New Niagara Falls Were Saved. It has, perhaps, not secured the attention it deserves that the state of New York, with the imperial bounty of a great commonwealth, has saved the scenery of Niagara Falls.

It seems that F. E. Church, the artist, was the first person to call attention to the impending ruin of the characteristic scenery of the civilized settlement of that region there was a luxuriance and beauty of vegetation on the Niagara river banks that is usually only to be seen in tropical climates.

When all this was in danger of destruction by the vandals, and the beauties and wonders of the falls were shut off by the toll bar and visitors had become the victims of remorseless rapacity, it is to the high credit of the state of New York that her public-spirited citizens set on foot a movement for the preservation of their most majestic wonder.
