IN CONFIDENCE.

(Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Loquitur)

You ask about Walter's engagement,
Of course we don't like it, my dear,
Although she is awfully pretty,
And worth twenty thousand a year.

Her great grandpapa was a butcher,
Or soap-man—I don't quite know which;
But in the last three generations
They've grown to be stunningly rich.

They've a palace 'way out on North Broad street,
Magnificent inside and out;
If money could purchase a roc's egg,
They'd have one, I haven't a doubt.

Where was it he met her? In Europe
It couldn't have happened at home.
You know that I wrote you last summer
He sailed on the City of Rome.

It seems that they traveled together,
And when they came back in the fall
The mischief was done past preventing;
'Twas a terrible shock to us all.

Her trousseau's from Paris, and gorgeous;
Almost too much so for my taste.
The clasps to her garters are diamonds;
I cannot approve of such waste.

She's to have a new house on West Walnut,
Grandly furnished from attic to hall;
Of course if they staid on North Broad street,
We couldn't ask people to call.

And it is, though, no doubt we can float her—
We're all on The Rock, you know, dear—
And when once she is in The Assembly,
She'll make her own way, I don't fear

And Walter is perfectly happy.
I grant she is charming, and yet
It's terribly hard to forgive him
For marrying out of our set.

Tales Told Out of School.

From the Boston Record.

It is about time for another budget of school stories, and here they are:

Teachers are required by some pupils to put questions in just the proper form to elicit the answers desired. Recently a class of girls had been discussing the climate of Chili, and, to see if one of the number knew that the seasons there occur at opposite times to ours, the question was put: "When do they have their seasons in the south temperate zone, Katie?" "All the year round!" was the instant response.

"If England is our mother country, is India our father country?" asked a promising pupil the other day. No, indeed: why do you ask such a question?" "Nothing, I see it's Farther India on the map." He was only 10, and said it in good faith.

Another pupil read the expression "arms of the sea," in a very vague fashion. "What do you mean—any thing given in charity?" "No, m'm." "Fire-arms, perhaps?" "Yes, m'm." "Will you tell me [this rather impatiently] any explosives from the sea?" "She lis." He was sent to the head in language.

That some boys at an early age appreciate the responsibilities of life is shown by the twelve-year old who wrote in a composition: "Col. Ellsworth was engaged to be married and this was more solemn than his death."

Another small boy, with the possibilities of eminence in the field of romantic literature in the dim future, handed in this bit of graphic description: "The selavs are occupied by a great variety of reptiles and insects such as the monkey. There are many poisonous t se as hanging from the bows where tambourines grow. The rhinoceros lives on the most beautiful trees. In the frigit zone we see immense icebergs and icicles on which are whales and other birds—a large animal is scooling water through his nose. In the Arctic ocean we find birds sitting on the grass—these birds walk on their hind feet."

How many uninteresting essays we should be spared if writers who have not a slight knowledge of matters discussed were to follow the example of the high school girl who wrote: "I am to write on the subject of Æsthetiicism. Having nothing whatever to say on the subject, I now proceed to say it." That was all. This was an actual reading in a Somerville grammar school the other day by a big boy, of the passage in the reader which tells how Longfellow took possession of the Craigie house and lived an ideal life there: "After this Longfellow retired to the carriage house, and there lived an almost idle life!"

Dempsey Knocks Out McCann.

Jack Dempsey stopped Ned McCann, of Chester, in the fourth round of a glove contest at the Theatre Comique, Philadelphia, on Monday evening. Dempsey is considerably the larger man, and yet he cutely made McCann force the fighting all throught the first of the bout, while he himself was satisfied with countering, generally with his dangerous left hand, with which he always got home. For nearly two rounds he kept McCann at arms' length, but toward the close of the second round, when the Chester boy showed signs of being blown, Dempsey suddenly brought the fighting to close quarters using both hands. The third round opened with Dempsey doing his left-hand chopping work, and McCann's nose bled profusely. Toward the close of the round Dempsey again went in with both hands and got in a knock-out blow just at the finish. McCann was carried to his corner and brought up for the fourth round, but he lasted only about half of it. He was knocked down three times, and the last time failed to come to time. Dominick McCaffrey was referee.

Dempsey has declined to meet Jack Burke in an eight-round glove contest in Chicago on May 10, but expressed his willingness to fight either Mitchell or Burke to a finish for $5,000 with skin gloves. Parson Davies asked Dempsey, by dispatch, to take Frank Glover's place in the Chicago glove contest on May 10, but Dempsey declines to make any arrangements except for a fight to a finish.

Wonderful Development.

