TRADE IN OLD TOBACCO.

PACKERS REPORT IT SOMEWHAT DULL DURING THE PAST WEEK.

More Than Half the Coming Crop Set Out, Rain Much Needed for Planting-Nine Hundred and Sixty Cases of Pennsylvania Sold in the New York Market,

There were a few hundred cases of old leaf sold in Lancaster during the past week, but the market has not yet responded to the boom experienced in New York, and home operators report the market rather dull.

Receipts of baled leaf at the city warehouses also have fallen off greatly; it is doubtful if one quarter as much was received as during the preceding week.

Very little new leaf is being bought, from the fact that very little is now held by growers except at prices beyond the views of

A majority of the warehouses continue run full-handed, but several prominent packers say they will close up within a fort night. They report that their packings, as far as they have been examined, are curing satisfactorily, but the story that the white vein is sweating out and disappearing is all bosh. That which went in white vein will come out white vein, but perhaps there is not so much of it as was reported during the

One half or more of the 1885 crop has been set out, and the young plants are doing well. The dry weather and extreme heat expected for some days past have almost put a stop to planting. Those farmers who have stuck to their work have been obliged to carry with them a watering pot, and even then many of the young plants have wilted and died, and nd will have to be re-set. A good rain and a few days of cloudy weather would b oi incalculable advantage just now.

As has been said before in these columns, the acreage devoted to tobacco will be much less this year last, and four-fifths of the planting was a way and seed. The New York Market.

From the Tobacco Leaf we condense the following: Western Leaf-Sales have been effected the past week, but apparently only to a limited extent. There are rumors of Regie purchase here and at the West, but how many and ow much, if any, is an unsolved problem. Virginia Leaf—The market this week was very dull. A few sales were made. There was a little demand for new bright cutters owing to the scarcity of the old. Prices for new cutters are high, and there seems to be a scarcity of them. Bright wrappers are reasonable in price, but there is a scarcity of Leaf-The market may be said to Seed Lear—The market may be said to have made a spurt this week. New tobacco was taken with a liberal hand, Wisconsin leading with 1,050 cases, and Connecticut and Pennsylvania following with 800 and 300 cases respectively. The total sales of both old and new goods amounted to 2,750 which is an encouraging showing when compared is an encouraging showing when compared with previous weeks' sales. M. Oppenheimer is credited with selling the bulk of the Wisconsin, and A. Cohn & Co, it is said, sold 400 cases of the Connecticut. Samples of new Wisconsin binders and fillers that have been worked prove to be excellent. In many cases the binders are found, it is said, servicecases the randers are found, it is said, service-able as wrappers. Reports of large sales of Pennsylvania Havana seed in the country have reached us, but they need verification. Spanish—Havana fillers sell slowly. In all 400 bales were taken at from 60 to 11114c. There has been some demand for wrappers of the 1885 crop, and a fair trade in old goods ts being done. The demand for 1884 tobacco in Havana is steadily increasing, and purchases of it are being made there every day at advancing prices.

Sumatra—180 bales were purchased in small lots at from $1.25 to $1.60. The tone of the market has been good, although not much more than the usual amount of toleraches characteristics. amount of tobacco has changed hands. sale of about 100 bales of new goods, first lengths, is reported. The demand is for dark goods, and they are scarce. Manufacturers are ready to take either old or new tobacco, so long as it is fine, dark and glossy. The importations of new goods are as yet meagre, and it is feared that the percentage of the new crop that will come in under the 35c duty will be less than last year.

