WHAT OUR COLLEGE WANTS.

GENERAL CENTENNIAL MOVEMENT TO STRENGTHEN ITS ENDOWMENT.

Two Gifts of $10,000 Within a Twelve-Mon-From Non-Residents-What is Needed to Complete and Equip an Astronor cal Observatory for Lancaster.

EDS. INTELLIGENCER.—A year or two ago Franklin and Marshall college, located in this city, resolved to enlarge its educational facilities, especially in reference to its scientific department. This general project was expected to be carried out by a series of steps of progress, culminating in the coming centennial celebration to be held in 1887.

Last year a donation of $10,000 was made for the purpose of erecting an astronomical observatory. This year a member of the board of trustees made a donation of $10,000 to the endowment fund.

A movement is just now being started to place the department of natural science and hemistry on a broader foundation. It is be lieved that before long this particular protory placed in a satisfactory condition, and r fair display made of the geological, mineral-ogical and botanical specimens the college already possesses; in short, a preparation be made for a creditable museum of natural science on College Hill, a museum that will not only be a credit to the college, but to the

These are some of the projects had in view by the committee on the centennial. They are considering others also, so that when that celebration is held it may be distinguished not only by the literary exercises report of solid work done for the advancement of the college.

In making this brief statement of what the college is doing and expects to do, our ob-ject in this communication is to call the attention of this community especially to the stronomical observatory.

The building (which is of least importance) is now completed to the dome. Several important astronomical instruments, among them a fine transit instrument which was made in Munich, are ready for use. The made in Munich, are ready for use. The chief one, however, is the telescope, the mounting of which is being made by Repsold in Hamburg, while the object glass is made by the Clarks, in Cambridge, Mass., and which will be finished in about six months, at a cost of about $7,000. To complete this whole project of the observatory, it was found that about $3,000 would be required in addition to the liberal donation of $10,000 made by Mrs. Hood, of Frederick, Md.

Then, in addition, it is believed that the regular work done in the observatory, not only for the benefit of the students, but in the observations and calculations that will be carried forward and published from time to time, in company with other observatories in the country, will be of public interest, and a matter of local pride. of public interest, and a matter of local pride. For it should be understood that the observatory is designed not only for the benefit of the student, but also for work in the interest of astronomical science in a general way. Those who contribute to it will contribute to this general scientific interest with which the city will be connected.

In view of this general object we appeal for this small local aid. vatory.

If some of our citizens will come to our aid in raising this balance it will be thankfully received, and afford additional encouragement to the friends of the college elsewhere to go forward in their contributions to the other objects connected with the advance-ment and welfare of the college. It is hoped that the time is not far [distant when its en-largement will make it quite worthy of occupying one of the fairest sites in this growing accessory to the buildings which are dotted over its broad acres. We commend this interest to the frie nds of scientific progress in this community. this community.

peasantry of France and other continental countries? If for one cause or another the igners should suddenly stop, every one would realize the great dependency of En-gland upon her neighbors. During the week ending May 20, there was imported into this country, among other foreign produce, no less than 5,914 pounds sterling worth of poultry, 5, 206,544 pounds of butter and 24, 641,040 eggs. Yet there is laud lying idle in all parts of the country: hands waiting for work to do; and yet for want of a little organization, the English go on paying fabuorganization, the English go on paying fabulous sums of money to foreigners every year, all the while crying out: "What shall we do with our sons?" A partial solution of the latter difficulty, and incidentally of the former in a measure, has just been put forward. It is proposed to form a guild of agriculture to buy lands which may now be had cheap in many places, and teach young men who join it practical farming, which will assist them in starting the battle of life for themselves, at home or in the colonies. The members would live in community and according to a rule of life laid down for the order. Almost every necessary required by the community every necessary required by the community would be grown or made on the premises, so that there would be no room for idleness. The members would have to enter into an agreement to remain in the community for three years, and not to marry until they leave it. Even if the guild did not result in the production of many chickens and ducks, it would be doing good in preventing a lot of young fellows from rushing too early into matrimony and hampering themselves with herds of little John and Jennie Bulls before they have the means of keeping them.

