The fight started in the usual manager, over some trivial cause, but soon assumed such proportions that a general riot scemed dence of INTELLIGENCER uer, over some trivial cause, but soon assumed such proportions that a general riot seemed imminent. Stones, clubs and other missiles were flying about in a very promiscuous manner, and a number of cutheads and other bruises are very plentiful today. The fight only stopped after the commismants had become tired of indulging in this sort of pastime. A number of warrants have been issued for the agrest of several persons concerned in the fight. A constable was on the hill all day yesterday in search of several men, but has not as yet succeeded in arresting the parties he was looking for. A hearing will take piace this evening at the office of Squire Young, at which time some part of the trouble arising from the fight of Saturday night will be settled.

Christian is a noted character and is continually getting himself into some sort of trouble. At almost every session of court his name appears on the trial list to answer some charge, and he is hardly released from jail when he is in some other trouble and is ready to be sent back to his old quarters. He had a hearing this morning before Squire Evans, but as there are other parties interested in the same suit and they have not iseen arrested yet, Hildebrandt was sent again to the lockup to await a further hearing. ## A TRAGEDY AFTER THE PICNIC.

A Young Man Who Wanted Haif a Plut of Whisky, Shot by the Saloon Keeper. On Saturday night Horaco Maginnis and William Walker attended a picnic given by the Violet Co. M. Schutzen park, in the lugion, Del. At about the O'clock they left the park, but returned after midnight, after every one else had gone. Walker's story of what followed is as follows:

"We found Theodore Becker, proprietor of the place, sitting on the porch, and saw a light in the barroom. Maginnis wanted half a pint of whisky, but Becker would not let him have it. We then went down behind a shed to wait there until somebody should come out of the barroom, or the lights were put out. We had been there but a short time when Becker came out with some weapon. I put out. We had been there but a short time when Becker came out with some weapon, I think it was a shotgun. We both called to him not to shoot, but he blazed away, and killed Maginnis, and I then ran away."

Walker, who is held as a witness, declares there was no provocation for the shooting.

Immediately after the killing, Becker came into town and gave himself up to the first policeman he met. Maginnis was 21 years old and unmarried. He lived at Riudle's Banks, and so far as has been learned had borne a good reputation.

Polly Was Sick.

Thomas Green, the proprietor of Green's hotel, Philadelphia, allowed his poll parrot to walk about on the window ledge of one of the second-story windows Sunday evening. The window was open and Polly lost her balance and fell on her head on the Chestnut street pavement. As she fell she uttered a shrick which attracted the attention of Reserve Officer Dougherty, who was standing on the corner of Eighth street. He ran and picked the parrot up. As he carried it into the hotel the parrot said: "Polly's sick," Blood trickled from its green feathered head as the officer handed it to Chief Clerk Diamond, and officer handed it to Chief Clerk Diamond, and the bird said again as it closed its eyes; "Polly's sick." The wife of the hotel proprietor, who thought a great deal of the bird, soothed it in her hands and stroked the wounded head. "Polly's sick," said the parrot again, and then as the blood flowed down into its eyes it tried to brush it away with its claws. While its bleeding hoad was being washed it repeated a number of times. "Polly's sick." For an hour it lay perfectly quiet with its eyes closed, and then suddenly repeated again, "Polly's sick." A mement later the parrot fell over dead.

The Groom 75 ; the Bride 25.

o of the best known characters in New Haven, Conn., is Rev. Alonzo G. Shears, M. D, whose years already number seventy-tive. For years he was the rector of St. Luke's church, but his taste for medicine led him into the practice of physics. He is considered a good biblicist, is somewhat of a poet and a shining light in the local literary world, despite the burden of his years. He has just astounded his triends and the city in general by wedding a young and beautiful New York lady, Miss Mary Paimer, whose years number just one-third his own.

The "Swope" Picaic.

The annual picale of the Canstatter Volksfest is being held at Teil's Hain this afternoon, and the indications are that it will be one of the largest affairs of the kind ever held at that place. The fruit column was trimmed by the committee of arrangements, and it is very beautiful. Among the amusements this afternoon is the chase of the bare. All kinds of refreshments are dealt out on the grounds. There will be games of every discription. All who attend can rest assured that they will have a fine time.

Miss Cleveland Misquotes. From the Pall Mall Gazette.

diss Cleveland is not so accurate in quotaion as might be desired. Shakespeare never aid, "All the world's a stage, and men and women are the actors," nor did Tennyson write. "The old order changeth and yieldeth place to new." Democracy (witness Whitness) is superior to scansion as autocracy to grammar; but in this effete old island our are are obstinately conservative.

