DISENCHANTMENT.

She stood on the cool piazza
As the shades of evening fell,
And I gazed on the lovely maiden,
Entranced by her beauty's spell.

The balmy evening zephyrs
Played with each golden tress;
And her azure eyes were swimming
In a sea of tenderness.

Her lips, just slightly parted,
Were tinged with the coral's flame,
And I thought that her cheeks' bright blushes
The hue of the rose would shame.

While gazing in admiration
On the rare and radiant love,
I thought sweetest music only
Through those coral lips could pass.

But a sudden change came o'er her,
Gone was the smile so bland;
And she smote in sudden anger
The back of her lily hand.

And she cried, "Ha! ha! I've got you,
You'll trouble my peace no more;
You're the same darned old mosquito
That I tried to mash before."

GETTING THE WRONG MARY.

A Case of Mistaken Identity That Occurred at Castle Garden, New York.

From the New York Times.

"I want me niece, Mary Dougherty, that's cum by the Ethiopia; will yer Honor plaze give her to me?" said Mary Hannigan, of Stony Point, to Mr. Miller at Castle Garden Monday morning.

"Mary Dougherty, come here, your aunt wants you," called out Mr. Miller, and a healthy looking Irish girl of about 20 years of age stepped out, saying, "Yes, sir, here oi am; where is she?"

Mary Hannigan threw her arms around the girl's neck and showered kisses on her. "How much loike yer faythur ye look, me darlin'; ye're his very image," she exclaimed, and kissed the girl again and again. She attended to Mary's baggage, and hurried her off. They had just boarded the boat when Mary remarked that great changes had taken place in county Leitrim since her aunt left the old country.

"And sure yez crazy Mary, to talk of county Leitrim when it's from Ulster county ye've come," replied Mrs. Hannigan.

"Do ye suppose I don't know where oi was born and bred?" exclaimed Mary, and then a suspicion flashed across her mind and she asked: "Who is it ye've afther?"

"Sure, after ye, me neice, Mary Dougherty, me puir, mitherless girl," replied Mrs. Hannigan.

"Oh, wurra, wurra, whin did me mither doi?" gasped Mary almost in hysterics, and then a flood of tears flowed from her eyes.

Mrs. Hannigan stared at the girl in astonishment and devoutly crossed herself. She thought the girl had gone stark mad. "Why, don't ye remember yer mither doide 13 years ago?" she asked.

"What's the matter wid ye; me mither paid me passage acrosst," said Mary, impatiently.

Mrs. Hannigan looked at the girl's eyes, and then asked her when they had turned blue. The girl indignantly said they had always been of that color. Then they finally came to an understanding. Two Marys by the family name of Dougherty had arrived by the Ethiopia, and although they somewhat resembled each other, and both had brown hair, they were not in anywise related to each other. Each one expected her aunt to meet her at Castle Garden. One Mary, however, had blue eyes and the other's were brown. Blue-eyed Mary's ear alone had caught Mr. Miller's voice, and she had hurried forward. The women returned to Castle Garden, where Mrs. Hannigan's neice was waiting. Blue-eyed Mary waited until the afternoon, and then took the train for Susquehanna, Penna., to join her mother and aunt.

A Story of the Postmaster General.

From the Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

A story is told of Postmaster General Vilas in his boyhood by the old gossips of Chelsea, Vt., his native place, which may or may not be characteristic of him at the present time. When he was a little boy not yet out of skirts he became disgusted at the prosiness of a Methodist minister, a friend of his parents, who lived in the same town. This one was invited to dine with them one day and asked to offer prayer before eating. He began praying in the long-winded way which was a characteristic of those times, and has, unfortunately, not wholly departed from our own. Finally the boy, who was impatient for his dinner, could wait no longer, and when the divine hesitated for the proper word a little longer than was his wont, he clapped his knife sharply on the table, and, having attracted everybody's attention, cried out, "For Christ's sake, Amen!" so confusing the speaker that he was enabled to begin eating without further delay.

Did Not Like Atlanta.

From the Raleigh (N. C.) News.

A worthy old gentleman of middle Georgia has an only son residing in Atlanta. Once a years he goes up to the Gate City to spend a week with his son and grandchildren, but after a day or two he tires of the noise, drive, and brag of that flourishing town, and betakes himself home again. On one such occasion he said at parting: "John, I don't like this place. It's a right peart town, but every baby born here is given a tin speaking trumpet, and taught to shout Atlanta before it can say mammy or daddy. I don't like it."

Consolation by a Type-Writer.

A clergyman who had learned to use a type-writer wrote consolation to a parishioner who had lost his wife. The man was indignant, and would not speak to his pastor. When a friend inquired the reason he said: "I always supposed he had some heart, but when my wife died he sent me an infernal circular, not having enough interest to write something especially adapted to my case. I want nothing to do with a man who is as formal and heartless as that." He was not aware of the existence of the type-writer, explains the Christian Advocate, which tells the story, and thought the matter was printed.

"Dr. Petzold's German Bitters." I consider one of the best medicines for Malaria and indigestion that I have ever prescribed and do not hesitate to recommend the same.
Baltimore, Md. C. L. JOHNSON, M. D.

Supremely Delightful

To the emaciated and debilitated invalid is the sense of returning health and strength produced by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. When that promoter of vigor is tested by persons in feeble health, its restorative and vitalizing potency soon evinces itself in improved appetite, digestion and nightly repose, the sole conditions under which strength and nerve quietude is vouchsafed to the human system. A gain in flesh of course ensues upon the restoration of digestion and assimilation. As surely as winter follows the fall of the leaf, does disease shadow the footsteps of declining strength, when the premature decadence of vitality is not arrested. Marasmus, consumption and other wasting maladies are prompt to fasten upon the enfeebled. Avert disease, therefore, with this grand enabling tonic, which not only renews failing strength, but mitigates and counteracts the infirmities of age and those of the gentler sex. Rheumatism, malaria, liver and kidney troubles yield to it. aug19-2s

FAVORITE REMEDY.

TO GRATIFY HIS WIFE.

A Good Reason for Happiness.

"For many years I have suffered from a complaint which the physicians called Gravel. I had employed some of the most noted doctors without obtaining any permanent relief, and for a long time my case was regarded as hopeless. All who knew the circumstances said I must die. Finally my wife induced me to try a bottle of Dr. Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy,' which she had somewhere heard of or seen advertised. Without the slightest faith in it, but solely to gratify her, I bought a bottle of a druggist in our village. I used that and two or three bottles more, and, to make a long story short, I am now as healthy a man as there is in the country.

"Since then I have recommended 'Favorite Remedy' to others whom I know to have suffered from Kidney and Liver complaints; and I assure the public that the 'Favorite Remedy' has done its work with a similar completeness in every single instance, and I trust some other sick and discouraged mortal may hear of it and try the 'Favorite Remedy,' as I did."—Washington Monroe, Catskill, N. Y.

Don't Let a Foolish Prejudice against popular medicines stand between you and the health of your wife, child or baby. Dr. Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy' is a blessing.
