THE VEERY As up the mountain side I pressed
I heard the veery's vesper song.
Poured warm from out his glowing breast,
And echoing the glades slong.
Tir-lee, tir-lee, tir-lee, the strain,
Fond love, and hope, and tender pain.

The evergreens their odors gave
To load the fresh ning Western breeze,
And, fed from many a mountain cave,
The brook sped downward through the trees
Tir-lee, tri-lee, tri-lee the song;
And rock and woodland echoed long.

The slender birches gently swayed; Their milky stems rose spectral fair ; Around their roots, with vines arrayed, Grew red-tipped moss and maiden hair And tira-lee, tri-lee was poured -A liquid stream of soft accord

Dark rose the cedar's spiral form On that peliucid Northern sky, A clear expanse of color shorn, A lake of ether to the eye; And, like that clearness, tir a lee Sang the ione bird upon the tree.

The dusky stems of lofty pines
Are spaced with visions of the bills;
Bue barmonies in melting lines
And winding vales the pleture fills;
And still the bird note seems to pray,
Like one who seeks the narrow way.

The cattle hid in distant dells Wade deep through dank and dewy brake, And tinklings from their far-off bells

Sound o'er the bosom of the lake : But higher still the veery's lay Fionts like a cloud of melody. -Augusta Larned

OX AND SHEEP.

The Advantages of the Free Importation

From the Record

The Record has more than once called attention to the strange oversight of the tariff mongers in exempting from taxation the hide of the ox while imposing heavy protec-tive duties on the wool of the sheep. When the tariff system was established the Western raisers of cattle, who by instinct favor the largest freedom of trade, disclained to make an appeal for a share of the tariff plunder in a duty on imported hides. When a plea was sometimes made that the hide of the ox was entitled to as much protection as the wool of a sheep, the manufacturers of leather had enough influence upon Congress to prevent enough influence upon Congress to prevent the imposition of a duty. Hence an impor-tant raw material of American manufactures, once subject to a slight duty, is now wholly exempt from tax. As a consequence a large foreign commerce in imports of hides and in exports of leather and its manufactures has spring up in the country, which last year aggregated nearly thirty million dollars in value. The imports of raw hides alone amounted in value last year to upward of six-teen million dollars.

value. The imports of raw hides alone amounted in value last year to upward of sixteen million dollars.

This country's largest imports of raw hides are made not from South America, as is generally assumed, but from England. American cattle are shipped to England; when slaughtered their hides are sent back to this country, and when the leather is tanned it is returned to England, all in the process of absolute free trade. By the erection of a protective tariff bridge for this trade and the collection of toll at either end of it the trade would be seriously crippled if not wholly destroyed. If a protective duty similar to the duties on wool had been imposed on raw nides, the foreign trade of this country in leather, which is yearly growing in importance, could not now be in existence. Fortunately the paternalists and protectionists in their mischievous meddling with the business of the people neglected this material, and, as the result, a great commerce has arisen which gives profitable employment to a large number of persons. The trade has grown up in a wholesome and natural way. There has been no codding or force work about it. The only boon the manufacturers of leather have sought of the government is to be let alone. The slight manufacturers of leather have sought of the government is to be let alone. The slight duties imposed on leather for their nominal protection inspire in them neither gratitude why should the manufacturers of woolen Why should the manufacturers of woolen goods be subjected to oppressive burdens of tax from which the manufacturers of leather are wholly exempt? If it is desirable that the woolen industries of the country should prosper as well as the leather manufactures, ought not their raw materials also to be free? The not their raw materials also to be free? The heavy protective duty on wool, averaging 33 per cent. ad valorem, not only discourages importation but compels the American manufacturers to pay nearly, if not quite, the equivalent of the duty on all the domestic wool they consume. As a result of this disastrous policy the woolen manufacturers of this country, with all their energy and enterprise, are unable to make effective competition with their European rivals either in the home or in neutral markets. Last year the total exports of American woolen goods of every ports of American woolen goods of every description amounted in value to less than three-quarters of a million dollars. How paltry is this compared with the country's exports of leather manufactures! But while the country cannot export woolen goods by reason of the excessive duties on the raw materials, its imports of woolen fabries last materials, its imports of woolen fabries last year amounted in value, when delivered from the custom house, to upward of sixty million dollars. Unable to export their products on account of the heavy tax on wool, our manufacturers at the same time are unable to prevent the importation of this enormous quantity of foreign woolen over a tariff barrier of upward of 60 per cent, ad valorem. rier of upward of 60 per ceut, ad valorem. The great advantages possessed by English, French and Gern an manufacturers in their choice of an abundance of untaxed raw materials overcome all the advantages of American manufacturers of wooleas in high protective duties. Yet, in face of all the facts proving the disastrous effects of the duties on wool, the committee on ways and magnetic descriptions. proving the disastrous effects of the duties on wool, the committee on ways and means hesitates to put worl on the free list in the tariff bill now under consideration. The slight change proposed in the duties on carpet wools would afford some relief, it is true, but it would not remove the obstruc-tions to the prosperity of the country's woolen industries. There can be no sub-stantial reform of the tariff until the taxes on wool are totally abolished.

