LANCASTER, JUNE 15, 1885

The Lesson He Wished to Teach. Some of the metropolitan newspapers have seized upon a reported statement of Secretary Bayard as an occasion to air their historical knowledge. The secretary, in an address to the students of the Missouri university, was reported to have said that his grandfather voted for Jefferson in the tie between him and Burr, and elected him, though he, Bayard, was a Federalist. The fact is that Bayard did not vote for Jefferson, but voted a blank ballot, which was equivalent to voting for him. Secretary Bayard says he was not reported correctly, as he would not have stated that his grandfather actually voted for Jefferson without violating the truth of history that he was perfectly familiar with. He says he is glad, however, that the ambition of editors to pick at him and to display their erudition has answered to give prominence to the lesson which he sought to inculcate by his reference to his 'grandfather's 'action. Alexander Hamilton, the federal leader advised the Federalists in Congress to vote for Jefferson, rather than for Burr, although the Federal party preferred Burr, whom Hamilton knew to be unworthy. He persuaded Bayard to cease opposition to Jefferson's election.

Secretary Bayard's lesson is that the country's good must be held above that of the party whom they seem to conflict, and he enforces the doctrine with the authority of these early patriots. It is undoubtedly sound doctrine; but when party good is something different from the country's good, the party is rotten. The best thing for the country is the best thing for the party arthelong run, and party drifts only need to be wise enough to discern the country's needs to know their duty to their party.

What Quay Means.

The Republican politicians and newspapers are a good deal at a loss to account for Quay's interference in the apportionment bill, which resulted in the defeat of a measure to which his party in the legisla-For a candidate before a state convention to take issue so boldly and violently with the prevailing sentiment of his party seems to be a very impolitic and inexplicable performance. We perceive that the Pittsburg Times, which is very friendly to Mr. Magee, sarcastically assumes with mock earnestness that the telegrams which purported to have been sent to Quay by the members influenced by him were forgeries. For "when," it asks, " in all the history of treason did the most shameless traitor counsel treachery publicly and yet continue to solicit the confidence and support of those he betrayed ?" "It is as impossible," the Times affects to think, "that any man seeking and still seeking the Republican nomination for a position of trust should have written those telegrams as that Judas should have come back jingling his ill-gotten silver as an argument of his financial responsibility and fitness to continue treasurer of the twelve."

A reporter of the Pittsburg Dispatch, however, who went down to Beaver to see about it, ascertains quite positively that Quay did send the telegrams which influenced the Beaver, Lawrence and Washington members to defeat the bill. There never was any real doubt of this. Mr. Quay was against the apportionment and defeated it, regardless of the feelings of his friend Cooper and others, who have professed to favor his candidacy, but whose gift-bearing approach he views with some suspi-

The calculations making on Quay's own bona fide candidacy may as well be dismissed. He is playing for position. He wants to beat Magee, Cameron and the others of their fellowship. His own plans will only then be revealed. As to placing himself before the people of Pennsylvania for state treasurer, that is something which has never seriously entered his mind.

An Outrageous Bill.

He daren't.

Among the acts passed by the defunct legislature and signed by the governor was one providing for the establishment of a home for disabled and indigent soldiers, to be supported by the state. The law seems to contemplate that the Marine hospital, near Erie, which already belongs to the commonwealth, shall be converted for this purpose, and that the state after expending some $30,000 for the fitting up of the same, shall devote $40,000 annually for its maintenance.

In view of the fact that all disabled soldiers get pensions, and a good many have grabbed them who never were disabled; and of the further fact that the United States government has a number of homes for old soldiers, and will no doubt establish as many more as are actually necessary, such legislation by the state was entirely unnecessary.

It is a job. Even if less offensive in detail and less superfluous in 'purpose, the bill as passed is one that should have been vetoed. It puts the institution proposed to be established under the entire control of eleven persons, "the governor of the common-wealth, the state treasurer, the auditor neral and a committee of three members of the general assembly, consisting of one senator and two members of the House of Representatives, who shall be appointed by the presiding officer of the Senate and House, respectively, together with a com-ttee of five honorably discharged soldiers scho shall be selected by the department commander of Pennsylvania Grand Army of the Republic."

the Republic."
To delegate the power of naming nearly half the management of a state institution to a private individual, who happens to be the head of a private association, is a gross outrage, violative of the spirit of the constitution and inconsistent with a proper idea of public administration.

