OSTLER JOE.

The following is the poem recited by Mrs. James Brown Potter, of New York, at an entertainment given at Secretary Whitney's house, in Washington, last month, for charitable purposes, and which, it is announced, caused several ladies summarily to leave the room. The author of the poem, Mr. George B. Sims, is a well-known London journalist and playwight, who is best known in this country through his play "The Lights o' London." The poem has frequently been recited in fashionable Wess End drawing rooms in London and in public and private in New York, notably at a benefit performance at Wallack's Theatre about a year

I stood at eve, as the sun went down, by a grave

where a woman lies,
Who lured men's souls to the shores of ain with the light of her wanton eyes,
Who sang the song that the siren sang on the Lurley height, Whose face was as fair as a summer day, and whose heart was as black as night.

Yet a blessom I fate would pluck to day from the garden above her dust. Not the languorous lily of soulless sin nor th blood red rose of lust. But a sweet white blossom of holy love the grew in the one green spot in the arid desert of Phryne's life, where all was parebed and hot In the Summer, when the meadows were aglow with blue and red, Joe, the 'ostler of the Magpie, and fair Annie Suith were wed.

Piump was Annie, plump and pretty, with a cheek as white as snow;
Ile was anything but handsome, was the Mag pie's 'ostler, Joe.

But he won the winsome lassie. They'd a cot tage and a cow,

And her ma trophood sat lightly on the village
beauty's brow. Sped the months and came a baby-such a blue eyed baby boy! Joe was working in the stables when they told him of his joy. He was rubbing down the horses and be gay swift the happy years went over, years of blue and cloudless sky ; Love was lord of that small cottage, and the tem pest passed them by.

Passed them by for years, then swittly burst it fury o'er their home ; Down the lane by Annie's cottage chanced : gentleman to roam ; Thrice he came and saw her sitting by the win-And be nodded to the baby, and the baby laughed and smiled,

So at last it grew to know him-little Joe was nearly four; He would call the "pretty gemplus," as he passed the open door,
And one day he ran and caught him, and in child's play pulled him in,
And the baby Joe had prayed for brought about

Twas the same old wretched story that for ages bards have sung Twas a woman weak and wanton, and a villatu's tempting tongue ;

"Twas a picture deftiy painted for a slily creature's eyes Of the Babylonian wonder and the joy that in Annie listened and was tempted-she was tempted and she fell,

As the angels fell from heaven to the blackest depths of hell : She was promised wealth and splendor and a life of guilty sloth; Yellow gold for child and husband—and the, man left them both

Horse one evecame Joe the 'estler with a cheery Finding that which blurred forever all the story

" It was kind o' her to bear me all this long and happy time. So for my sake please to bless her, though you count her deed a crime ; if so be I don't pray proper, Lord, forgive me, for you see I can talk all right with 'osces, but I'm nervous

Ne'er a line came to the cottage from the woman

Joe, the baby, died that winter, and the man was left slone. Ne'er a bitter word be uttered, but in stience Saving what he told his horses : saving what he Far away in mighty London rose the woman into fame : For her beauty won men's homage, and she prospered in her shame; Quick from lord to lord she fitted, higher still each prize she won,

And her rivals paled beside her as the stars be-

Next she made the stage her market, and she dragged Art's temple down To the level of a show-place for the outcasts of the town.

And the kisses she had given to poor 'Ostler Joe With their gold and costly jewels rich and titled lovers bought.

Went the years with flying footsteps while her star was at its height, Then the darkness came on swiftly, and the gloaming turned to night.

Shattered strength and faded beauty tore the laurels from her brow;
Of the thousands who had worshiped never one

Broken down in health and fortune, men forgot her very name, Till the news that she was dying woke the echoes of her fame ; And the papers in their gossip mentioned how an "actress" lay, sick to death in humble lodgings, growing weaker every day.

One there was who read the story in a far-off country place, And that night the dying woman woke and looked upon his face. Once again the strong arms clasped her that had clasped her long ago,
And the weary head lay pillowed on the breast of 'Ostler Joe.

All the past had been forgotten, all the sorrow and the shame;
the had found her sick and lonely, and his wife
he now could claim.
Since the grand folks who had known her one and all had slunk away, L'e could clasp his long-lost darling, and no man would say him nay. in his arms death found her lying, in his arms her spirit fied ; And his tears came down in torrents as he knelt beside her dead.

