcement will, however, be made before the meeting of Parliament to-night. The Parnellites are taking advantage of the present situation and are urging the Conservative leaders to adopt a Home Rule policy for Ireland and thus forestall the Liberals in
