A Well-Defined Issue.

Some of the Republican newspapers of the state are wise enough to see and frank enough to say that the cause of their candidate in the pending campaign was hurt by the refusal of the state convention nominating him to declare for the enforcement of the state constitution. It is lamentably true that although the present constitution of Pennsylvania has been adopted and in alleged operation for over a decade, and although the legislature was enjoined to carry its provisions into effect, every attempt to make efficient the constitutional regulation of the carrying corporations of the state has been obstructed and defeated.

It was perfectly consistent for the convention which nominated Quay to refuse to call attention to this abuse, and to decline to demand any reform of it. For to no influence in greater degree than to that which this candidate represents, is it owing that the constitution remains inoperative and ineffective in the important sections referred to. His leadership and power in his party have been invariably directed to that end. Had the convention which named him made a declaration inconsistent with his record on this subject, either he or his party would have been responsible for and would have suffered from the variance. They are in accord in their sympathy with the violation and defiance of the supreme law of the commonwealth.

Fortunately there is no room for misapprehension as to the attitude of the Democratic party in this state on this question. Its policy has been proclaimed so consistently year after year that it would be distressing, if it were not amusing, to note that even some of our esteemed contemporaries and some eminent statesman of the Democratic faith think it will be a new departure for the Democrats of Pennsylvania to declare for the enforcement of the constitution.

At Allentown last year the Democratic state convention declared for "the enforcement of the constitution of Pennsylvania in its every article and section," and especially demanded the "regulation by law, in accordance therewith of the corporations of the state." At Harrisburg in 1883 the Democratic convention declared that the seventh and seventeenth articles of this constitution, regulating corporations, were the supreme law of the commonwealth, and "should be enforced in their full vigor and meaning," that "extortions and fraudulent discriminations are crimes and should be punished as such." At Harrisburg in 1882, at Williamsport in 1881, at Harrisburg in 1880 and in 1879, and at divers times and places before that, making an unbroken record, we believe, the declarations of the Pennsylvania Democracy upon this subject have been clear and unmistakable.

Upon this issue the difference between the parties is well defined. The Democracy of Pennsylvania are for the constitution and for its enforcement.

Not Mysterious.

Mr. Chauncey Depew who, by virtue of his election to the presidency of the New York Central, takes position as a financier though bred to the law, is reported by the New York World to have lately said, in conversation with other gentlemen on the business situation of the country, that he is at a loss to account for the depression in business, when there is every condition for favorable investment, trade being upon a hard pan basis, the business wrecks swept away, and the banks of New York holding a hundred and sixty millions of idle money, drawing little or no interest. He considered it a mystery of finance that this capital should thus lie idle. His conclusion was that "capital is an idiot." In the flush times it went into every wild speculation, and now it refuses employment of any kind.

And then Mr. Depew went on to a statement of what he called a financial paradox, without seeming to know that it gave the explanation of his financial mystery. He said that certain creations of property result in corresponding destruction of capital. For instance, the Nickel Plate railroad cost $80,000,000; and it reduced the value of the Lake Shore, which it paralleled, $75,000,000; besides causing a reduction of the market value of its own $80,000,000 investment to $40,000,000. The like thing occurred when the West Shore paralleled the New York Central; and it is, in some proportion, the result that has attended every recent construction of railroads. There has been a wiping out of the market values of railroads all over the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific by the headlong construction of competing lines.

The reason is that there was much money in these constructions. The confidence of the people in the growth of the country was played upon by their projectors, and money was obtained to build them in excess of their extravagant cost, and they were built where there was not business to sustain them and their rivals. The earning of a profit, upon which the value of a railroad depends, became impossible, and the necessary result was a shrinkage in the market value of railroad securities. The investors lost their money; and the projectors lost their power to engage further money in their schemes. It was the old story of the goose and the golden eggs, and there is no mystery in the present idleness of capital that has been thus clearly caused. There is no outlook in railroad business at present for profit. The country must grow up to the need of its present railroad facilities, or to a near prospect of needing them, to create the confidence in the earning capacity of railroad property that will enhance its value.