Plug-The past week has been a trifle morencouraging, though we hope for better things, and that eventually a better class of tobacco may be wanted. The demand seems to be principally for common goods—II-inch

The U.S. Tobacco Journal says: "We had a regular 'old times' week of it in our market. Some of the familiar faces of Westmarket. Some of the familiar faces of West-ern jobbers that used to shine in our market most every week, but who of late had shunned New York, turned up again, buying new tobaccos with the alacrity of old. Then up-town manufacturers who had almost be-come strangers in the seed leaf market were seen in tow of brokers, and last but not least, jobbers began to evince an inspiring interest in new tobaccos. Some weeks ago I had the hardihood to predict that before long new Wisconsin would suddenly jump into notoriety, by natural means if possible, if not by artificial ones. It all came true. If the reports of sales of '84 Wisconsin for this week are all taken without any allowance for imagination, the total number of seen in tow of brokers, and last but not least. lowance for imagination, the total number of cases sold will be about 3,500. To this are to be added bona fide sales of about 1,200 cases of '84 Pennsylvania Havana seed and seconds. In conjunction with this the sales of old tobacco reach near 2,000 cases, about one-half of which were for export. The spirit of the trade has naturally improved immensely. Once again the New York market holds up its head proudly, and the feeling of demoralization gives way to one of confidence and courage.

Sumatra had a fine week. The sales were 300 bales old and 125 new. Prices were un-changed. Goods averaging $1.25 met with the largest sales.

Philadelphia Market. There was a fair trade last week in hard manufactured tobacco, but the profits were small. There was some falling off in fine cuts on account of the introduction of low grade goods. A fair trade was done in smok ing tobaccos. Fine grade cigars improved in price, but low grades sold very low. No change in snuffs. Seed Leaf: Every succeeding week reduces stock in store of old leaf tobacco suitable for eigar purposes; so much so that reliable quality stock at this season of the year was never so short in first hands. It is true there is a large supply of '84 crop, which from all indications contains considerable superior tobacco; but can it be possible that the taste of the smokers has changed so quickly that they will be satisfied with leaf void of the usual natural curing? turer who has forgotten the good effect of old material, and is supplied, has a decided advantage. Therefore it may be well to examine carefully old stock before too late. The week's business shows sales of stock to a considerable amount, while prices rule very low, with the advantages still in favor of Baitimore Market.

Receipts of Maryland tobacco were fair to the past week, and the market quiet, but firm. Of Obio we hear of no sales : receipts are liberal and prices steady.

Borneo Tobacco. The tobacco crop of North Borneo will be offered this year in the Amsterdam market. According to persons who have samples, the tobacco much resembles the silky leaf of the middling sorts of Sumatra, but still the burn and the ashes are not satisfactory. Some people attribute this unsuital to fermentation in the conveyance. It is possible that good tobacco could be produced at Borneo. The principal obstacle to a prosperous culture is the lack of labor. Chinamen inclined to go to Borneo are not to be found in the Straits nor at Hong Kong, and without those fellows there cannot be large to bacco crops.

To get laborers to go over from Deli seems to be very difficult, and the manager of the German Borneo company could get no more than about ten men, although he offered to pay a handsome premium.

Thus Deli, at least for the next few years has no reason to fear the rivalry of Borneo.

COTTRINGER CONFESSES.

to Steal Through Speculation—Sent Prison in Default of $50,000 Ball,

From the Philadelphia Record. Joseph F. Cottringer, the ex-secretary of the Central Transportation company, who was arrested for having overissued 3,000 shares of the company's stock, arrived in this city at 230 p. m., on Monday, from Bushkill. He was at once taken to the company'soffice, at No. 1,705 Chestnut street, where the pres dent and board of directors had assembled in anticipation of his arrival. When Mr. Cott ringer was brought into the room his flushed face and downcast looks showed how keen! he felt the disgrace into which he had fallen Many of the directors were his persona friends, yet he rejected their proffered hands saying: "I am disgraced and not worthy to take your hand." To President Stevens he made a full confession of his peculations.

