AS I CAME PROM LEBANON. As I CAME PRON LEBARON.

As I came down from Lebaron,
Came winding, wandering slowly down
Through mountain pages bleak and brow
The cloudless day was well nigh done.
The city, like an opal set
In emerald, showed each minaret
After with radiant beams of sun,
And glistened orange, fig and lime,
Where song birds made melodious chime
As I came down from Lebaron.

As I came down from Lebanon, Like lava, in the dying glow, Through clive orchards far below, I saw the murmuring river run; And 'neath the wall, within the sand, swart shelks from distant Samarcand, With precious spices they had won, Lay long and languidly in wait Till they might pass the guarded gate, As I came down from Lebanon.

As I came down from Lebanon. I saw strange men from lands afar In mosque and square and gay bazar— The Magt that the Moslem shun, The grave Effendi from Stambon he sherbet sipped in corners cool And from the balcony o'errun With roses gleamed the eyes of those Who dwell is still seragilos, As I came down from Lebanon.

As I came down from Lebanon And Night, arrayed as is a bride of some great king in garments spun of purple and the finest gold, outbloomed in glories manifold,
i till the moon, above the dun and darkening desert, vold of shade, Shone like a keen Damascus biade, As I came down from Lebanon.
—Clinton Scotlard in Lappine

Better Late Than Never.

benevolent woman over in Bethlehem Pa., much given to good works, some twee ty years ago heard of a poor old woman who had drifted to Bethlehem and left there without friends or relatives. This was a case needing immediate relief: assistance of every kind was gathered, and when a relative was found in a way-off city money was collected among sympathizing friends. The old lady get off to her new home, overwhelmingly thankful for help from kind people on whom she had no claim. Everything was thought of to make her comfortable for her distant journey. Her Bethlehem benefactress even handed her an envelope, with a stamp, so that she might hear of the safe arrival of her charge. Year after year rolled on, but not a word was ever sent; no letter in that envelope came to hand, and yet all through these years, she could not forget the old lady, and wondered what had become of her; whether she had reached her destination and had found her friends that had written her to come to them. Hope of hearing had been given up, and not a line was received, when lately a letter was handed to the Bethlehem lady. The envelope looked familiar, the three-cent stamp was long since out of date, both stamps and postage rates had long since been changed a number of times by the government. It was like hearing from Sleepy Holiow. On opening the letter it was found to be from the old lady of twenty years ago. She gave full details of her life and the kind treatment of her surroundings. She could hardly find words of thanks to express her gratitude for all the help and sympathy received while at Bethlehem from this lady and without friends or relatives. This was a case hardly find words of thanks to express her gratitude for all the help and sympathy re-ceived while at Bethlehem from this lady and other frieads enlisted in her behalf. She had always intended writing, but for some reason or other had delayed doing so. But that en-velope and stamp had been treasured up for the purpose for which it was intended; now it was sent after twenty years of waiting.

Cleaning Carpets. From the Domestic Monthly.
In all our own experiments we have found nothing so safe and serviceable as bran slightly moistened—ony very slightly—just sufficient to hold the particles together. In this case it is not necessary to stop and clean the broom every few minutes. Sweeping the carpet after the bran has been sprinkled over it not only cleans the carpet and gathers all the dirt into the bran, but keeps the broom clean at the same time. It too much dampened, saide from injuring the carpet, it makes the work harder, because the bran becomes very heavy if very damp. The bran should be aifted evenly over the floor and then the room swept as usuni. The bran secures and cleanses the whole fabric, very little dust is made while sweeping with it, and scarcely any settles on the furniture, pictures, etc., after the work has been accomplished, because every particle of dirt, thread, bits of paper or lint is gathered up into the mass of bran that is being moved over the floor, and so thoroughly incorporated with it that it will not be easily separated. Carpets swept in this way retain very little dust, as will be pixinly demonstrated whenever they are taken up to be shaken. this case it is not necessary to stop and clean