The Primaries.

It is just as well for Democrats to remember that the laws regulating primary elections and nominating meetings, though passed mainly to prevent the scandals and punish the abuses of Republican ballot-box stuffers and return tinkers, are in full force and effect at Democratic primaries also.

As such primaries are to be held here this evening, and the county convention next week, it ought not to be forgotten that anything like bribery or bargain, the voting of disqualified persons, intimidation or return tinkering at primaries, is made a grave offense, punishable with severe penalties.

Moreover, the act of June 29, 1881, "to regulate the holding of and to prevent frauds in, the primary elections of the several political parties in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania," prescribes that judges, inspectors and clerks at all such nominating meetings and elections must be duly sworn; and not only are they liable for misconduct in office, but "if any judge, inspector, clerk or other officer of a primary election as aforesaid shall presume to act in such capacity before the taking and subscribing to the oath or affirmation required by this act, he shall on conviction be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars."

The county committeemen having been duly supplied with copies of these laws, it may be well for all concerned to scan them closely and adhere to them strictly, to avoid all pretext for complaint or scandal.

THE New York Herald, having read the Pall Mall Gazette's stories, advises everybody else to not follow its example.

LYNCHBURG, Virginia, has found out that the sewage of a portion of the populous district of the city enters the river above the entrance to the water works canal. It took an alarming prevalence of sickness to bring about the discovery. Let Lancaster take warning.

THE Austrian government, which has created a big tempest in a tea-pot by its unwillingness to receive Keiley as American minister, should make its conduct consist. It alleges against Mr. Keiley that as he has been deemed objectionable by Italy, Austria does not care to wound the tender susceptibilities of her neighbor to the south by approving him who has been disapproved. Yet there was a time when Austria was not so tender of the feelings of Italy. It declined to receive Anson Burlingame, who was sent as minister to Austria by the first Lincoln administration in 1861, for the reason that he "had spoken often in favor of Hungarian independence and had moved in Congress the recognition of Sardinia as a first-class power." This same Sardinia has grown to be that Kingdom of Italy, and because Keiley delivered an alleged unfriendly criticism of it, Italy would not have him, nor will Austria for the same alleged reason. Thus Austria makes a demerit out of what would have been a merit twenty-four years ago. So runs the world away.

DID the colored statesmen of Virginia again have to enter the kitchen to congratulate John S. Wise?

SOME art connoisseurs of Erie are now suffering from a severe attack of chagrin over the manner in which they were deceived in a lot of recent alleged art purchases. The effects of the late millionaire, Milton Courtright, were being disposed of at public sale, and as he was known to have been an ardent lover of art in its various forms, the connoisseurs of Erie turned out en great force to secure some of the famed treasures. In particular they were desirous of securing some artistic pottery, which the auctioneer announced to be genuine "baccharat" ware. Their appearance caused the greatest enthusiasm, and the bidding at once became spirited. The outcome of it all was that the pitchers which made up the collection brought $25 each. It has since been developed that these pitchers were merely prizes obtained by the purchase of a certain baking powder at the rate of 50 cents a package, and now there is weeping and gnashing of teeth in the art circles of Erie.

ENGLAND wants a better navy, and England's navy, as at present constituted, is infinitely better than that of the United States. Therefore are we sad.

THERE is a comfortable theory among a great many young college graduates, who have but recently gone from the four walls of their alma mater, that a college education is a passport without which one can travel but a short distance on the road to literary fame. They will admit, that a man may become a good lawyer, a successful politician, or a first-rate preacher without having conjugated Greek verbs or puzzled his brains over sines and co-sines. But when it comes to wooing the muses they will tell you that collegians necessarily distance those competitors who have not enjoyed the advantages of a college training. The theory is a beautiful one to them, and they are prepared to defend it by what seems to them unanswerable logic. It does not, however, seem strong enough to resist the array of facts that may be brought against it. Walt Whitman, Whipple, Trowbridge, Field, Parton, Bayard Taylor, Eggleston, Harte, Howells, James, Aldrich, Lathrop, Stockton, Piatt, Cable, Crawford, Fawcett, Gilder, Harris, Carleton, "Mark Twain," Stoddard and Burroughs, it is said, have gained all their knowledge and culture outside of college walls. None will pretend to say that these men have not left their impress on American literature. The truth about genius is that it can live down the most untoward circumstances that arise to check its growth.