"In 1873," said he, "I took 100 shares of the company's stock, anticipating a rise from which I would make a handsome profit. The stock did not go up, and I used the pro-ceeds from the sale of a portion of it for my family. After that was gone I took more until the amount of overssue reached 2,000 until the amount of overssue reached 2,000 shares. This I used in speculation, hoping to regain enough to make my accounts whole. When the dividends became due I had to provide for them. The dividends on the fraudulent issue amounted to $12,000 per annum, and I had to keep on issuing stock to cover this amount. In 1873, when I first commenced my operations, the stock was worth from $4s to $50 per share. The whole number of shares issued by me was 2,951."

number of shares issued by me was 2,951, " Cottringer was taken from the office of the company to Magistrate Lennon's office and given a hearing. Frank Weckerly, an expert, employed to go over the books of the company, stated that the authorized issue was 44,000 shares. "There have been," said Mr. Weckerly, "47,085 shares, issued. This is 134 shares in excess of what Mr. Cott-ringer acknowledges issuing. I cannot say whether the additional shares were issued Cottringer was committed to prison in default of $50,000 bail. John G. Johnson, counsel for the Central Transportation company, told the magistrate to allow Cottringer time to get bail. "I don't want any time," said the broken-spirited old man; "put me away from the gaze of the world." He was then taken to prison.

Bushkill, where Cottringer was stopping when arrested, has been his summer resting place for years. His entire family were with him when Detective Miller made known th object of his visit. Cottringer's only anxiety was that his family would learn of his arres and it was not disclosed to them until they arrived at their home, No. 68 North Thirty fourth street. For five years past Cottringer has lived in fear of the discovery of his peculations and he remarked to the detective when arrested: "I knew this would come, and shortly. I thought I would come her once more and look on the green grass, for I felt that it would be the last time I should see it." When arrested he had a revolver in

He met Lillie Cobb about the 1st of April. She is very pretty, and Campbell fell violently in love with her. Lillie's tather heard of his attentions and forbade his daughter having anything to do with him. She promised to obey and disarmed suspicion by speaking in the most uncompli-mentary terms of Campbell. All the time, however, she was meeting him clandestinely. On Wednesday Lillie asked her mother's permission to visit her grandmother, who lives at Baileytown, four miles from Port Norris. The request was granted and that evening she started. She met Campbell just evening she started. She that tampoel just out of town and together they went to Manu-muskin station, which is fourteen miles from Port Norris. Lillie stopped there with friends on Wednesday night and Campbell returned to Port Norris early on Thursday morning. He collected several hundred dollars in advance on the buildings which his men were constructing, went after the girl, and the pair went to Philadelphia, since when they have not been seen.

This morning the equity suit of Dana Graham vs the Farmers' National bank, the Lancaste county National bank, the First National bank of Lancaster and Samuel Burns, was argued. The bill in equity in the above suit was filed to perpetuate the testimony of Joseph Herzog, who pleaded guilty to a number of charges of forgery and whose sentence was deferred until the August sessions. The plaintiff sets forth in his complaint that Her-zog's testimony was very material to him in the suits about to be brought to recover the the sails about to be brought to recover the full value of several notes, on which his name appears and which names were forged. The banks resist the taking of Herzog's tes-timony on the ground that there is no danger of his dying, that he is not feeble or infirm and that he is not about to leave this state. The bill and answer of the parties to this suit were published in full in the INTELLI-GENCER on the days they were filed.

WHAT CAUSED HIS DEATH.

A POST MORTEM EXAMINATION OF THE BODY OF JOHN UTZINGER.

It Reveals That the Deceased Came to HI Death Through Inflammation of the Liver, and Not As the Result of a Stone Bruise. The Testimony at the Inquest.

Coroner Houaman summoned John F Smith, M. V. B. Keller, Charles P. Robinson and John Yackly as the jury to hold an inquest on the body of John Utzinger, whose death has been noted. The following was the medical testimony taken at the coroner's office this morning :

office this morning:

Dr. Wm. Compton, being sworn, testified, assisted by Drs. M. L. Herr and F. H. Musser, that the cap of the skull of deceased was removed: the brain was considerably gorged, but a careful examination of the skull failed to show that there had been any fracture produced by the stone with which Utzinger had been struck on the temple. The body of deceased was opened and the liver removed. It was very much diseased was covered with abscesses, and these were no doubt the cause of the patient's death. In opening the body a small penetrating wound no doubt the cause of the patient's death. In opening the body a small penetrating wound was found, which might have been made by a pistol ball or some sharp penetrating instrument. Search was made for the ball, but none was found. The entrence of the wound was near the navel, and the penetration was in the direction of the liver, but did not reach it.

