On April 28 Superintendent Halbach and his men began the laying of the 20 inch water main at the corner of East Orange and Lime streets. To-day they are at the corner of West Orange and Charlotte, a distance of six squares. Considering the great difficulty encountered, especially at the intersection of North Queen and Orange, North Prince and Orange, and Water and Orange the work has progressed quite satisfactorily, and a point having been now reached beyond which there will be no sewers to cut through, no heavy connections to be made, and but little rock to be blasted from the trenches, the work progresses rapidly and will soon be finished.

On Monday next the Lancaster & Millers ville railroad company intend to commence relaying their track on West Orange street, torn up to enable the city to lay its water main. The company has not yet signified its intention to comply with a resolution passed by city councils requiring them to use a flat rail instead of the T rail formerly in use.

Although Virtue, of the Lancaster club.

Although Virtue, of the Lancaster cinb, had accepted the terms of the Wilkesbarre club and had agreed to play with them, he went back on his promise and last night signed with the Altooma club because they gave him a few dollars more per month. This is his first season as a professional ball player and money looks big to him. He and Zecher left this morning at an early hour for Altoona with an agent of that club. Both had promised to remain in this city and play in the game for the benefit of the stranded players, but as soon as they received their players, but as soon as they received their advancemoney they disregarded all promises. It seems that some of the members of the Lancaster club are very little better than

AN IRISH LEADER'S LETTER

Writing to a Lancaster Gentleman on Home A letter has been received by a gentleman of this city, prominently identified with the Irish movement, from Joseph G. Biggar, one of Parnell's most trusted lieutenants. It is dated London, May 24, and these exracts from it will be read with interest :

The American subscriptions have been of mormous advantage to our cause. Our op-ponents at the last general election forced contests on us in many places, not with any hope of success, but to make us incur expense. A considerable number of our party, myself among the number, paid our own expenses, but in cases where we had to pay for contests, the outlay ranged from £183 to £875, according to the difficulty of the contest. An uncontested election costs about £30. We are likely to have another general election within the next three months, and we estimate the expenses of it at £10,000. We have a continuous expense for locking after the registry in a few combiful constitu-

The policy of the party at the last election was to get a good many active young men, who would give their whole time. A good many of these gentlemen had to be paid, but they are very much more valuable

But Was Overhauted at Eden and Brought to Town-The Case Settled. Levi Marshall, of the Welsh mountain, tended court as a witness this week and boarded at the County house. He told Capt. Settley yesterday, after the case was disposed of, that he would draw his money and pay what he owned. He sneaked his baggage away from the hotel, stepped over to the court house, drew his money and walked to the Park house, where he boarded the New Holland stage to go home. When the cap-tain heard of his drawing his witness fees and that he could not be found, he came to the conclusion that Marshall had skipped out to avoid paying his bill, and be made complaint before Alderman Fordney. The warrant was placed in the hands of Officer Cramer and he deputized ex-Constable Lowry to execute it. Lowry hired a team, drove down the New Holland turnpike and overtook the stage at Eden. He arrested Marshall and brought him to this city. Marshall acknowledged that he wanted to get away without paying his board bill, and offered to pay the cising and all costs if the captain would withdraw his suit. The captain did not care to press the suit, and withdrew it. Marshall then paid the bill and costs. the conclusion that Marshall had skipped out
