BUICIDE OF A BANK TREASURER.

The run on the savings bank of South ramingham, Mass., whose treasurer, Cole-tan S. Adams, last week resigned at the de-land of Bank Examiner Gatchell, has been egrity, and on Monday but $15,000 was paid ut. The trustees unanimously expressed ieficiency. Mr. Adams, who has held his office twenty-seven years, has appeared very cool and collected during the excitement of he last four days, and has assisted in figuring up depositors' accounts, etc.

At two o'clock Monday afternoon the eximiner, Mr. Gatchell, arrived in the town, and went to the lawyer's office, where Adams was at work. Adams left and proceeded to the bank, and Mr. Gatchell followed him and took up his ledger to examine it. Adams went to the office of the bank and cut his threat with a razor, dying almost immediately. When found he had a revolver beside him, which it is supposed he intended to use in case the razor did not accomplish the work. The news spread like wild fire through the town and business was interrupted seriously. The bank was closed at once. The body was placed in charge of the proper authorities. He leaves a wife, one son, Walter, chairman of the board of selectman of Framingham, and a prominent Boston lawyer, Joseph S., who for years has been associated with his father in the bank at Framingham and also the insurance business.

Mr. Gatchell has returned to Boston. A HUNDRED THOUSAND STRONG

Samudu's Great Army of Mohammedans Mov-ing Through Interior Africa in Three Sections to Suppress Paganism. Secretary of State Bayard is in receipt of a dispatch from Sierra Leone, giving accounts of the movements of an army of 100,000 men in the interior [of Africa. The dispatch is dated July 14 last, and was sent by United States Consul Lewis. Mr. Lewis

"I have the honor to bring to the notice of the department of state the fact of an extra ordinary movement among the Mohammedans of the Nigritian regions, extending from Timbuctoo to the West Coast. It appears that in 1880 a Mandingl, named Samudu, of extraordinary intelligence and energy, conceived the idea that he was called of God to wage a war for the suppres-sion of paganism and the opening of the roads to the coast, which in certain districts have been for generations subjected to excessive blackmail and to the plundering of vagabond tribes. During the last five years he has collected an army consisting of foot and horse of about 100,000 men. Mobammedan youth, wherever he goes flock to his standard, anxious not only to secure the reward in the hereafter promised to those who fight for their religion, but to carry off the rich spoils which these expeditions of battle for faith are sure to win.

"It is said that Samudu's army is divided into three portions. One is operating near the head waters of the Niger. This portion recently drove certain French troops from the gold regions of Baure, of which they had taken possession, and are now besieging Bammaks, a large town on the Niger, occupied about three years ago by the French, who have erected fortifications there.

"Another portion of the army is operating in the regions east of Liberia, and by suppressing the disturbing elements, unfetterin the regions east of Liberia, and by suppressing the disturbing elements, unfettering trade and introducing a knowledge of religion and letters, is, in one sense, opening the way for negro immigrants of intelligence and energy from America to push out from the Africa-American republic to the healthy and fertile regions of the interior. In another sense it is forstalling the whole region for Mohammedanism and making it difficult if not impossible, if, indeed, it is desirable, to convert that country to the faith imported from America by the immigrants.

"The third portion of the army is approaching the coast a few miles northwest of Sierra Leene. It has secured the submission by force or voluntary surrender of all the the tribes on the way for 500 miles back.

the tribes on the way for 500 miles back.
"The largest and most important pagan kingdom this side of the Niger was Saulima, kingdom this side of the Niger was Saallma, of which Talaba, a large commercial city, was the capital. For the last sixty years the Fulah Mohammedans have been trying, by diplomacy and by arms, to subdue this city to the faith; but it has always successfully resisted both diplomat and warrior. Last year Samudu's army, in overwhelming numbers, surrended it and called upon the King to surrender and profess Islam. This he refused to do. The town was then invested, and after a terrible siege of five vested, and after a terrible slege of five months the king assembled the royal family and principal chiefs in the powder-house and informed them that he could hold out no informed them that he could hold out no longer, as his resources were exhausted, but, having for more than 200 years belonged to the ruling element, he was determined for himself and family to die rather than come under Mohammedan rule. He gave the chiefs their choice, either to die with him or go out of the town and give themselves up to the enemy. They decided to die with him. He then set fire to the powder and they were all blown up. Thus ended the Saalima power, which for more than seven generations had influenced the trade and politics of extensive districts, and had commanded the principal highways to the coast. manded the principal highways to the coast.