Never once his love had faltered through her base, unhallowed life; And the stone above herashes bears the honored

And the stone above her ashes bears the honored name of wife.

That's the blossom I fain would pluck to day from the garden above her dust;
Not the languorous illy of soulless sin nor the blood-red rose of lust,
But a sweet white blossom of holy love that grew in the one green spot in the arid desert of Phryne's life, where all was parched and hot.

Why Washington Was Shocked.
From the Brooklyn Eagle.
"Were you in Washington when that dreadful poem, "Outler Joe," was read, Mrs. Bareshoulders?"
"Yes, I was present, and a more diagnating exhibition I never saw in my life. I was one of the first to leave the room. That poem ought to be driven out of print."
"Is it so terribly bad, then?"
"Bad! It is the tamest, flattest thing you ever went to sleep over. I never was so bitterly disappointed in my life."

Washing Dogs for a Living.

A young Swede makes a living in Boston by washing dogs. He goes from house to home in the imbienable quarters, and for fifty cents or seventy-five, according to the size of the dog, gives the petathorough baths. It is said that the plan was the thought of a well-known and charitable woman. She wanted to help the young fellow, who was out of work, and interested her friends in the scheme, and now he has about all the dog-washing he can attend to.

As spring comes on animals grow tired of dry tood and have a strong desire to get to pasture that they may if possible get a bite grass, and no matter how good the hay cattle will have no special relish for it; they desire a change, such as young and tender grass furnishes. The transition from hay to grass is one that should be attended to with care. furnishes. The transition from hay to grass is one that should be attended to with care. An animal that has been fed on exclusively dry fodder if turned into a prature with a good growth of grass will be likely to be set to scouring, if no more serious consequences do not foliow. This should be avoided, and different methods are adopted for this purpose. Some farmers of good judgment adopt the following plan, especially with young cattle, and are satisfied with the result. As soon as the grass isegins to get started in the spring the cattle are allowed to go to pasture. There is not enough feed of young grass to produce scouring, and for another reason that the sdry fog" is esten by the animals, making up a part of the diet. In this way it is elaimed that although the animal will gaunt up there are no ill consequences to foliow, and in this gradual manner is prepared to take a full feeding of grass as it grows without any bad consequences. A scarcity of hay sometimes compels farmers to adopt some such course as this. Another mode is to commence pasturage gradually by a limitation of time of feeding, turning out an hour or two hours and then returning the animals to the barn or shed to complete the feed with hay. In this way the animal would be more likely to maintain a more uniform appearance, so far as appearance is concerned, than by the method named abova.

English farmers know full well the value for feeding purposes of green rye, and so this crop is very much grown for that purpose, a practice that is but little followed in this country, although it might well be for the advantage it would give. Our English neighbors attach more consequence to green crops for winter use than we of this country do and make use of turnips, potatoes, cabbage, etc. And most farmers in the British Isles provide some early green crop which they in-And most farmers in the British Isles pro-vide some early green crop which they in-tend shall tide their cattle and sheep over what they consider the critical period be-tween hay and grass. JEWELRY AND ART I

In calling attention to our offerings in this line, the public are invited to a close and critical examination of the goods which we believe we can fairly claim are of a standard equal to any ever offered in the largest cities of our land, and we ask comparison of prices, knowing that ours are lower fine goods offered than the ruling of prices elsewhere.

Our Stock of Unset Diamonds is large, and we will make up from the any style of work desired. All the Newest Patterns of Ladies' Wear always in Stock, and Birth or Month Stones of the whole calender can be had promptly. The Gems—Diamond, Ruby, Emerald, Sapphire, Topaz, Opal and Pearl always on hand, and set to order. Oil Paintings, Marble and Bronze Statuary, and Musical Boxes, always cheerfully shown by our attendants. Everybody is invited to call and be shown through our stock.

WORKS-587 NORTH CHERRY STREET, LANGASTER, PA. GRAINING, &C. INDESTRUCTIBLE GRAINING.

NO CRACKING, NO PEELING, NO BLISTER

We have a system of graining new wood that must, in the near inture, take the place of the old system on all new work, its merits being as follows: Total abolition of a painted groundwork, speed and cleanliness in working it, beauty and transparency of fluish, smoothness and durability, and the capability of receiving as high finish as hard wood by the same methods. This process is the nearest approach to natural wood that has yet been discovered. Call and see samples.
