A CANT-GET A WAY. What cares he how the trout may bite In the Adirondack regions? What cares he that the woodcock's flight

What cares he that the woodcock at This summer is in legions? What is't to him that stately deer At Adirondack fountains Are drinking, or that skies are clear And blue above the mountains?

And blue according to a noble art,
And dearly sportsmen love it;
But easting for a maiden's heart
Is something far above it; The Adirondack deer may be Well worth the hunter's tra worth the hunter's tratiting

Well worth the hunter's training:
But there's a fatter dear, and he
Persues not unavailing.
But are the Adirondack skies
In June, when Nature's smiling:
But he has seen a pair of eyes
Whose blue is more beguiling.
No more the camp fire may aliure,
Nor comrade's flask or duty;
He'll was been absolutely are

He'll pass, he's absolutely sure, The summer in the city.
This year no sporting doctor can
In woodcraft be his teacher;

He has no use for any man-Save, briefly, for the preacher.

Josquin Miller on Poetry.

What Joaquin Miller has to say as to the writing of poetry appears in the July Lippin-"This year," he says, "God willing, I shall stop writing, and in a small way take up the law again. For a man who writes constantly cannot think much, ought not to have much to say. There is a disposition to selfishnes and egotism in writing that is ruinous to all men. A man who makes a profession of writing poetry ought to die early. For if he lives long he will surely suffer deeply. Besides all that, the field of legitimate poetry is so small that no man ought to try to make his bread, much less maintain others, on it. Byron, Dante. Petrarch, pouring their sublime sorrows out upon the world, were hardly manly, I think. I, for one, would not permit myself to wail thus, even were it possible, for all the renown of this earth. Other immortal gods of song have selected war and celebrated a lot of cruel butchers through all the ages, sowing dragons' teeth in every sounding syllable. I would starve first. Alexander the Great mourning at Babylon' because he could not make the Greek ity grow on the ruins of that old lightning-riven town might weil be celebrated in song. But it is only now and then that we see things standing out like stars in the dark night of eminent men's actions like this. And so good song, inspirations in the dark night of eminent men's actions like this. And so good song, inspirations in the dark night of eminent men's actions like this. And so good song, inspirations are tone in the sure and content men's actions like this. And so good song, inspirations are tone in the sure and content men's actions like this. And so good song inspirations are tone in the sure and content men's actions like this. And so good song inspirations are tone in the sure and content men's actions like this. And so good song inspirations are the sure and content men's actions like this. And so good song inspirations are the sure and content men's actions like this. And so good song inspirations are and content men's actions like this. up the law again. For a man who writes now and then that we see things state in the dark night of eminent men's actions like this. And so good song, inspiring and inspired, must of necessity be rare. And it is an unwise man that would make his bread entirely by it, much less bring up his family on it. And then, with the Bible, his family on it. And then, with the Bible, Shakespeare and the Brownings, the world is not greatly in need of more poetry; but it is greatly in need of more fruit, more flowers and more beautiful gardens."

Relieved of Some of His Labors.

The Reformed Church Messenger publishes the following : Prof. Wm. M. Nevin, LL. D., who has served so many years in the college, and has been so much respected and toved by all his students, recently celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary, It was felt by all concerned that it was eminently due to him that he should be relieved from some of his labors. Accordingly the board provided for this by directing the committee on instruction, by and with the advice of the faculty, to appoint an adjunct professor of English literature and belies lettres, who shall render assistance in that department. The salary of the adjunct professor will not be large at present, but he will have a fine opportunity of working up his department and preparing himself for future usefulness in the college. And he will find the very best advantage for this in being associated with one who has wrought out so excellent a course as Prof. Nevin has done. by all concerned that it was eminently due excellent a course as Prof. Nevin has done.

A Coachman Inherits a Fortune,

Benjamin Unwin, recently coachman o Geo. Westinghouse, jr., of Pittsburg, Pa, has fallen heir to between $70,000 and $100,000. This stroke of fortune has reached him through the death of his uncle, Benjamin Unwin. The latter died at Ecclesfield, near Sheffield, England, on May 3 last. He had an extensive dry goods and grocery store besides some landed property. The lucky man is an intelligent Englishman. He is about 35 years old, and has a wife and three children. He will leave for England to take possession in about three weeks, but will return to his borne in Pittshure after arranging his business. home in Pittsburg after arranging his busines in England. Although he has absolute claim to all the estate. Unwin has generously re-solved to divide it with his other brothers and sister, three persons in all.

BROWN'S

AS THE BEST TONIC. Strengthens the Muscles. Steadles the Nerves. Enriches the Blood. Gives New, Vigor.

DR. J. L. Myrns, Fairfield, Iowa, says:
"Brown's Iron Bliters is the best Iron Medicine I have known in my 39 years practice. I have found it specially beneficial in nervous or physical exhaustion, and in all debilitating all-ments that bear so heavily on the system. Use it freely in my own family.

Mr. W. F. Brows, 537 Main street, Covington, Ky, says: "I was completely broken down in health and troubled with pains in my back. Brown's Iron Bitters entirely restored me to health."

Miss Lizzie Brennan, 2014 Cooke avenue, St. Lonis, Mo., says: "I suffered with spinal weak-ness, pains in my back and sleepless nights. I tried every conceivable remedy without much benefit. Four bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters have relieved me, and I cheerfully recommend The genuine has Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.
