OH, HAD I KNOWN! If I had thought so soon she would have died,
He said, I had been tenderer in my speech.
I had a moment lingered at her side,
And held her, ere she passed beyond my reach,
If I had thought so soon she would have died. That day she looked up with her startled eyes, Like some hur, creature, where the woods are deep; With kisses I had stilled those breaking sighs; with kisses closed those eyelids into sleep, That day she looked up with he: startled eyes. Oh, had I known she would have died so soon, Love had not wasted on a barren land; Love, like those rivers under torrid noon,

Lost on the desert, poured out on the sand—
Oh, had I known she would have died so soon.

BENATOR PHILETUS BANYER. How He Repaid His Brother the One Dollar

He Leut Him. Washington Letter to the Cleveland Leader A friend of Senator Sawyer tells an inci-dent of his generosity to his brother a year or two ago, and the nest way in which he gave him a present, making it appear a debt. Senator Sawyer hardly knows what he is worth, save that his pile runs pretty high up in the millions. His father was a hard-work-ing man, kept a blacksmith's shop, and at the same time did a number of other things, making a comfortable little income. Phimaking a comfortable little income. Philetus Sawyer was born in Vermont, but when he was still a baby his father moved to Easex county, N. Y. When he was 17 years old Philetus bought his time of his father until he was 21, paying him $100 for it. His elder brother loaned him the money for this, and he struck out for himself. He engaged in various kinds of work, among which was lumbering, and when he was 31 years old he paid back his hundred dollars, and had amassed a little over $2,000 more. He then concluded to go West. In the meantime he had been married and had a child or two. On his way to Wiscensin he stopped at his brother's and upon his asking him how much money he had, he answered that he had $2,000 in a belt around his waist and under his shirt, and he had been paying out a good deal, but he thought he had still about $200 in his pockets. "Count it," said his brother. Sawyer counted it, and figured up just $199. Hereupon his brother handed him a dollar, telling him that that would make up his $2,200, and that he would know just how much he started away with. Sawyer took it, and the next day went on to Wisconsin. He bought a tarm there and in time got into the lumber business, became wealthy, and now has been for years in the United States Senate.

In the meantime his elder brother staid in New York and attended to his farm. He still lives there, and has a farm worth about $10,000. He is one of the respected clizens of his county, and his note is as good as gold. still lives there, and has a farm worth about $10,000. He is one of the respected clizens of his county, and his note is as good as gold any day. Sawyer comes out to visit him every year or two, and thinks a great deal of him. Two years ago he asked him how he was situated financially, and, after much pressing, found that, though there was no merigage on the farm, he owed two notes incrtgage on the farm, he owed two notes amounting, with interest, to about $1,100, and that he was troubled by the fact that he was troubled by the fact that he could not get enough ahead every year to pay more than the interest on them. Senator Sawyer said nothing, but the next morning, on the pretext of wanting to see some old friends, he slipped away from his brother's house and bought his notes. That night he asked his brother, in the course of their evening chat, whether he had any other debts whatever. His brother replied that he was owing about $100 in debts here and there. Senator Sawyer hereupon here and there. Senator Sawyer hereupon took out the two notes, amounting to $1,100, and placing $100 on the top of them, he hand-ed the pile to his brothers, telling him that would make him even with the world, and would make him even with the world, and he then continued: "You need not feel rackward about taking this, because it is merely the payment of a debt. When I went West you gave me a dollar, never expecting to get it back. I considered that dollar as a loan, as an investment, as a part of my capital. As far as I can estimate now, each one of the $2,200 which I carried away with me has swelled into $1,200, and in giving you this $1,200 I am only giving you your share of the profits." "I asked Senator Sawyer," said this gentleman, "what his brother said when he did this, and he replied: "He did not know what to make of it at first, but he finally took the money and the notes, saying he wished he had invested $1,000 instead of $1."

