half a lullaby and half a knell,
"Farewell, sweet summer,
Honey-laden summer,
Sweet farowell!"

The little brook that bubbles 'mid the ferns,
O'er twisted roots and sandy shallows playing,
Seems fain to linger in its eddled turns,
And with a plaintive, purring voice is saying, and aweeter than my song can tell,
"Farewell, sweet summer,
Warm and dreamy summer,
Sweet farewell!"

The fitful breeze sweeps down the winding With gold and crimson leaves before it flying Its gusty laughter has no sign of pain, But in the luil it sinks in gentle sighing, And mourns the summer's early broken spell, "Farewell, sweet summer, the American Agriculturist. great mistake is sometimes made in vencellars and milk houses. The object ventilation is to keep the cellars cool and dry, but this object often fails of being ac-complished by a common mistake and inad the cellar is made both warm and damp. A cool place should never be ventilated, unss the air admitted is cooler than the air ithin, or at least as cool as that, or a very little warmer. The warmer the air the more moisture it holds in suspension. Necessarily, condensed and precipitated. When a cool cellar is aired on a warm day, the entering air being in motion appears cool; but as it fills the cellar, the cooler air with which it becomes mixed chills it, the moisture becomes endensed, and dew is deposited on the cold walls, and may often be seen running down them in streams. Then the cellar is damp and soon becomes mouldy. To avoid this the windows should only be opened late at night—the last thing before retiring. There is no need to fear that the night air is unhealthful; it is as pure as the air of midday, and is really drier. The cool air enters the apartment during the night and circulates through it. The window should be closed before sunrise in the morning and kept closed and shaded during the day. If the air of a cellar is damp it may be thoroughly dried by placing in it a peck of fresh lime in an open box. A peck of lime will absorb about seven pounds, or more than three quarts of water, and in this way a cellar or milk room may soon be dried, even in the hottest weather. A bushel of lime absorbs twenty-seven pounds of water, and still appears as dry nowder. In this condition in cellar is aired on a warm day, the entering twenty-seven pounds of water, and still appears as a dry powder. In this condition it will be very useful to spread over the garden or lawn, or around fruit trees, or it may be used for whitewash. This precaution is often necessary in the dairy because of the prevalence, where the air is damp, of mildews and the various forms of mould. The orange and red kinds of mould especially, which sometimes form upon the cream, have a most injurious effect upon the butter.

BINTS FOR THE FARMER. Remarks on the Cooling of Cellars—Pro-iding Shelter in Pastures—How to Break a Young Horse.

most injurious effect upon the butter. Shelter in Pastures. In some sections of the country pasture are supplied with shade trees that serve as a shelter from the rays of a scorehing sun and a partial shelter from the pelting of the ciless storm. When this natural provision does not exist some sort of shelter should be provided temporarily. This may be accomplished by erecting one or two sheds without any siding—a simple roof that white affording shelter also admits a free circulation of air. This of course for early spring or late fall shelter when storms prevail would not be as suitable as an enclosed structure. When pastures are so situated as to have no open connection with the barnyard or farm buildings to which the cattle can go for shelter from storms, it would be well to erect a shed with large doors that may be thrown open in hot weather or kept closed for stormy weather. A structure of this kind need not be expensive nor so elaborate in construction but that any farmer of average capacity could erect it alone. The roof might be made of boards and replaced when worsor too badly warped. All the lumber that need be required would be two sills of the length of the building required, six by six inches, two of a length to correspond with the width of the structure; four or six posts of the same dimensions, six feet long, (as the shelter need not be high), two plates and two cross-beams, (or three if the length requires that the middle be tied) four by six inches; a ridge pole of the length of the building; fall shelter when storms prevail would not that the middle be tied) four by six inches; a ridge pole of the length of the building; two pieces four by four inches to serve as purliu plates, with which to form the roof of loards, putting them on up and down, and some short pieces to use for braces and to support ridge pole and purlins, and studding for the doors. The sills may be halved to support ridge pole and purlins, and studding for the doors. The sills may be halved to support ridge pole and purlins, and studding for the doors. The sills may be halved to support ridge pole and purlins, and studding for the doors. The sills may be halved to support ridge pole and purlins, and studding for the doors. The sills may be halved to support ridge pole and spiked. Such a structure twelve by twenty feet would require about 600 feet of timber and 1,000 feet of boards and a few pounds of nails. Is there a farmer who is unwilling to do so little for the comfort of his animals?

Breaking a Young Horse.

A well-broken horse, says the Breeders'

A well-broken horse, says the Breeders' Journal, is more preferable to use in breaking a young horse, and long drives in a wagon will organize a colt quicker and bet-ter than anything else. For our own use, we ter than anything else. For our own use, we much prefer to break colts at first with a bitting rig. This gives them a better mouth and a more wholesome respect for the bit than any other method. Two weeks of the the bitting bridle, three hours a day, with the colt turned out by himself in a safe lot and good fence, is worth many dollars to a horse in after life. Never tie a colt or an old horse with an old or insecure halter; for if the colt never knows that he can break his halter, he will very soon give up trying.

When lips receive a rosy flush,
And teeth becomes a dazzling white,
Beneath the efforts of the brush,
When SOZODONT is used aright;
The mouth becomes sweet, pure and warm,
And the fresh breath an odorous charm.

IDA G. ABRAM, 308 E. Chase street, Baltimore, Md., writes: I have been suffering for years with Dyspepsia. I was advised by my physician, Dr. Milton N. Taylor, to try " Dr. Petzold's German Bitters," and after taking it but a short time, I feel greatly benefited. I have a splendid appetite and am gaining in fiesh.

Full of Peril

Are those disorders which, beginning with an apparently trivial inactivity of the kidneys or bladder, terminates in Bright's disease, diabetes and cystilis. The first two not only interrupt the functions of the renal organs, but destroy their structure with as much certainty as tubertheir structure with as much certainty as tubercalar consumption does that of the lungs. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an excellent diructic, promoting the activity of these organs without over exciting them, thus averting the deadly maladies in which their action is so prone to culminate. The removal from the blood of impurities which the kidneys should, but do not, when inactive, secrete, is another beneficent effect of this incomparable medicated stimulant and depurent. The Bitters is, in all cases, too, a fine restorative of vigor and aid to digestion, remedies malarial disease, and banishes liver complaint and constipation.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Who does not delight to use a good looking face? Yet crysipelas disfigures the features almost beyond recognition. But this is not the worst of it. This disease is as dangerous as it is repulsive. It is sometimes called "5t. Anthony's Fire," and often causes sudden death. Mr. S. R. Carpenter, of Grandville, N. Y., had it in both legs and was cured by Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, The medicine excels all others for the blood. Especially sdapted to persons in feeble health.