"Another very important achievement of this army is the destruction of the Hooboo power—an irresponsible organization, which for thirty years has been a source of annoyance and loss to caravans passing from the interior to the coast. Samudu gave orders to attack them in their mountain strongholds, which, until then, had proved inaccessible to the neighboring forces. They were surroused. Their other had been surroused. ised. Their chief, Abal, was captured as decapitated, and his arms and legs, severed from the trunk, were sent to the various countries whose inhabitants had suffered from his predatory and murderous proceed ings. The Hooboos are described as renegade Faulahs in rebellion against the King of Timbo. The roads have now been cleared of these thieves and murderers, so that an unprotected child or female may travel in safety all through that district.

"These operations will not be without a salutary effect upon American commerce, for there is in that country an increasing de-there is in that country an increasing de-mand for American productions, and many of the articles produced by the people are valuable in American trade.

"Samudu's army is now only a few miles from the coast, north of Sierra Leone. It is said to be their purpose now to deal with the Jimuch and Sherbro countries, whose consaid to be their purpose now to deal with the Jimuch and Sherbro countries, whose constant wars keep the maritime regions in such a state of forment that after the caravans have struggled through obstructions for hundreds of miles they find their greatest difficulty among the coast tribes, and often fall victims to the latter. Samudu proposes to settle these districts, or if not able to do so, then to seize the professional warrors, who are the chief causes of disorder, and transport them to the distant interior, where there will be no opportunity for the gratification of their warlike proclivities.

"It is not known here what steps the government of Sierra Leone will take in view of the proceedings of this force from the interior, but it is believed that a judicious co-operation with them on the part of the British authorities would effect great good for the freedom and permanent security of trade in the regions neighboring to the colony."

TALE OF AUDDEN RICHES COMING PROW WILKESBARNE.

Nick Bradley, a Former Lancaster Ball Player Postne as a Man of Wealth-The Story of How "a Mere Walf Among Strangers" Makes a Hit Worth $100,000.

Lancastrians who took an interest in th poble came of base ball will easily recall the figure of Nicholas Bradley, who played left figure of Nicholas Bradley, who played left field for the Ironsides last year, and who during the present season played on the Jersey City and Wilkesbarre clubs respectively. When a resident of Lancaster, Mr. Bradley frequently referred to his parents as still living in New Branswick, N. J., and to his brothers and sisters there resident. Remembering these facts, the following from the Wilkesbarre News Dealer of August 24, reads very much like a fairy tale:

A member of the Wilkesbarre base ball club is in luck. "Nick" Bradley, the former left-fielder and lately short stop of our excellent organization, has ascertained from the most reliable sources that he had just fallen heir to a fortune amounting to fully $100,000. The story of the circumstances leading to the boy's good fortune is as intensely interesting as it is romantic.

In January, 1885, there died at Sheffield, England, a wealthy manufacturer of cutlery-named William Crawford Temple, who at the time of his death proved to be worth personal property and real estate to the amount of forty thousand pounds sterling. Mr. Temple was the father of two children, a son and a daughter, and around the latter's history hangs a thread of romance.

AN UNVEELING PATREE. It appears that in 1859 the daughter, whos name was Alice Temple, formed the acquintance of Charles Bradley, then the colonel of an English regiment, at that time stationed is Sheffield. This acquaintance gradually ripened into friendship, and from friendship into love. Everything ran smoothly until a few months later Colonet Bradley, having obtained the young lady's promise to wed him, asked her father's consent. sent. In consequence of Colonel Bradley having but a small income, the old man re jected him with scorn, and was given to un-derstand that after that day the Temple mansion would be closed against him. At the same time he was forbidden to speak to or recognize the manufacturer's daughter. But in this as in other cases, it was demonstra-ted that "love laughs at locksmiths," and the divine affection triumphed over pa-rental dictation. Three weeks afterwards, in direct violation of William Crawford Tem-ple's commands, Colonel Bradley and Miss Alice Temple were married. On account of not being recognized at home by Mr. Tem-ple, Col. Bradley resigned his commission, and in company with his young wife, deter-mined to seek a fortune in free America. They located in New Brunswick, N. J., where the colonel quickly found employment on board a steamboat. He prospered nicely, though circumstances did not admit of the accumulation of any considerable sum of money. In the meantime a bright boy which had been born unto them, had cemented their love and made their fireside happier

THE INCUITABLE CLOUD. But, alas a cloud came at last. In 1870 while in the discharge of his duty, Colonel Bradley was accidently drowned in a storm off Sandy Hook. His young wife survived him but a few short months, dying of grief and a broken heart, leaving their only child, Nicholas Bradley, a mere waif among strang-ers, to fight the battle of life as best he could. The boy was soon thrown upon his own re-sources and gradually drifted from one occu-pation to another, until the summer of 1883 found him engaged as a professional base ball player at Trenton, N. J. In 1884 he played with the Lancasters and this year joined the Wilkesbarre team, playing with the earnest-ness and ability which have won for him an enviable reputation in the profession.