THE Pittsburg Post has generally been a good newspaper. It is better than ever since it has begun to adopt the INTELLIGENCER'S editorials as its own.

THE Philadelphia Press, with characteristic inaccuracy, reports the name of Mr. Hensel, of this city, as among those of the persons who "have applied directly or indirectly for the place" of United States marshal for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania. As Mr. Hensel has repeatedly said that he has not been, is not and will not be a candidate for any office, whether filled by executive appointment or popular election, the Press probably prints this statement simply to keep up its reputation for inaccuracy.

FOR those who bathe it should be remembered that the readiest test of benefit is the glow of free surface circulation, or, at least, the absence of any decided chill after immersion.

A Girl Drowned While in Bathing.

Rose Delaney, 13 years old, was drowned Thursday evening at Reservoir station, near Hollidaysburg, Pa., on the Pennsylvania railroad branch. She had come to town in the afternoon to sell berries. Returning home at half-past eight, she found some of her companions bathing in the reservoir cut, and, although she could not swim, joined them. She asked one of her companions to teach her how to swim and venturing beyond her depth she was taken under by the swift current, where the water was twenty-five feet deep, and drowned before help could reach her.

SAM JONES' SUCCESS.

THE CHARACTER OF THE CONVERTS OF THE SOUTHERN REVIVALIST.

Men of Brains, Courage and Convictions Following in His Footsteps—Twenty-Seven Bar Rooms Closed in Knoxville, Tenn., After One Revival.

Correspondence of the Nashville American.

Prominent among those who have made an open profession of religion during the week under the ministrations of the great evangelist in Murfreesboro, Tennessee, are Captain James Clayton, William Mitchell, Col. N. C. Collier, N. C. Maney, Dan Brown, the Hon. E. B. Wade, Major D. H. C. Talley, Capt. Ben Beatty, sheriff; Major Drum Ridley, attorney; James Lane, C. G. Roberts, A. G. Tompkins, W. T. Gunn, E. F. Burton, attorney; A. G. Hill, O. P. Hill, Horace Keeble, Wat Keeble, John V. White, William Kimbro, W. B. Patty, J. M. Overall, mayor; William Johnson, P. Overall, John De Jarnette, Frank Avent and John Fleming. He leaves there Monday for Missouri, with Mrs. Jones, where he is engaged to evangelize several weeks.

I freely confess myself much less at a loss to make up my mind as to whether Brother Jones is a great preacher than I have been to finally determine whether Grant is a great general. If he were not throughly earnest and honest in his professions he could not deceive not only the people where he has preached abroad, but those at home who have known him (as a saint and sinner) from infancy, as a minister for 12 or 13 years. I have just conversed with a gentleman who was long a resident of the county in which Cartersville (Jones' home) is situated. He thinks very much of this modern Jonah; says every word is true of the story he himself tells of his former revelry and rapscallionism. That he drank, drank, drank, and went down, down, down, until he got to driving a dray for a living. This may be true or not; if not, I hope Brother Jones, in his next reference to the press, will candidly admit that not the newspapers, but the people, are the champion liars of the age. Newspapers are always honest, truth-telling interpreters. Indeed, they could not be otherwise. They reflect, just as a mirror does, that portion of the world held before it, and if liars are abroad, or lies, like lousy bats, encircle the air, they must be represented in the faithful newsgatherer. Papers are invariably truthful; it is you, sir, and you, and you, who are the liars.

