THE LANCASTER DALLY INTELLIGENCER, THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1885

prices of grain are low, it is not difficult for them to induce numerous persons in almost every community, who have not special fit-ness or experience for the work, to undertake, at least in a small way, the planting of or-chards or small fruits. It requires a highly gifted seer to perceive that most of these efforts will be abortive. The fact is, the wrecks of ill conceived truit plantations are strewn over the whole country. We have no desire to say a word that may discourage any one from engaging in fruit culture who will attempt it in a rational and business-like manner; but we would warn the inexperi-enced to look on both sides of the subject, and it has two sides, one of which is not the rose-colored one that is usually painted by

J. H. Stoddard.

Stable manure is always reliable, and when delivered on the field at two dollars per load is far more economical. The grea trouble is that it cannot be procured in suffi cent quantity. The only remedy to fall back upon is to keep the manure-making stock or should we in our haste be careless about the quality of our stock; such stock only should be maintained on the farm as the owner will not be ashamed to show, but may have them, as it were, perpetually on exhi-bition. But under any, and all circum-stances, the idea must be permanent, to re-store to the land what we take from it-nay, more, Different kinds of land require different modes of treatment, and it should be farmer's study to become acquainted with its needs.

From the Germantown Telegraph. The Canadian Breeder in an article upon this subject says : "The truth is that the most delicious butter is that which is left unsalted." While it may be possible that but ter is salted more than is necessary, it will require some time to educate the American people into the idea of using upon the table unsalted butter. This is a matter of educa tion the same as many others, and all Ameri-cans have been educated to the use of salted butter. It is said that in Europe the use of unsalted butter is common, and that it is with the greatest difficulty that upon coming the base of the same as a second to this country travelers become accustomed to the salted butter; the same is also to the salted butter; the same is also true of American travelers in Europe, in getting accustomed to the unsalted article. It might be advisable for Americans to culti-vate a taste for unsalted butter if anything was to be gained by the operation, but the probabilities would be the opposite. Much butter is sent to market or is held for that purpose, and while in winter it might be no difficult matter to keep butter fresh for some time, in the warm weather in summer the matter assumes a different condition. It is possible that salting destroys some of the is possible that salting destroys some of the flavor of the butter, but inasmuch as the sea-soning of all kinds of food is a cultivated taste and has a place in domestic economy, the omission of salt from butter will hardly be made. The quantity may be greatly in-duced, but enough will be employed to en-sure the safe keeping of the article after the trouble of manufacture.

feeble health, its restorative and vitaliging po tency soon evinces itself in improved appetite, digestion and nightly repose, the sole conditions under which strength and nerve quietude is nucleasted to the human system. A gain in flesh of course ensues upon the restoration of digestion and assimilation. As surely as winter cliows the fall of the leaf, does disease shadow the footsteps of declining strength, when the premature decadence of vitality is not arrested. Mararinus, consumption and other wasting mal-Mararmus, consumption and other wasting inal-adies are prompt to fasten upon the enfectied. Avert disease, therefore, with this grand ena-bling tonic, which not only renews failing strength, but mitigates and counteracts the in-firmities of age and those of the gentler sex. Rheumatism, malaria, liver and kidney trou-bles stated to it and the set of the gentler sex. ples yield to it. ---

"ROUGH ON CATARRH " corrects offensive odors at once. Complete cure of even worst chronic cases, also the qualled as gargie for Diphtheria, Sore Throat, Foul Breath, Soc.

FINE SECOND-HAND WOR STORAGE CONSISTING OF BUGGIPS, PH ETOR -AND IDENNA. CIGARS FROM $1.00 PER HARTMAN'S YELLOW FRONT CIGAR COMMISSION WAREHOUSE. tog nearly d no. DANIEL MAYER 16 West Chestnut street.

Contraction of the

LANCASTER, PA.

32, 34, 36, and 38 East King St.,

LANCASTER PA.