Around his wrists were cloth bandages, as though he had been bound. He fainted at the door at Becker's residence, and, when taken in, raved like a madman for hours. His friends in New Haven and Morristown were informed of his

Haven and Morristown were informed of his whereabouts and condition by telegraph. Palmer has not yet recovered sufficiently to explain the particulars of his sad plight. A New York paper, in referring to Palmer as "missing," relates that he started for Jer-sey City to visit his cousin, Mrs. Sinclair, who lives on the Heights. He arrived at her house in safety, but appeared to be nervous and agitated. His relatives noticed this and asked him the cause of his agitation. He very asked him the cause of his agitation. He very mysteriously beckoned her into his room and told her that he was constantly pursued by two men, who, on one occasion, attempted to rob him in New Haven. Mrs. Sinclair merely laughed at him, and said he was foolish to spread such stories. The young man became more gloomy, and immediately retired to his room. All night he could be heard pacing up and down, and when the family assembled at breakfast he looked pale and haggard, and his clothing was disar-

"MASHED" ON A CHORUS GIRL.

A Young Man from Lock Haven Horse-Whipped at Bradford.

Miss Emuna R. Steiner, directress and planist of the New York Standard opera planist of the New York Standard opera company, was before Alderman Wheeler, of Bradford, on Friday on a charge of assault with a horse-whip, preferred by O.M. Smith, a youth who halls from Lock Haven, Pa, where the troupe performed last week. The affair occurred at 11 o'clock on Thursday night. Miss Steiner says that Smith followed the company to Bradford and was forcing his attentions upon Miss May Bruno, a pretty 16-year-old chorus singer. Thursday night, after the show, she says, Smith insulted the girl, and having in hand a cart-whip, one of the stage properties used, in "The Mascot," she struck Smith with it once or twice over the shoulders. The novel spectacle of a woman horsewhipping a man on the main street of the city immediately attracted a gaping crowd. Smith, seeing the weapon raised to strike him a third time, took to his heels. At the trial Miss Steiner was bound over in $500 to court for trial. Bail was furnished by A. T. Newell. Smith said there was no truth in the charge of Miss Bruno that he insulted her. He met her in Lock Haven and paid her some attention. She intended to leave the company and remain in that city, but her friends thally persuaded her to go with them. He said he came here on private business, and, meeting her on the street, walked down to the opera house with her. She wanted him to buy her a bottle of brandy, and when she came out after the show she was mad at him for not getting it. He did not make any improper proposal to her, but admits that he is slightly "mashed" on the girl.

Deagle Does Fine Work For the Home Club the Visitors Not Hitting Him With Any Effect Until the Last Inning. A Great Batting Piente.

Yesterday afternoon the Lancaster club gained considerable ground in the Eastern League race by defeating the Newark, with which club they have been having a close race for fourth place. By yesterday's game he two teams are tie in games lost and won. A good-sized audience was present at the park to see the contest, and they were delighted with the playing of the home team. Jersey mosquitoes could do but little with him. Up to the last inning they had but four hits, and they succeeded in making the others at the tail of the game. Hickman pitched for the visitors, but the Lancastrians soon began hitting him hard. In the fifth inning the slugging was terrific, and every man in the nine had a bat. Seven runs were piled up, and in the next inning Hickman was taken out and gave place to Jones, who went in from second base, and did good work to the end. The fielding of the two teams was almost perfect. The umpiring of Mr. Holland was excellent, although at one time a party of men on the grand stand, who wore good clothes found fault with a decision. It has been computed that five-sixths of all who have fallen by the disease in England were taken from the ranks of the intemperate and dissolute." Dr. Rhinelander, who visited Montreal during the prevalence of the cholera there in the summer of 1832, says, "that the victims of the disease are intemperate." In that city after there had been 1,300 cases of the malady, a Montreal journal states that "not a drunk-ard who has been attacked has recovered, and almost all the victims have at least been moderate drinkers."