No ordinary Georgia scrub could come to Tennessee and take possession as Brother Jones has done. He is either the greatest revivalist of the United States to-day or Tennesseeans are the most consummate asses living. So, indeed, are the Texans, Mississippians and others, for he has aroused the the same excitement everywhere. Col. B. F. Lillard, of Murfreesboro, pronounces him the great pulpit commoner, as Pitt, Clay, and Johnson were the great commoners of the political world. Pick out from the list of the converts the names of the few "hardened sinners" at the head of this letter. They are men of brains and courage and convictions; men whom no ordinary breeze could move from any position. Read his sermons. Are they not, for the most part, full of plain, practical sense and theological orthodoxy? If the Christian's Bible is the foundation of hope, who could better testify to the common people (for the uncommon people either) his faith in the divinity of the written word than when he says:

"I believe the whale swallowed Jonah; believe it literally. I only do not believe that Jonah swallowed the whale simply because the Bible dosen't say he did."

To the sinner who hesitates, who waits for his "feelings" to move him, who wants to "feel" that he is good enough to go before he makes any change in his conduct, was there ever a more homely or more convincing illustration presented than the anecdote of the man who sat down, axe in hand, at the root of a tree one cold, frosty morning, waiting for the sweat to break out before he went to work?

Brother Jones admits his natural weakness. He has the appearance of a man of a hasty and once violent temper. It must have been difficult at first to keep a lock upon his lips; he is no doubt a man, brave, impulsive, courageous—the very sort open to temptation. Was there ever a better illustration of one liable to fall, yet determined to stand, than that made yesterday of himself?

"I don't care how often one err, if he'll honestly strive to restrain himself and recover his proper balance when he does err. All along the way we meet with conflicts and temptations. When I stumble and fall, thank God I always fall like an india rubber ball. I fall bouncing! God will put his angels on half rations to keep an honest man and his family from starving."

Withal, he reaches men of less impossible sympathies by mixing horse sense logic with horse sense anecdotes and illustrations, for no one can more clearly establish to the multitude his proposition that "religion is a matter of principle and conviction."

But the best answer to all his critics is to point to results. What if Brother Jones' words are plain and blunt? What though he prefers to call the devil the devil rather than "his satanic excellency" from the burned district?" Or likes unshirted "hell" better than "sheol" in purple and fine linen? He moves his hearers. He holds in his hand the assembled thousands; and whether he preach 40 minutes or two hours they hang on, obedient to his will! Let results decide the issue. Men of all grades and classes enjoy his sermons alike. They rise at 5 in the morning to prepare for his 6 o'clock service—men, women, and children, who, perhaps, have never seen the sun rise till now. And when the exhortation is delivered and "Psalms of Victory" sung, they move forward from all parts of the tent, and "those who came to scoff remain to pray." The bar-keeper and his patron, the gambler and his victim, the doctor and his patient, men and women, lawyer and client, good and bad, hardened age and tender childhood, till, within the past three days, at this meeting alone, three or four hundred have either professed religion or declared themselves penitent.

It is the proud boast of Brother Jones' friends and admirers that in a single revival at Knoxville he closed 27 bar rooms, and thus redeemed 270 drunkards. How poor and insignificant seem all the results of the Maine liquor and bleeding Kansas prohibition laws, in comparison with a work like that!

RELIGIOUS MELANGE.

Auguste Vitu, the dramatic critic of the Figaro, who knew Victor Hugo very intimately, quotes him as saying: "Those who flatter themselves that they see God under a certain definite figure, and who confine him with a dogma, are rash; those who deny his existence are fools. That is my profession of faith; and this God, whom I do not know, I adore with all the force of my intelligence and reason."

Prof. Briggs makes an attack, in the Presbyterian Review, on the revised version of the Old Testament. He holds a chair of Hebrew in a leading theological seminary. He charges that the revisers have slavishly followed the Jewish Masoretic text, instead of seeking to secure, as did the New Testament revisers, a correct text; and that they have proved themselves incompetent, from their ignorance of Hebrew grammar, to translate correctly the text as they received it.

A youngster of 4, rather noted for his depravity than otherwise, was taken into his mother's bedroom the other day and introduced to his baby sister, 1 day old. He seemed to look on the new arrival with considerable embarrassment, not unmixed with disapproval, and at the same time to appreciate the fact that it devolved upon him to say something worthy the occasion. Finally he remarked, with a rising inflection expressive of great unctuousness, "Well, I hope she'll be a Christian!"—Boston Record.