The satie has been seriously affected with a cough inquiries into the merits of this particular shock. And I have found cut all about it. The whole shock was manufactured by a dozen old maids of fashion who run Washington scenety, and the society correspondents and society newspapers. Mrs. J. Potter Brown, to premise, is a very handsome woman. Not only is she handsome, but she possesses intellectable tharms, graces of conversation and a marvellous tact, rarely combined in the same person, and that person a handsome woman. Now, Mrs. Brown was the rage in New York, and the New Yorkers here imported her for a particular purpose. These New Yorkers form a "sect," and, being comparatively new, they have been, with all their wealth, running "up grade" from the start. The old "moas back" (excuse my social style of description) have also had a pretty tough time to hold their own sgainst the new comers. The social leaders of the old regime die about as hard as the political leaders of the former era. Mrs. Secretary Whitney's champagne and terrapin have fairly mowed them down, but they still have their grip on the newspapers and the army and mavy elite. Well after the sad inroads of shampagny water and diamond-back, these old cats who have had long possession of the social back fence couldn't stand Mrs. James H. Y. Potter Brown. They caucused among the spikes and broken glass, and resolved unanimously that they would not stand it. Then they went purring about the fashionable parlors, as sleek and soit and furry as if their velvet paws concealed no keen nails lying in wait for Mrs. J. Potter Smith Brown. The New York set are patronized by Mrs. Whitney, and Mrs. Whitney is blessed with diamonds and diamond-backs. (That is about all, for I heard a real lady of the old mossback set, who had been to eat up Mrs. Whitney's terrapin, declare that she, Mrs. W., is as homely as a mud fence.) When the coming of Mrs. J. P. B. was heralded, she was at once set down as the newest wrinkle of Mrs. Whitney is an officials of the new official world tumbled over each other to bask in the su shock. And I have found out all about it. The whole shock was manufactured by a dozen old maids of fashion who run Wash-

Mosnis, cashier of the Girard House, Philipadelphia, Pa., writes, November 27, 1881; " For the past twelve years I have been a surgorer with what is known to the medical profession as lumbago. Having been recommended, about five years ago, to try Allcock's Porous Plasters, I did so, and was more than astonished at the result. I found almost instant relief on their application. I wear one constantly now, and would not be without them. I consider them invaluable."

Not Symptoms, But The Disease.

It would seem to be a truth appreciable by all, and especially by professors of the healing art, that to remove the disease, not to alloviate its symptoms, should be the chief aim of medication. Yet in how many instances do we see this truth admitted in theory, ignored in practice. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Sitters is successful it so many cases, with which remedies previously tried were inadequate to cope, is attributable to the fact that it is a medicine which reaches and removes the causes of the various maiadies to which it is adapted. Indigestion, fever and ague, liver complaint, gout, rheumatism, disorder of the bowels, urleary affections and other maiadies are not pallisted merely, but record out by it. It goes to the fountain head. It is really, not nominally, a radical remedy, and it endows the system with an amount of vigor which is best protection against disease.

A Few Facts.

Housekeepers in selecting wares for your tables, etc., especially those just buying new outfits, it is important that you select the best in the market. How embarrassing to a lady, especially if she has table pride, and what lady should not have, to find that her ware is all full of small cracks, and that grease has penetrated and made it look black and ugly.

A cause and a remedy. All semiporcelain or granite ware in its biscuit state is porous. It is then covered with natural or artificial glass to prevent its penetration by liquids. This is termed glazing. The glaze must vary as it must fuse or melt according to the ware upon which it is placed. It must also dilate or contract in pro-

JEWELRY AND ART I

In calling attention to our offerings in this line, the public are invited to a close and critical examination of the goods which we believe we can fairly claim are of a standard equal to any ever offered in the largest cities of our land, and we ask comparison of prices, knowing that ours are lower for the fine goods offered than the ruling of prices elsewhere. Our Stock of Unset Diamonds is large, and we will make up from these

All the Newest Patterns of Ladies' Wear always in Stock, and Birth or Month Stones of the whole calender can be had promptly. The Gems—Diamond, Ruby, Emerald, Sapphire, Topaz, Opal and Pearl always on hand, and set to order.