A Subsidy Blocked. In the closing hours of the last Congress despite the vigilance of Mr. Holman and Mr. Randall, and in the confusion attending the last incidents of every session, a $400,000 subsidy for some of the steamship lines was smuggled through the House, easily obtaining passage in the Senate, of course, which always lends willing assent to such measures. With one accord the steamship lines be gan to quarrel over the division of the plunder, and the lobby agents have been flattening their noses against the window of the treasury department, waiting for their share of the loot.

The president and postmaster genera discover that they have some discretion is be performed quite as well without this grant as with it. Private interests can wait for the next meeting of Congress, and for the more definite ascertainment of where the money should go or whether the subsidy shall be repealed. Good.

GLADSTONE is down, but Sullivan is still on top.

THE Philadelphia American, "a national journal, published weekly, on each Saturday, by the American company, limited, Wharton Barker, president; H. M. Jenkins, secretary and treasurer; Robert Ellis Thompson, chief editorial contributor." declares that the appointment of Pillsbury to be collector of Boston is "perhaps the very worst," that Cleveland has made; and that "it is bad enough of itself to wreck the political credit of any administration." Will this "national journal" please state why and wherefore!

THE very swell English people in making social calls now take with them their favorite puppies, with visiting cards for the latter. O empora! O mores!

THE Republicans of Ohio in convention proclaimed that "the right to vote accorded by the constitution of the United States is the concern of the whole people." Whereupon the New York World points out that upon three different occasions the Republican judges of the supreme court of the United States have decided that the federal constitution confers no right to vote : "The right or privilege of voting is one arising under the constitution of the state and not under the constitution of the United States."—U. S. vs. Susan B. Anthony. "Neither the constitution nor the fourteenth amendment made citizens voters."-U. S. vs. Cruitshank.

"The fifteenth amendment does not confer

the right of suffrage; that comes from the states."-U.S. vs. Reese. THE lobbyists frequently overreach themselves. While they were fighting over the $400,000 subsidy for carrying the mails, the postmaster general and president concluded that it would be better to keep the money in Uncle Sam's strong box. And there it is likely to stay until the lobbyists seek their

THE utility of paper as the cheapest, most convenient and best means of transcribing thought for the benefit or burt of mankind has long been recognized. But a new use has been found for it, that of the manufacture of counterpanes and pillow cases of paper. The best kind of manilla paper is used, the sheets being held together by slender gummed twine. These paper bed attachments are hemmed and they are also stamped with the finest of ornamental designs. When they become wrinkled from use they can easily be smoothed out with a hot flatiron. The counterpanes can be left on the bed when it is occupied and in cold weather will be found a warm covering paper preventing the escape of heat. With paper car wheels and counterpanes of the same material, it is evident that half the uses of paper have not been discovered. It seems that wrought-iron columns are as liable to be warped and cracked when heated by fire and then suddenly cooled by water as cast-iron columns are. Recent experiments in Berlin were made with columns of the two materials loaded with the weights they were designed to carry and heated first to three hundred, then to six hundred degrees, and finally to a red heat, and then suddenly cooled by jets of water from a hose. The cast-iron columns warped and cracked, but did not give way entirely. The wroughtiron columns bent before a red heat was reached, and when water was thrown upon them they were rendered useless. This is important as showing that wrought-iron columns, thus exposed, need even greater protection than those made of cast-iron.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal, having been challenged to print a list of American statesmen of the first rank, since it said that Thurman "will hold a foremost place among American statesmen of the second rank, along with Silas Wright, Lewis Cass and Reverdy Johnson, has this to say in the way of characterization:

Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, Jackson, Clay, Webster, Calkoun, Seward, Lincoln, Tilden, and perhaps, Mar-shall, Gallatin and Chase, all of whom were sinal, Galath and Chase, and of whom were identified with organic measures and great historic movements, and impressed their personalities upon the times so deeply as to leave enduring monuments in the annals of their country. The statesmen associated with Judge Thurman were not so fortunate. Theywere more or less brilliant and important Theywere more or less brilliant and important men. But they did not create permanent party issues, or command parties. They did not make history. They did not leave a picture upon their day and generation which will survive the century. Already they are traditions rather than real personages. So with Index Thurman in a few years after he with Judge Thurman in a few years after is gone. It was simply not his destiny to be a king of men. That is all.