One of our brother editors announces that all the money his paper makes above paying its way shall go to building Baptist churches. Doubtless he hopes that such a declaration will bring him patronage which but for this pledge might not come. But we think we can safely say that it will not add a single name to his list, and for two reasons: No one will believe that the paper will ever do more than pay its own expenses, even if it should do that much. Then, again, that plan for building churches will not be considered best by those in favor of church building. Most of them are in that matter like the Hon. S. A. Crozer, of Upland, Pa. He was urged to unite in forming a Baptist syndicate to buy some unimproved real estate in Chicago, and give the profits of the speculation to a Baptist seminary. He declined, saying, "When I give, I give; when I buy, I buy."—Richmond (Va.) Religious Herald.

ARCHBISHOP RYAN, of Philadelphia, will confer episcopal consecration on Sunday, August 2, upon Right Rev. Richard Phelan, D. D., coadjutor bishop-elect to Right Rev. John Tuigg, D. D., bishop of the united sees of Pittsburg and Allegheny. The ceremony will be performed in Pittsburg.

SOLITUDE.

[Ella Wheeler Wilcox, through her attorney, Howard Douglass, of Cincinnati, has brought suit against the Church Musical company for the publication over Colonel John A. Joyce's signature, of a poem she claims to have written. The poem is called "Solitude," and has been published in nearly every paper in this country. Colonel Joyce lays claim to the production and says it was written over twenty years ago on a banter of George D. Prentice, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, during a wine entertainment at the Galt house, Louisville. Philadelphia Times. Following is the poem of this disputed authorship:]

Laugh! And the world laughs with you!
Weep, and you weep alone;
For the sad old Earth must borrow its mirth,
But has trouble enough of its own.

Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh—it is lost on the air.
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But are slow to voice your care.

Rejoice, and men will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn to go.
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not need your woe.

Be glad and your friends are many,
Be sad and you lose them all;
There are none to decline your nectared wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast, and the world goes by.
Succeed and give, and it helps you live,
But no man can help you die.

There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a large and lordly train;
But one by one we must all file on
Through the narrow aisles of pain.

HEALTH HINTS.

The Vapor Bath a Real Luxury—An Excellent Substitute.

From the Household.

A reader of our Household asks me how she can have the benefit of vapor baths in her own home, where she has no conveniences for baths of any kind; and thinking there may be many others among our band of 80,000 to whom such suggestions might be helpful, and, having several other little things to talk about which pertain to home treatment of invalids and well people too, it may be well to say it to all, rather than the one inquirer.

The vapor bath is happily, one of those comforts, yes, real luxuries, which is not confined to those who generally have a surplus of such things. The humblest home may contain all necessary appliances for such baths. All that is needed is a foot bath, or small wooden tub, a pail two or three bricks and some hot water. The patient should be undressed, wearing only a night dress or wrapped in a very thin blanket and seated in a cane chair under which is the wooden pail half full of boiling water. The foot tub should be also half full of water as hot as the feet can bear comfortably. Then wrap the patient in blankets covering the chair and tub, tucking them in about the floor that no steam may escape, but do not cover the head at all. When the water begins to cool, which it will do in three or four minutes put one of the three hot bricks, which should be all ready for use, into the pail under the chair, lifting the blanket as little as possible and holding the brick with a stout pair of tongs, or a very thick holder. Then add boiling water to that in the foot-tub and in four minutes repeat. If the patient is not by that time in a profuse perspiration repeat at the end of another four minutes. From fifteen to twenty minutes will be sufficient for a bath. Then take the feet from the water, wipe them very dry, and wrap in a warm blanket. Then with a soft towel, wipe the rest of the body gradually, keeping covered as well as possible. Next give a good rubbing with a Turkish or bath towl—a soft crash will answer—put on dry garments and get the patient into bed immediately. Do not put on too many blankets, no more perspiring is needful or desirable.

A feeling of rest and refreshment and a sound, sweet sleep will usually follow this bath, which is not intended alone for invalids but is most helpful to tired or debilitated people, and is invaluable in cases of severe colds, nervous headaches, when accompanied with chills, or in the slow fevers which abound in malarial districts.