Dr. F. H. Musser, who had attended Utzinger during his illness, corroborated what Dr. Compton had said, and added that he had not regarded the wound on the head as very serious. There were no symptoms of concussion of the brain, and there were unmistakable evidences of liver troubles, and the patient was treated for these. During his illness Utzinger had never told the doc-tor anything about the puncture in his abdo-men, and from the appearance of that wound the doctor believes it was received some time before the wound on the head was inflicted. The right lobe of the liver was filled with pus, and death resulted from the disease of the liver, which had been aggra vated by indiscretions of the patient before ond during his illness.

Dr. Herr corroborated the testimony of the other physicians. He did not regard the wound in the head as a serious one; there was considerable suppuration, but there was no fracture of the skull nor injury to the brain by compression. The wound in the abdomen looked like an old one, and did not appear to have any direct connection with the disease of the liver; there was no puncture found in that organ. Utzinger, being o dissipated habits, was naturally predisposed to disease of the liver, and his death resulted

The verdict of the jury was that death resulted from inflammation of the liver. The funeral of deceased took place this norning from the residence of his father on Middle street and was attended by St. Michael's society, of which he was a member. The funeral services were held at St. Anthony's Catholic church and the interment made at St. Anthony's cemetery.

KILLED IN A FALLING HOUSE. Two Walls Give Way and Bury Mechanic

SALISBURY'S QUANDARY.

THE DIFFICULTY HE HAS IN THE FORMATION OF A MINISTRY.

Conferring With Churchill on the Accept ance of the Lord Lieutenancy of Ireland. Why the Prominent Conservatives Withhold Their Counsel.

LONDON, June 16 .- Lord Salisbury ha been closeted nearly all morning with Lord Randolph Churchill, and it is believed that he is endeavoring to obtain the young Tory statesman's consent to serve as lord lieuter ant of Ireland under the new regime.

The real difficulty with which Lord Salis bury has had to contend in the formation of a cabinet and which explains his apparen reluctance to assume the responsibility and his seemingly slow progress since he con sented to the undertaking, is the unwilling ness if not downright refusal of the Tory peers to place themselves in the position forming a stop gap government until the general elections. Not even the strength of their convictions, can induce them to step from the high pedestal of their dignity pocket their pride and obey the behests of patriotism. To do this would be more of concession to the "Low Radicals" than they are willing to make.

HAD FOR PAYMANTER SMITH.

Damaging Charges That Have Resulted from the Findings of the Court of Inquiry. WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16,—Secretary Whitney to-day made public the findings of court of inquiry in the case of Paymaste General Smith, together with an announce ment that a court-martial will be ordered at once for the trial of that officer. The conclusions of the court under the several heads of investigation, including purchases of beef and pork, flannel, butter, mattresses, etc., etc., as affecting the manner in which Pay-master General Smith performed his duties, are summarized as follows; "That Paymaster General J. A. Smith, chief of the bureau of provisions and clothing in the navy departnent, according to the facts and circumstances established :

1st, Has been derelict' and negligent in his duty and culpably inefficient in the per-formance thereof.

2d. That he has, to the pecuniary loss of the government, favored Austin P. Brown in his orders and contracts.

3d. That he has violated the laws regulating the duties and responsibilities of his office and that those violations were to the detriment of the government.

4th. That he has been in many ways unfaithful to the trust imposed on him by his 5th. That the mildest interpretation that the court can put on his acts is ignorance of his legal responsibilities and duties, a gross neglect of his duties and indifference and inefficiency in the performance of them.