The Lancaster club played their first game on this trip in Trenton on Saturday, where they were defeated. Wetzel pitched a good game for the visitors, but Tiernan did better work for the home team. The Trentons did better fielding than their opponents, and of the six errors by the Lancaster four were credited to Parker in left field. He is usually a very reliable player and it is difficult to under-stand how be could play so poorly. The score below shows the figures :

A Home Game,

On Saturday afternoon the August Flower and Sanders clubs, which were recently organized, played their first game at McGrann's park. An audience of several hundred were present, the majority being small boys, a they had no school and the admission was free. The August Flower is composed entirely of men. The members of the Sanders are all boys ranging in years from 15 to 20, and some of them are scarcely as heavy as the bats with which they tried to work. There was not much science in the game, but it created lots of fun. The efforts of some of the players, and especially those of the older club, to hit the ball were laughable. The sympathy of the audience was largely with the younger nine and when one of the old ones struck out a yell arose that would put Buffalo Bill's "Wild West" in a fog. The Sanders club showed good work in the field and made several prefty double plays, but their opponents were too heavy at the bat. If the young fellows had a couple of good hit-ters they would be able to show up a great deal stronger. The remarks of the audience during the game were very laughable. Many of them were shot at the umpire, but all agreed that he played about the best game of any man on the field. Both nines were new and very pretty uniforms and the audience was dazzled at times by their brilliancy. The score, by innings, of this contest

Mike Scanlon says he would rather have his club in their present position. He has good reason for being where he is and may yet get farther back. Tom Healy is playing his customary game for the Norfolk's and he was hit for eighteen singles by the Nationals on Saturday. Norfolk has released better men this season already.

It is admitted by almost every one that Umpire Decker's bad decision lost Philadelphia their big game in New York recently, and he will never be allowed to umpire again when Wright's team plays.

A correspondent writing from Norfolk says that Norfolk is the only club in the Eastern League that plays their catchers at short. He might have added that it is the only club mean enough to do it. Denny Mack seems to be managing Lancaster very satisfactorily. From the minute he took hold the club began to do good work and to-day leads the second division, with a chance of getting a place in the first-Sporting Life.

If Dennis Casey is released by Baltimore it will be because Barnie is dissatisfied with his base-running. He played in Saturday's game and may remain. It would seem rather funny management to release a man like ported. Fourteen hits were made off hir and he had a three-bagger. Manager Barnie was so well pleased that he signed him. The Sporting Life is an excellent paper, but they are away off in obtaining the scores of games played on Saturday. A sporting paper, with its immense circulation, should certainly be able to compete with Philadel-phia dailies. The Press deserves great credit for their enterprise in publishing daily

The Brooklyn club played a great deal of The Brocklyn club played a great deal of ball on paper the past winter but when brought upon the ground they utterly failed. Manager Hackett became so disgusted with the players that he resigned. The men have received an overhauling from the manage-ment and for the last two games have been doing better.

In an articles on the Eastern League clubs in yesterday's Press, the base ball editor has this to say of the Lancaster club. "Lancaster is surprising everybody by its fine playing. It was regarded as the weakest club of all when the season opened, but of late it has been winning nearly every game and now is pushing the Newarks hard."

Parson's, of last years Ironsides, is pitching a wonderful game for the Birmingham (Ala.) club, of the Southern League. It is seldom that any club gets more than three or tour hits off him and a few days ago he shut a club out, without even allowing them a single. Hofford is doing almost as good work for the Augusta and his name leads the batters.

Joseph Fralinger deserves a great deal of credit for his success in keeping the Wilmington club together. He started out with all kinds of obstacles on his way, but he is clear-headed and a good judge of players. His team is now playing good ball, it is a shame that Terry Connell cheated him out of the game in Washington the other day. Judging from Mr. Fralinger's published card Connell's work was oad.

A Philadelphia paper got off this chestnut.

"The Athletics are all in fine form now and the club is well provided with good batteries. Since they returned home they are playing well, and it they continue at their present rate they will be very close to the lead at the end of the season." It seems strange that this club is always in a "badly crippled condition" when on a trip but recover so quickly upon their return home. Probably the Schuylkill water fixes them up.

Umpire Taylor always seems anxious to favor the home club, and he performed that trick at Trenton Saturday. In the eighth inning when the score was tie, Wetzel, of the Lancaster, reached first on a hit and Mack followed it with a double. After the latter had reached second and the umpire had said nothing about the bail, the Trenton players crowded around him and made a great noise. He finally called the ball a foul and Mack was afterwards fielded out. Had Taylor not allowed the Trentons to buildoze him the game might have been different.