Those who will take a vapor bath once a week at night, sponging the body afterward with warm water and a little good soap, or amonnia or borax to give the water a feeling of softness, should have no reason to find fault with their complexions. No cosmetic will give the satisfactory results of proper bathing especially when combined with healthful exercises and a wholesome diet, of which fruits, vegetables and the "flat wheat," "peeled wheat flour," oats and barley should form a large percentage. Milk is excellent for those who can drink it, and the less tea and coffee one takes during the summer the better. During July and August very little meat should be eaten. One will not suffer from restricting his or her diet in this respect, as at this time in the year our native fruits and best vegetables are in their prime.

The Wife and the Money Question.

From the Independent.

There is a vast amount of mediævalism surviving in the romantic aspirations of the average democratic American for his wife, his sisters and his lady friends generally. He is willing enough to work and toil and be a plain citizen with the rest, for his own part. But he wants the fair lady to sit apart in her bower, to welcome him with her white hand, and to shine on him as the unwearied goddess of a domestic paradise. Organized as society already is in part, and as it is rapidly coming to be in the whole, this is hard on women. It is a dream whose high price they have to pay. It goes on the idea that women have no relations to money except to spend it as doled out to them, or, in exceptional cases, showered on them with demoralizing profusion. It takes away from them the moral training of earning money and of administering it, and leaves them helpless when the masculine support fails and they are required to win their own way in the world. Money to the well-trained and experienced man is a word meaning character, energy, industry, prejudice, self control and these are ideas which the function of a good housewife trains her to comprehend. As a rule, she gets ahead of the man in her mastery of them.

Fiends Pursuing the Goddess of Sleep.

The poetic imagery of Grecian mythology applied to this practical age, would picture the air filled with the grinning fiends of care, anxiety, worry, pride, ambition and myriads more, persistently chasing the gentle goddess of sleep from her holy vocation of wooing weary eyelids to the soft arms of unconscious repose, and maliciously frustrating all her efforts by operating the Pandemonium of Insomnia through shattered nerves and wrecked physical powers. Then the sweet goddess would wave her wand and summon the Hercules of DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY to her aid, and utterly rout the hostile furies, by furnishing all under its protecting ægis, the recuperative strength to triumphantly defy all attacks while waving the victorious banner of rosy health over the unassailable fortress of each individual life. And all this would not be fancy, but actual fact. At all reliable grocers and druggists.

Bloody Riot in Mexico.

Foolish as it seems, the riot was all about some nickel coins which had recently been issued by the Mexican government, and which the Mexicans disliked. A small cause, surely. But blood corpuscles are only one of our five-cent nickles. And yet what a circus they stir up if anything goes wrong with them! MEDICAL.

NOW IS THE TIME TO CURE

Skin Humors.

It is at this season when the Pores are clogged and the Blood and Perspiration are laden with Impurities that Disfiguring Humors, Humiliating Eruptions, Itching Tortures, Salt Rheum or Eczema, Psoriasis, Tetter, Ringworm, Baby Humors, Scrofula, Scrofulous Sores, Abscesses and Discharging Wounds, and every species of Itching, Scaly and Pimply Diseases of the Skin and Scalp, are most speedily and economically cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

IT IS A FACT.

Hundreds of letters in our possession (copies of which may be had by return mail) are our authority for the assertion that Skin, Scalp and Blood Humors, whether Scrofulous, Inherited or Contagious, may NOW be permanently cured by CUTICURA RESOLVENT the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP, the great Skin Cures and Beautifiers, externally, in one-half the time and expense of any other season.

GREATEST ON EARTH.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case of Salt Rheum in this country, My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe CUTICURA would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP, externally. J. W. ADAMS, NEWARK, O.

Greatest Blood Medicines.

The half has not been told as to the great curative powers of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I have paid hundreds of dollars for medicines to cure diseases of the blood and skin, and never found anything yet to equal the CUTICURA REMEDIES. CHAS. A. WILLIAMS, PROVIDENCE, R. I.