TERRIBLE STORM IN IOWA.

chool Houses and Barns Demolished—Trees Uprooted and Lives Reported Lost. Mason Crry, Iowa, June 16,-Friday, Sat urday and Sunday nights were characterized by severe rain and wind storms in Cerro Gordo county. The rain fell in torrents, ac companied by heavy hail and a constant and terrifying display of lightning. A cyclone struck this county, in Mt. Vernon township, about 12:30 Sunday night and a school house was demolished, and in Bath township it struck the house and barn of H. F. Lincoln, tearing both to pieces. The household furniture was scattered in every direction, the farm machinery was broken, trees were uprooted and some of the stems driven deep into the earth. A horse was thrown over a fence into a ditch and lay on his back until relieved. Trees as large as a man's body were snapped off ten feet above the ground and their trunks peeled. A bird cage was blown out of the kitchen, but the bird was found uninjured. A stallion, worth $1,000, was found, after the roof, and sides, and floor of the barn had disappeared, hanging unburt across some joists. A mile further on the house of Matthew F. Reddy was carried away. There are hardly boards enough left to build a fire with. The wreck is complete. Mr. Reddy's brother was carried into a field when the house went to pieces. On his looking around he saw by a flash of lighting that his brother was stretched dead some yards away. He picked him up and carried him into an underground milk house. He began to search for his wife and found her some 10 rods distant from the house, in a cornfield. He next looked for his 5-year-old boy, searching by the aid of the flashes of lightning, and at last discovered the child 30 rods from the house, and almost buried in the mud. Mrs. Reddy and child are seriously injured, and little hopes are entertained for their recovery. Cattle in a herd were stampeded and horses in pasture driven to a wire fence and frightfully cut up. The crops were fairly beaten into the earth.

coming Pale and Emacated and His Eyes Wearing an Unnatural Look-Crowds Uncover Their Heads at the Sight of the Sick Soldier.

NEW YORK, June 16 .- General Grant and amily left this morning for Mount McGregor, near Saratoga. Gen. Grant is suffering greatly from the heat and can only speak in a low whisper, that only those accustomed to be near him can understand. He is much wasted in body and is aged looking. All the preparations for the change had been made during the past three or four days, and the few household articles which were taken along were placed in the baggage car by seven o'clock this morning. At 8 o'clock the general, Mrs. Grant, Col. Fred. Grant, Grant, Dr. Douglas, Dr. Newman and a few other intimate friends assembled in the parlor where, while awaiting the carriages, the trip was discussed in all its bearings and all excepting the stricken old warrior seemed delighted over the prospect of escaping the stifling atmosphere of this city. The general tried to look contented and endeavored to make those about him feel that he, too, ap-preciated the change, but it was apparent that he did so only to encourage them. It is said that he preferred to spend the summer at Long Branch, but yielded at the earnest solicitation of his physicians. When the carriages arrived at half-past eight the sidewalk fronting the residence was lined with well-dressed people, and when the general came out leaning on the arm of Col. Fred Grant, hats were lifted instantly and heads were uncovered until he entered his carriage. Gen. Grant wore a dark suit and silk hat, his face was pale and emaciated, and his eyes were deeply sunken and were an unnatural look. Mrs. Grant and Dr. Douglas entered the same carriage. The others were occupied by the remaining members of the family and the servants.

Arriving at the Grand Central depot every-thing was in readings. The special train which was to take the party to their destina-tion was drawn up alongside the platform with steam up in readiness to start. It was drawn by engine No. 10, the fastest on the road, and which is always used by Vanderbilt when he makes a flying trip over the road. Gen'l Grant and party were met by Conductor E. A. Hooper, under whose direction the train is.

Hundreds who had been waiting to cated glimpse of the old soldier, but who had been kept back by the railroad employes, finally elbowed their way up to the train as it was about to start and waved their han kerchiefs to the invalid. At exactly is minutes past nine the train pulled out of

expressed his regret that he was unable to counsel, who are to conduct the prosecution of behalf of the government in the Riel trial, are here receiving instructions, but to the present writing, the date of the trial has not been been fixed. It is understood that the defense will first endeavor to prove Riel's American citizenship. This fact established, his counsel will point out that he can only be tried for waging war against a foreign country. The trial would then have to be under court martial; but as martial law was not pro-claimed in the dominion, the trial could not be conducted in this way, and would have to be abandoned. If tried as a Canadian citizen it must be for high treason, and as three of the six jurors are half breeds, it is believed the jury would disagree. This would involve a new trial, when the same