Young Bradley was yesterday notified in this city of the death of his grandfather William Crawford Temple. It appears that Mr. Temple, becoming old and lonesome repented of his hasty and cruel treatment of his only daughter on his death-bed, and that one of the last acts of his life was the willing of half his estate to the missing daughter, requesting his son to make a careful search for her and her child—the latter to inherit the fortune in case of the mother's death. Mr. Temple, ir., at once began the search. On arriving at New Brunswick, a few days ago he was informed of the sad fate of his sister and the whereabouts of her son. He at once came to Wilkesbarre, where an afat once came to Wilkesbarre, where an af-fectionate meeting took place between uncle and nephew.

Mr. Bradley informed a News-Dealer reporter last evening that he would leave for Sheffield, England, in October, to look after his estate there. In the meantime he will to-day sign the necessary papers to secure his rights and these will at once be taken to England by his uncle duly certified.

It was resolved not to advance money to players on future contracts, and it was further determined to have the clubs of the two sasociations pledge themselves not to negotiate nor contract with any League or Association club prior to the 20th of October next. It was also agreed that after the close of the championship season the clubs of the associations would interchange games. The other matters discussed and passed upon by the committee will be reported to the associations for approval. The conference was entirely harmonious.

Killed on His Own Railroad.

Captain David S. Babcock, vice president of the New York, Providence & Boston railroad, was killed at Stonington, R. I., at 9 o'clock Monday evening, while walking across the railroad track near the depot. Mr. Babcock and a personal friend of his, named Mr. Spicer, of Mystic, left the hotel where Mr. Babcock has been stopping for the past two weeks to go to the depot. About this time a switching engine was making up a passenger train, when Mr. Babcock crossed the track, and was instantly killed. Mr. Spicer, who was but a short distance, also came near being killed.

Captain Babcock was about 63 years of age, and leaves a family. Besides being vice president of the road, he was general manager of the Providence & Stonington railroad, and president of the Providence & Stonington steamship company. He has been in the employ of the railroad company for many years. The president of the railroad, S. D. Babcock, is his uncle.

THE FIRST LANCASTRIAN CREMATED. How One of the Founders of the Society Ex-

LANCASTER, PA., TUESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1885.

How One of the Founders of the Society Exemplified His Principles.

The sun went down and the moon rose up. Twilight melted into moonlight, and the lamps of the little chapet in the Lancaster crematorium cast "a dim religious light" through it, that was in striking contrast with the silvery effulgence flooding all out-of-doors at 8 o'clock last evening.

Through the long avenue that runs between fragrant corn fields guests invited to the private ceremony and curiosity seekers, on foot and in carriages, wended their way to the crematorium; for it was generally known that the body of the late George Brubaker, politician and lawyer, was to be cremated. He was the first member of the society who had died since its establishment and his was the first body of a Lancastrian disposed of by the new method.

The visitors crowded the room. It was hot. The night was close and still, and the radiation from the furnace materially heightened the temperature. There were quite a number of ladies present, and several persons from outside the city. They all waited in solemn silence for the ceremony, which was novel to most of the assemblage.

The arrival of the body was not noticed. The hearse had driven up; the corpse was removed to the inner room, prepared for the iron crib, enveloped in the alum-steeped shroud, laid upon the catafalque and covered with the pall, before Dr. M. L. Davis' unlocking of the door signalled to the assemblage that the ceremony was about to begin.

When the wheeled bier had been brought out into the chapel, before the door of the retort was opened, Rev. J. Max Hark, standing by the son of deceased, H. C. Brubaker and his two sons, read an extract from that matchless lifteenth chapter of I Corinthians; and after that the great iron door was unbolted, and for a moment the rosy light of the interior was seen. Then with celerity and without a hitch of the apparatus the body was reverently placed in the retort, the door closed and in a few seconds the quick processes of decomposition were at work. In little

He is ardently in favor of cremation, and says that in his town, where the cemeter ies are filled and nearly every foothold on the steep hillsides has been occupied, crema-tion must soon be resorted to as a necessity.

There were no prayermeetings held, as the business meeting occupied the time usually devoted to them.