The manufacturing industries of Augusta, Ga., continue to show remarkable development, despite the hard times through which industrial enterprises have had to struggle. Augusta now has eleven cotton factories, which absorb all of the cotton brought to that market. They give employment to 4,000 hands, pay out over one million dollars annually in wages, and manufacture yearly goods valued at five millions of dollars. The population was doubled the past ten years, and the taxable property has more than doubled in the same time. A Philadelphia firm is now building a factory in Augusta, which will cost several hundred thousand dollars, and give employment to a large number of skilled operatives. All the factories are now running on full time, the employes are making good wages and are contented, and the outlook for the city is brighter than ever before.

Young Mrs. Grant's Fortune.

Ulysses S. Grant, jr., has been out in Colorado attending to the details of settling up the estate of his father-in-law, the late Jerome B. Chaffee. The value of the property which is left to Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant cannot be determined, as the bulk of it is in mining interests. Carefully nursed, however, it will probably aggregate about three hundred thousand dollars. All this will remain in Mrs. Grant's name, as her husband is legally liable for the debts of Grant and Ward. Mrs. Grant lost her dower of $400,000, and a residence which her father presented her, in the failure. Chaffee lost half a million of securities which he had on deposit. Ulysses, jr., will be comfortable for the rest of his life, nevertheless. He and his wife live upon a farm in Winchester county owned by the late Mr. Chaffee.

"I'm Tom Jackson."

From the Cincinnati Sun.

This story is told of a prominent lady who is sometimes just a little overbearing to those she considers her inferiors. She lives in a fashionable west end locality, and seldom takes the street cars. But she did the other day. On approaching the street near her house she said to the conductor: "Stop on this side of the street." The conductor rang the bell, but it was too late, and the car kept right on to the opposite corner. She was very indignant and put her indignation into warm words, winding up with: "I am Mrs. Blank." The conductor, nothing abashed, replied: "Glad to make your acquaintance, Mrs. Blank, I'm Tom Jackson."

A Minister Forgets the Lord's Prayer.

Two hundred Chinese sat in Dr. Deems' church, New York, on Sunday evening, and listened to a sermon in their own tongue, delivered by the Rev. E. D. Jones, a missionary, who has spent ten years in China. He spoke for half an hour in English to the remainder of his audience. When Mr. Jones attempted, at the opening of the service, to repeat the Lord's Prayer in English, he broke down, as he could not remember it, and Dr. Deems was obliged to come forward and explain that Mr. Jones had been speaking Chinese so long that he had forgotten the text of the Lord's Prayer in English.

Children at the White House.

A large number of children gathered in the White House grounds south of the executive mansion, Washington, at an early hour Monday morning to enjoy the annual custom of rolling Easter eggs down the many grassy knolls on that part of the ground. A light shower of rain just before noon did not disperse them, but protected by water proofs they continued their sport. Many grown people were interested spectators of the merry gambols of the children.

Throat trouble,—dangerous. Red Star Cough Cure, safe and sure. 25 cents a bottle.

"Sweet Maud Muller."

Whittier's beautiful ballad contains a touching allusion to the many cares and sorrows which wear upon the "heart and brain" of a wife and mother. Thousands of weary suffering women have found Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" a marvellous recuperator of wasted strength, and of sovereign efficacy in all those derangements and maladies peculiar to their sex, by reason of which the vitality is gradually sapped, and the cheek robbed prematurely of its bloom. Price reduced to one dollar. By Druggists. a27-TuF&W

Rev. D. M. Carpenter, of Clymer, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., writes March 2, 1885: My boy, two years old, took a severe cold which settled in his throat and lungs. Nothing afforded relief, and I thought he must die. Finally I put an Allcock's Porous Plaster around the throat and one on the chest. In less than an hour his breathing became better, and he fell asleep. In twenty-four hours the child was well.

KIDNEY TROUBLES.

A Case of Many Years Standing Cured With Six Bottles, in a Man 90 Years of Age.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 8, 1885.

DANDELION BITTERS CO.—Gents: I had been troubled with my kidneys for a number of years, used almost everything without much benefit until I tried Dandelion Bitters. I used six bottles and am pleased to say I am entirely rid of the kidney trouble, besides my system being toned up so that I feel like a different person. I cheerfully recommend the same to all afflicted in this way. JACOB MUSCHLITZ.

HATS, CAPS, &C.

THERE IS NOTHING

LIKE A YOUNG MAN BEING HEADED RIGHT!

Something for Your Personal Interest!

It is to every young man's interest to dress himself in such a manner as will become him. There is no other part of his dress that will so much change his appearance as his Hat. If the Hat is not the proper one to suit his face, build and general appearance, no matter how finely he may be dressed in other particulars, he does not look well.

STAUFFER & CO., THE LEADING HATTERS OF LANCASTER, make a specialty of the Newest and Most Correct Styles of SILK, STIFF AND SOFT HATS.

Particular care is taken to show customers only those which are the newest and look the best on them. When we do this we add our own interest as well as that of our customers.

Only place in Lancaster where the Original Boston Light Weight Beauties and the pretty New York "Knox" Hats can be had.