NO MONOPOLY OF REVELATION. ongressman W. D. Kelley Tells a New One About Lincoln. Hon. Wm. D. Kelley tells of Lincoln that

Hon. Wm. D. Kelley tells of Lincoln that once after he had received and, as he supposed of through with a deputation of Friends, and was turning to his deak, one of the women of the delegation stepped toward him and begged permission to detain him while she bore a brief testimony. With an air of ill-subdued impatience, he said: "I will hear the Friend." The testimony was ostensibly a plea in behalt of the slave, but it was evidently intended as an indirect plea for the fuller recognition of woman in governmental matters; for the speaker, after reminding the president that when the children of Israel had been terribly wronged and oppressed for twenty years, and had cried unto the Lord for deliverance, He had appointed Deborah, who was a prophetess and judged Israel at that time, to overthrow their oppressors and emancipate them, and that Deborah had gone up against Sisera whom the Lord discomited, with all his troops and all his hosts, so that Sisera leaped down off his charlot and flad away on his feet. Having elaborated this Biblical example, the speaker assumed that the president was, as Deborah had been, the appointed minister of the Lord, and proceeded to tell him that it was his duty to follow the example of Deborah, and forthwith abolish slavery and establish freedom throughout the land, as the Lord had appointed him to do.

"Has the Friend finished?" said the president do.

"Has the Friend finished?" said the pres "Has the Friend finished?" said the president as she ceased to speak. Having received an affirmative answer, he said: "I have neither time nor disposition to enter into discussion with the Friend, and end this occasion by suggesting for her consideration the question, whether, if it be true that the Lord has appointed me to do the work she has indicated, it is almost probable that He would have communicated knowledge of the fact to me as well as to her."

A FAITHFUL ANIMAL.

History of Hon. Simon Cameron's Fame Horse "Colonel."

From the Mariet'a Register.

Almost everbody in this vicinity knew "Colonel," General Cameron's favorite driving horse, that died a few weeks ago, but de ing horse, that died a few weeks ago, but do not know his history.

"Colonel" was one of a pair of horses which General Cameron purchased in New York in 1860, when he was appointed Lincoln's war secretary, for which he paid $2,000 for the pair. This horse was then represented as being four years old, consequently he was nearly 30 years old when he died. General Cameron did not know to what breed the horse belonged, and did not care much, he only knew he was a good animal. A Russian Mennonite visited Donegal farms some years ago and when he spled this horse he asked the general where he purchased him, and remarked: "Do you know that that breed of horses is allowed in Russia to be owned by the nobility only?"

While General Cameron was secretary of war and during his senatorial life at Washington, this horse had the honor of having most of the noted men of the country ride behind him, including four presidents of the United States—Limeoin, Johnson, Grant and Garfield—Sumner, Hamlin, Wade and many others of that day, and in fact up to the present time. He was afforwards than to United States others of that day, and in fact up to the pres-ent time. He was afterwards taken to Har-risburg where he carried many of the state elebrities. The faithful animal was brought to Donega arms some time about the year 1875, and re mained there until; his death on July 19th. At no time in all his eventful career was be unfit for service, and he survived four mates which were driven with him at different imes. He is one of the all day horses, and only two years ago took four men from Donegal farms to the Marietta station in twenty minutes, a distance of three miles or over. He was often mistaken for a colt, as he car ried his head high and was always ready for a little "sport." The farm hands, who be-came attached to him, made a grave on the farm and built a fence around it.

"Cotonel" is the first horse Simon B.
Cameron, manager of Donegal farms, remembers riding behind.

A Queer Bird.

A person traveling on horseback through some of the little valleys of the interior of Southern California will often, in passing by bushes near the road, hear a rustle and see an olive-green bird, with white breast, come fluttering out and go rushing on ahead, as sano, or "road-runner," and if the traveler accepts the challenge and starts in pursuit of the ranning bird, he will not win the race unless his arimal is swift. The road runner unless his animal is swift. The road runner will not try to fly away, as most birds would do, but will skim along at a very rapid rate. This bird belongs particularly to California, and is not found east of the Sierra Nevada mountains. It is about two feet long, its tail being about half its length. The tail feathers are green tipped with white.

The road runner has one great enemy—the rattlesnake—and the bird has an ingenious way of getting rid of its foe. Its plan is to wait until it sees the snake lying asleep curled up in the sun. Then the road runner softly collects cactus enough to make a prickly hedge all around the snake. After a while the rattlesnake wakes up, tries to uncoil himself, and to stretch after his nap, but he cannot do so. A sharp spine pricks his head, another runs into his side, another thorn galls him on the other side, and whichever way he moves he feels some stinging pain. This moves he feels some stinging pain. This soon makes the rattlesnake very angry, and as he cannot find anything else to strike, he raises his head, opens his mouth, and bites at raises his head, opens his mouth, and bles at himself, burying his poison fangs in his own flesh, and so dies in a little while of his own poison. In this way the road-runner gets rid of its enemy without exposing itself to any danger at all, providing the snake does not wake up before the cactus hedge is finished.

"Is your pa at home, little girl?" "Yes, "Is your pa at home, little girl?" "Yes, sir; do you wish to-see him? "Yes," "But you won't know him if you do do see him!" "Wby, what's the matter?" "Well, you see, out in the country, on our farm, a man and his wife got to fighting, and pa tried to stop them." "Oh, indeed!" "Yes; you'd better call again. You wouldn't know pa now."

Narrow Escape of a Wagon. A man and woman, who were driving a horse hitched to a covered wagon up Water street above Walnut yesterday morning, made a narrow escape from being killed. A south-bound train came around the curve while they were on the track and the horse frightened. The man jumped upon the animal's back and succeeded in getting him out of the way. The wheels of the wagon were broken by being caught in the track.