The 10 o'clock sermon was preached the tabernacie by Eider W. Sanborn, of Har-risburg: text, Jeremiah xi., 5. The dis-course was on the subject of the Christian's

At 1:30 Rev. C. Price, of Harrisburg, gave an exposition on certain passages in the Scripture relating to baptism, which had been previously lead by Rev. A. H. Long. After this service about fifty persons rode to the Big Chiques creek, where the ordinance of baptism by immersion was administered to three candidates by Eider G. W. Seithamer. These exercises were full of interest.

The evening sermon was preached by Elder J. W. Deshong, of Altoona, who selected his text from 2 Timothy ii.,3: "Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."

After the sermon the formal exercises incident to the breaking up of the camp followed, and were of a peculiarly interesting nature. They lasted until a late hour, and consisted of marching round the circle, general hand-sbaking, etc.

Thus closed an interesting and profitable campmeeting, which will be remembered by those whose good fortune it was to be in attendance.

The amusement season was opened in this city last evening when Annie Lewis, and her company appeared in the comedy-drama entitled "A Little Trump." Although the weather was irightfully hot, and there were numerous other amusements in the city, the audience was of very good size. The play is calculated to please an audience, as it contains a considerable amount of fun. Miss Lewis is the star of the party and appears in no less than six characters. She is a fine young actress, of the Carrie Swain style, and is bound to become a favorite. During the play a number of songs and duets were given by Misses Annie and Lillie Lewis and the song and dance of the former scored a hit. The company supporting the little lady is strong, and Maurice Pike, a good Dutch comedian, makes a first class Fritz. The company appear again this evening in the same play. city last evening when Annie Lewis, and

THE PROPLE AGAINST VANDERBILT.

A Bill in Equity to Be Filed Enjoining the Pro-posed Railroad Deal.

The Philadelphia Times says that a sudden halt will be called this morning in the negotiations between Vanderbilt and the Pennsylvania railroad, whereby Vanderbilt was to gain control of the West Shore and the Pennsylvania was to have acquired control of the South Pennsylvania and the Beach Creek roads. Attorney General Cas-sidy will file a bill in equity in common pleas sidy will file a bit in equity in common pleaseourt, No. 3, restraining the Pennsylvania or its agents from purchasing or by any means, direct or indirect, acquiring control of either the South Pennsylvania or the Beach Creek roads. He bases it on article seventeen of the constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section four of article seventeen provides that "no railroad, canal or other corporation, or the lessees, purchasers or managers of any railroad or canal corporation, shall consolidate the stock, property or franchises of such corporation with, or lease or purchase the works or franchises of, or in any way control any other railroad or canal corporation owning or having under its control a parallel or competing line."

The attorney general was a very busy man last night, but he found time to say this much while on his way to his office:

"I shall file a bill in equity te-morrow morning to restrain the Pennsylvania railroad company, Vanderbilt and all other parties concerned from transferring the South Pennsylvania and Beach Creek railroads. It will include all hands, and I shall file the bill as soon as I can find one. The bill will rest principally upon article seventeen of the new constitution, which relates to corpora-bill as soon as I can find one. The bill will rest principally upon article seventeen of the new constitution, which relates to corporations, which, of course, will be elaborated upon. Still it tells the whole story, although there are some incidental constitutional questions which will be brought in. I am going to do this as the law officer of the state, so that it cannot be said that action was taken by any interested parties. There is the constitution, and I propose to have the question determined finally whether a great railroad is simply a private corporation or is an institution for the public good—a common carrier. It is a matter which will affect not only Pennsylvania but all other states, and is the most serious subject which has been brought forward for a generation. Of course I understand that the Pennsylvania railroad company will say that they derived their charter from the state prior to the adoption of the new constitution.

and that they are therefore exempt from its provisions. But I am going to make the courts settle it once and for all." MEETING OF PENNSYLVANIA'S DIRECTORS. A meeting of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania railroad was held yesterday flernoon at the company's office. All men bers out of town were hastily summoned to attend, and special trains were sent over the road to bring them to the meeting, which was called to anticipate, if possible, any legal steps that the anti-transfer parties of the Beach Creek and South Penn railroads might inaugurate to prevent the consummation of the deal. The meeting was long and the situation was thoroughly discussed by those present. The proper parties were instructed to take all necessary steps to protect the inter-ests of the Pennsylvania company and to insure the carrying out of the deal according to the original programme.

A prominent officer of the Pennsylvania

prior to the adoption of the new constitution

A prominent officer of the Pennsylvania company stated that that company would find a way to circumvent any measures that the anti-transfer party might take to prevent the sale of the Beech Creek or South Penn and that the situation was fully understood at the time the bargain was made in New York. At that time a way was suggested by which all legal obstructions could be circumvented. The present attitude of the anti-transfer party anticipated and the Pennsylvania is now to fight its way through the courts.