Dr. Sewell, who visited the chelera hospital of New York, states "that of 204 cases in the Park hospital, there were only six temperate persons, and that these had recovered; while 122 of the others had died when he wrote, nd that the fact were similar in all the other

Mr. Huber, who saw 2,160 perish in 21 days in one town of Russia, says: "It is a most remarkable circumstance that persons given to drink have been swept away like flies. In Tifls, containing 20,000 inhabitants, every drunkard has fallen; all are dead, not one emaining."

first taken the trouble to translate and to publish that portion of a paper on a journey to Merv, which relates to the Russian doings in that newly conquered part of the Turkoman country, I am sorry that he has omitted the rather interesting statement by which we learn that the Empress of Russia has also cooperated in the conquest of the above named place. The Russian writer of the said paper which appeared in the Turkestan Gazette, mentions among other details, the influence enjoyed by the widow of the late Chief Makhdumkill Kahn among the Merv Tekkes. This lady, called Gul Djemah, (i.e.) rose beauty), occupies a high standing in Merv, and it is owing to her position that Alikhanoff succeeded in entangling these much dreaded Turcomans in the plot which resulted in the voluntary surrender of the place. We had already during last summer read of the presents handed over by Dondou-koff-Korsakoff to that lady, and now we read in the aforesaid paper that it was her majesty the Empress of Russia who had sent the richly ornamented, gold-woven dress to Lady Gul Djemalh as a token of consideration, and that the attention paid by the empress to the widow of the late chieftain has crowned the transactions successianly beguin by the astute Caucasian Alikhanoff. Is it not remarkable that the late chieftain has crowned the transac-tions successfully begun by the astute Cau-casian Alikhanoff. Is it not remarkble that the saying "Cherchez la temme" can also find its application among the rude children of the desert? Well, Russia is always con-spicuous for the dexterity of her dealings with Asiatics, and, since your policy is sadly wanting in these qualities, it is very natural that your strictly European straightforward dealing is so easily checkmated by your rival.

Fish was placed before the bar and in answer to the question whether he had anything to say replied in a low but firm tone that he had not. Judge Benedict then spoke as follows: "James D. Fish, you were indicted by the United States grand jury and tried by able counsel in this court room of misapplying the funds of the bank of which you were president, and with falsifying the books of the institution. Your counsel made a motion for a new trial, and the three judges that heard the argument in your behalf adjudged that you were properly convicted, and consequently denied the motion for a new trial. The evidence adduced on the trial showed that your actions and conduct as president of the Marine bank were disgraceful and barefaced. The evidence throughout showed that your conduct was unprincipled. In order to deter others from perportating similar frauds, it seems to me proper that the extreme penalty of the law should be imposed upon you. The court therefore sentences you to 10 years' imprisonment extreme penaty of the law should be imposed upon you. The court therefore sentences you to 10 years' imprisonment at Auburn prison. The Republican Central club of Pottsville, Pa., sent a message of sympathy this morning. Dr. Douglas' apprehensions that the general would yet have to sions that the general would yet have to pay for his recent rally have been partly met. The mucus accumulation began to gather after 12, and he was scarcely free from usual pain until daylight. The general has been awake since 10 o'clock but is much weaker than vesterally, and too but is much weaker than yesterday, and too languid to leave his room. No special alarm is caused by the set back. The day, his family think, has been the cause of depressing him. The patient will be watched with extra care to-day to preclude if possible the assertion of further unfavorable symp-

CADETS RECOME RESELLIOUS

Because An Unpopular Claimant Receives Ar Alleged Merited Distinction. COLUMBIA, S. C. June 27-The cadets of the columbia, S. C. June 27—The cadets of the state military academy at Charleston, are in open revolt. It appears Cadet Schirmer, of Charleston, was recently promoted to be an officer of the cadet corp, on account of meritorious character, and as soon as the order was promulgated the entire corps, with the exception of about 20, openly refused to obey and respect the newly appointed officer. Cadet Schirmer, it is said, is one of the most About a year ago it became his duty to report for which they were subsequently dismissed.