Sowing Onta, From the Germantown Telegraph.
If the best results would be obtained in growing oats, they should be sown as soon as it is possible to work the ground. It matters not how cold even it may be after sowing, the crop will sustain no injury. Walde F. Brown mentions a case in which he sowed oats on the 23d and 25th of February. The month of March proved to be a cold, wet month, with snow and the mercury down to eight degrees. But when April came with warmer weather, before his neighbors with warmer weather, before his neighbors could plow his oats were up, and a spiendid crop was the result. We have had a similar experience, although with less severe cold weather. On one occasion we plowed for oats and barely succeeded in getting the oats sowed and harrowed in before there came on a sudden change of weather and a severe snow storm, but the oats came up in due time and succeeded as though the soil had not been covered with its cold mantle. It is frequently the case that in the month of February or March there is a spell of warm weather, in which oats may be sowed as well as not. If the sowing is delayed until later in the season for the ground to become warmed and dried, the crop is more likely to become blasted and much lighter in weight. Last season a field was plowed and sowed as late as June, and it became necessary to cut for fodder in order to save the entire destruction of the crop by rust.

"I worth not live alway." No; not if disease is to make my life a daily burden. But it need not, good friend, and will not if you will be wise in time. How many of our foved ones are mouldering in the dust who might have been spared for years. The slight cough was unbacded, the many symptoms of disease that lurked within were slighted and death came. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" cannot recall the dead, though it has snatched numbers from the verge of the grave, and will cure consumption in its earlier stages.

SUDDEN CHANGES.

If the body receives daily a proper amount of nutrition, and expels the wern-out parts, health is the certain consequence; but by a sudden change of weather, the pores of the skin may not perform their office well, and matters are retained which should have passed off by that avenue. All causes which impede insensible perspiration are traught with danger, because matters which should have passed away through the skin are turned again into circulation. A YER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

"IT SAVED MY LIFE" is a common expression, often heard from those who have realized, by personal use, the curative powers of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. "I cannot say enough in praiss of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, believing as I do that, but for its use, i should long since have died from lung troubles.—E. Bragdon, Palestine, Tex.

About six months ago I had a severe hemorrhage of the lungs, brought on by a distressing Cough, which deprived me of sleep and rost. I had used various cough baisams and expectorants without obtaining relief. A friend advised me to try

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and am happy to say that it helped me at once. By continued use this medicine curred my cough, and I am satisfied, saved my life.—Mrs. E. Coburn, is Second Street, Lowell, iffe.—Mrs. E. Coburn, IS Second Street, Lowell, Mass.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for over a year, and sincerely believe I should have been in my grave, had it not been for this medicine, it has cured me of a dangerous affection of the lungs, for which I had almost despaired of ever finding a remedy,—D. A. McMullen, Windsor, Provence of Ontario.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my litte. Two years ago I took a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. I consulted physicians and took the remedies they presortised, but failed to obtain relief until I began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Two bottles of this medicine completely restored my health,—Lizzie M. Allen, West Lancaster, Ohio.
