A SALEM WITCHCRAFT MEMORY Sad Scenes at the Trial and Execution of Mr.

Rebecca Nourse in 1692. The Boston Globe publishes the following regarding the trial and execution of Rebecca Nourse, who was sacrificed to that strange religion Moloch, Salem witcheraft, in 1692. The magistrate (Hawthorne) mentioned was an ancestor of Nathaniel Hawthorne, and is, no doubt, the original of Colonel Pyncheon, in the House of Seven Gables, The life and death of Rebecca Nourse form a sad chapter in the history of Salem. Tradition says that she was a beautiful woman, past middle age, and respected by all who knew her, from the time she first entered the town until, in accordance with the popular superstition of witcheraft, she fell a victim to her neighbors' displeasure, and calmly went to her death on Gallows Hill. With the promptness which characterized her people's acts on religious subjects, four indictments were sworn out against her, and the wife of Francis Nourse, one of the most re-spectable citizens of the deluded town, was ought into court.

In her old age, experiencing a full share of the delicate infirmities which the instincts of humanity require to be treated with tender consideration, she was ruthlessly snatched from the midst of a loving family and made to feel the horrors of a criminal's life and death—to please the imaginative and re-ligiously crazed people.

Of her early life little can be said. She was born in Yarmouth, England, in 1621, but came to this country and settled in married state, having two sons. For many years she was one of the leading sisters in the First church, and was actively engaged in all religious work. How the latal hand of suspisettled on her has never been ascertained, but it is known that her examination came off in the First Parish church. The age, character and appearance of the prisoner made the occasion one of unusual interest. The building was crowded. Hawtherne, the magistrate, began the proceedings by addressone of her accusers: Has this woman ever hurt you?"

"Yes," was the reply.
"What do you say to that?" (to the prisoner.)

In a clear but low voice the woman replied: "I can say before my Eternal Father 1 am innocent, and God will clear my innocency. Then followed the investigation. With the customary unrelenting character of the accusers a deaf ear was turned to the elo-quent appeals of the wife and mother, who seemed to speak by divine inspiration for life and liberty. So clear was her defense that no possible case could be made out against her, but, despite it all, she was kept within the arm of law, and without regard to justice sent to jail. Mrs. Nourse, as has been said, was a very devont woman, and probably the hardest blow of all was the action of the First church, of which she was a member. The records still preserved read as follows:

"After sacrament the elders propounded to the church, and it was by unanimous vote consented to that our Sister Nouses, being a consented to that our Sister Nourse, being a convicted witch, and condemed to die, be excommunicated, which was accordingly done in the afternoon, she being present, Then came the day of the execution, July 19, 1622. At an early hour the little village was bristling with activity. "The devil's angel on earth" was to be punished with the death she deserved, and so the Puritan maidens attired themselves in holiday dres madens attred themselves in holiday dress to honor the event. The procession to the gallows was a long one, scores of people from the neighboring towns and villages taking part. The victim, manaeled and guarded by the sheriff and his deputy, headed the line, while close behind followed troops of men and women who laughed, deeming it rare sport to see the agonized faces of the terror-stricken family as they watched the mother and wife grow pale, and i remble as she began the ascent of the rocky cliff whose top was crowned with the instrument of death. It is impossible in words to deplet the scene of the execution in the horrible colors in which tradition has painted it. With firm step and eyes upturned to Heaven the gray-haired woman took her place on the drop. Silenti the hangman tied the rope before the cage waiting assembly; then a momentary hush passed over the crowd—the executioner's duty done. A moment later all that was left to tell the story was the body of the aged woman swinging gently in the summer Seldom has woman met with harder fate.

The body was thrown with the previous vic-tims in a hole in the crevice of the rocks and hastily covered with earth. The masses of spectators turned homeward, leaving the be-reaved family at the homestead uncared for and ignored by their once firm friends.

and ignored by their once nrm trees.

"Dr. Petzold's German Bitters" I consider one of the best medicines for Malaria and indi-gestion that I have ever prescribed and do not not hesitate to recommend the same. Baltimore, Md. C. L. Joneson, M. D.

Supremely Delightful
To the emaciated and debilitated invalid is the sense of returning health and strength produced by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. When that promoter of vigor is tested by persons in feeble health, its restorative and vitalizing potency soon evinces itself in improved appetite, digestion and nightly repose, the sole conditions under which strength and nerve quietude is youch-afed to the human system. A gain in flesh of course ensues upon the restoration of digestion and assimilation. As surely as winter follows the fall of the leaf, does discusse shadow the footsteps of declining strength, when the premature decadence of vitality is not arrested.
Mararmus, consumption and other wasting maladies are prompi to fasten upon the entechied. Avert disease, therefore, with this grand ena-bing tonic, which not only renews failing strength, but mitigates and counteracts the in-firmities of age and those of the gentler sex. Rhomatism, malaria, liver and hidney trou-bles yield to it.

FLANNEL SHIRTS IN ALL COLORS,

Fine White and Colored Shirts. TRUNKS, VALISES, UMBRELLAS, &c. We have also greatly reduced the prices of our Light and Medium Weight in our Merchant Tailoring Department. It will pay you to buy of us now, even if you are not in need of the goods this season, and are obliged to carry them over until next spring, for you save fully one-third of the price on every article.

We make this sacrifice in order to make room for our Fall and Winter Stock, which will be the largest and best assortment of any that were ever offered in Lancaster.

N. B.—We are now ready with a full line of

Two weeks more and the boys will don their scholastic suits, hie away happy and blithe to the merry tinkle of the school bell. We will help to give them a good send off by preparing for your and their special benefit a quantity of

BOY'S SUITS Made with special attention to toughness wits that are strongly sewed, and the prices are cominal compared with former years.

Boy's Furnishing Goods.

In preparing for the school boys clothing we have not forgotten the Undershirts, Drawers, Hose, Collars, Flannel Shirts, Calleo and Percale Shirts, Neckties and Pocket Handkerchiefs.

BOY'S HATS AND CAPS The hats and caps have been selected for the boys with great care. The proper attention has been paid to fashion, to have none but the latest and most popular styles of the best possible material in both stiff and soft hats. The boy's polos are of all-wool material, and in colors that are stylish and desirable. Caps with visors in all colors, with prices, as usual, the lowest.

BOY'S BOOTS & SHOES

Amongst the great variety of kinds in Boy's School shoes it is a litle difficult to decide which is the best; there are so many kinds, and all are good. Solid Leather Shoes, with buttons on them that are tough. Were we maked to decide upon one particular kind we would say upon the GEM, feeling sure you could not go wrong by such a selection. It has been tried many times by our numerous customers, and has never failed to come fully up to their expectations. A full range of sizes in Button, Balmorat or Congress.