His part in the affair made him obnoxious to the large body of his fellow cadets, who have vigorously tabooed him. Notwithstanding this he has been so diligent and proficient as to have won the appointment, the announce-ment of which was made the occasion of the rebellion. The board of visitors of the scademy have been summoned to investigate

Citizenship in the District of Columbia Chicago, June 27. — Yesterday Judge Gresham dismissed the bill brought by Augustus I. Ambler, of Washington, in the United States district court against Rodney M. Whipple, of Chicago. Whipple moved to dismiss the bill for want of jurisdiction in the federal court, as the complainant was a citizen of the District of Columbia, and the detendant a citizen of the state of Illinois. Attorney Storrs contended as the plaintiff obtained a decree in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, which is a U. S. court, the complainant could go into any decree. Judge Gresham held that the jurisdiction of the U. S. circuit court depended upon citizenship of the parties, and the court was one of limited jurisdiction, and a citizen of the District of Columbia was not a citizen of any state, and the bill would have to be

Investigating Hog Cholera

LINCOLN, Neb., June 27.—Dr. Julius Gerth jr., of the bureau of animal industry, Wash-ington, is here investigating the hog cholera question. A great many hogs have died in this state this spring and summer apparently from cholera, and the investigations of Dr. Gerth confirm the suspicion of the prevalence of the disease. Yesterday he performed an autopsy on the body of a hog supposed to have recovered from the disease and found the muscular tissue was examined and found to contain myraids of trichinse. It is the opinion of the doctor that this is a sample of he hogs in this section. No cases of poisonng have been reported, but maybe any day.

The Lost $900 Express Package. Nothing has been heard of the package of noney lost from the Adams express car at Landisville yesterday, although a diligent search has been made. It is now believed that the money was picked up and will never be recovered. A man who will never be recovered. A man who was at work in a field near the triace where the money is supposed to have fallen from the car, saw two men, who were walking along the track, pick something from the ground. They afterwards retired to a tree near by and remained some time. They separated shortly afterwards and one is known to have taken a western bound train at the station. The men were strangers in the neighborhood andwell dressed, both wearing white shirts. There is scarcely any doubt that they picked up the valuable package and got away with it.

An Important Factor in the Cause of Democ vary and Reform. Washington Corr. N. Y. Herald. There was a Pennsylvania farmer here also. He came from Tioga county. He said he had recently read in the news-papers that a Maryland farmer had sixteen children and that fourteen of them were men and voted for Cleveland and Hendricks last fall. He said the Mary man's record was a spiendid one and one that should make any man proud, but that he could beat it slightly, as he had seventeen children, and that fifteen of his boys not only voted for Cleveland but had also voted for Tilden and Hancock. He said no one of his family ever had an office or ever wanted one; that all of his boys were farmers and had as much as they could do to attend to their farms. The old gentleman was very cordially congratulated. He said he thought his boys would come down to Washington on the day after the Fourth of July, which they proposed to celebrate in Philadelphia.

Reuben Hutton Again Locked Up. It was said of the first Reuben, of whom history makes mention. "Unstable as water thou shalt not excel." Reuben Hutton appears to be no improvement on old Reuben. Yesterday he became drunken and disorderly which his ex-wife, Sallie F. Clark, who complaint of surety of the peace against him, and he was committed to answer at court; and the complaint of perjury made by him against his divorced wife was dismissed.

George Smith, a colored man living in the Seventh ward, has made complaint against Seventh ward, has made complaint against James Shields and a number of young men residing in the lower part of the Fourth ward for assault and battery. Smith alleges that while at work in that section of the city some days ago he was attacked and beaten by Shields and his friends. Shields was arrested yesterday and entered bail for a hearing. The other parties complicated in the assault have skipped from the city, but the officers expect them to return soon.
