CHASED BY ANGRY .. COONS."

A Story of the Mount Joy Cake Walk That Has Not Been Told. MOUNT Joy, June 16.—It was a queer old that the colored folks had at their gathering here on Whit-Monday night. A large growd of whites and blacks had some words at the Grand Central hotel. One word brought on another and a white chap from town hit a colored chap over the head with a beer glass. This was assailing the dignity of the colored race, and at a signal from one of the blacks a dozen or more razors glistened in the early morning light, and put the white men on guard. They did not stand guard long till they found out that the best thing they could do was to run, if they valued their lives.

The town boys ran to the Farmers', a hotel The town boys ran to the Farmers, a hotel on Manheim street, the proprietor of which had not yet opened the room. When the town fellows began pounding on the door and lamoring for admission, the proprietor opened and let them inside before the blacks had caught up. After the landlord had admitted them he closed the door, and went to open the shutters when he was surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to the shutters when he was surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to the shutters when he was surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the front part of his house surprised to find the find t prised to find the front part of his house sur-rounded with an angry mob of blacks armed with clubs. This startled the now excited proprietor more than ever and he went and ordered his family up stairs and brought down his musket with several revolvers and placed them in the hands of the town gang. He told the crowd that should the coons break in the door, they should shoot them. This however was not necessary as the only damage by the coons was the breaking of a window light in an up stairs window by throwing a stone at one of the town gang who had gone up to see it the coast was clear. Mrs. Cleveland and Her Husband Receive. The first official reception by the president and Mrs. Cleveland was given Tuesday night at the White House. The scene was a brilliant one, and the attendance distinguished. There were present the members of the diplomatic corps, Prince Leopold, of Brazil, cabinet members, officers of the army and navy, judges of the supreme and other courts, congressmen and heads of executive departments. Not less than 2,000 guests were present. Mrs. Cleveland, the young hostess, we are told, "had a smile for every one and a word for many, and her winsome manners captivated all." Her appearance is thus described: at the White House. The scene was a brilmany, and her winsome manners capitated all." Her appearance is thus described: "Mrs. Cleveland was attired in her wedding dress, an ivory satin; the waist, however, was slightly changed, being pointed back and front, and without sleeves. She wore white silk gauntlet mits. Her only ornaments were the diamond necklace, the wedding gift of the president, and a magnificent because of white versus were at the correction. bouquet of white roses worn at the corsage. Her hair was dressed in Grecian coils, and the charming simplicity of her whole attire only served to show to greater advantage the dignity of her carriage and the graceful poise of her figure." Cross Suits by Lizzie Culp. Lizzie Culp, who was jalled for a hearing of a complaint of felonious assault and battery preferred against her by Charles Dor-wart, has in turn prosecuted the prose-cutor. She claims that the row commenced in Dorwart's house where he had invited her to drink beer and afterwards insulted her, and she used the stove lifter against him in her own detense. She sues him for assault and battery, and also for fornication with Kate Sigley, (Dorwart's alleget wife) and she sues Kate Staley for adultery, the complaint for help when so seriously hurt, instead of alleging that Kate Staley has a husband living from whom she has nover been di-vorced. PATENT STRAP PANTALOONS.

The Greatest Invention of the Age. The Greatest Investion of the Age.

Pantaloons made with the Patent Strap fit easy, do not bag out at the knees, don't draw up when sitting down, and give better satisfaction than any others. Place your order with A. H. Rosenstein, the Merchant Tailor, who has the sole right for Lancaster for the Patent Double-Strap Pantaloons. I offer an unusually full stock of nobby goods for Pantaloons, Suits, Vesting and Spring Overcoots, and am devoting my entire attention to my friends and patrons, and will spare no effort to retain the position I have so long held as First Fine Merchant Tailor of Lancaster. Respectfully yours,

A. H. ROSENSTEIN, 37 North Queen St.

PUBLIC SALE OF VALUABLE MILL
PROPERTY owned by the City of Lancaster, on SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1889, at the County House on East King street, will be sold all that certain tract of land, situate at intersection of the Conestoga and Hig Espring turnpike and Conestoga creek, in Lancaster county, Pa. known as the Old Factory property, containing Seven Acres and One Hundred and Ten Perches. The buildings on these premises consist of the remains of the Four-Story Stone Factory which was destroyed by fire a number of years ago, but the wails remain standing as firm as at the time of the fire, and can be built upon again. The water power to be obtained here is second to none in the county. The head and tail race stand intact as when the mili was in active operation, and can be turned by a moderate outlay into one of the best Grist Milis in the county. This property is not more than a mile from Lancaster City, with a good turnpike running into town, and icated in the midst of perhaps the richest agricultural and wheat growing districts in the world.

Sale to commence at 7% o'clock p. m.
