Herndon, then residing in New York city, which trust was faithfully fulfilled. An Example for Timid Women. Let the timed women who are inclined to jump from a carriage every time the horse pricks up his cars read this story of a Westfield, Mass., girl. She was driving a spirited horse, when the headstall broke and the bit horse, when the beadstall broke and the bit came out of his mouth. Of course he ran. The girl, perfectly powerless to restrain him, sat upright in her seat, while the frightened animal ran wildly through the streets. She never said a word, even when a daring man caught on behind and climbed into the bugy only to find himself quite as powerless as the girl. But his added weight helped, for after a half-mile run the horse was tired enough to admit of his being caught, and the girl jumped out of the buggy, not much fright-ened, and not a bit hurt.

The people can have no other feeling than that of sincere gratitude to the president for his frank and manly course in respect to the system of pension jobbery, which has so largely become the order of the day with the members of Congress, whether Republicans or Democrats. The system has become an intelesting admender and participation of the source and pension of the system has become an intolerable abuse and perversion as become an alon idea; and this abuse and perversion apring from political and party motives, on the theory of courting what is called "the sol-dier vote." The time has come to call a halt dier vote," The time has come to call a halt in this business, and soberly inquire whether tax-payers have rights which Congress is bound to respect. The president's vetoes are calculated to open the eyes of the people to what Congress is doing with the the public money. Though courteous in form, they are, in fact, a stern and sharp rebuke of Con-respondent the sublect and are now who the gress on this subject, and sharp rebuke of Con-gress on this subject, and any one who takes time enough to examine the facts as they ex-ist will have no difficulty in seeing that the rebuke has been well deserved. It is to be hoped that the president will repeat the re-buke whenever the occasion calls for it, and thus do a good service to the general public.

This is significant of a sound public sentiment, widely prevalent; and while the Democratic state convention will no doubt commend in generous tones the liberal pensioning of all deserving soldiers and sailors, it will do itself credit and make its party strong by outspokenly declaring against frauds and jobs in the abused name of patriotism or the misused cause of charity.

While the supreme court is considering the constitutionality of a law already on the statute books of the state prohibiting oleomargarine; and with protests representing 78,000 workingmen of Pennsylva. nia on file at Washington against such federal legislation, there is no occasion to make support of it part of a Democratic state platform ; the wrongs of the colored people in the South are not half so real and of so much concern to the people of Pennsylvania, as the wrongs visited upon the coldiers' orphans in the state schools.

But though no question will be shirked. we repeat that the issues put to the front by a Democratic state convention, to ate state officers, will be state issues. This is just what Beaver, Quay, Cooper, Comma & Co., do not want ; and what they do not want it is safe to give them. If the nwealth is to fall back into the hands of weak executives, corrupt lobbyats and pardon brokers, treasury speculators and legislative roosters, it shall not be ae without vigorous Democratic protest ; and the five men whom the Democracy nominate will not be afraid to say somebing hereafter and to illustrate by their blic records what they think of these

"The English," he said, "then sympathized with him." Mr. Beecher replied with much feeling, saying he was much touched by the kindness of the English people towards him, and that, when the dark coulds hovered over him, he did not see them, because it "pleased God to raise up a rainbow, so that I only saw "Well, why don't you get out and dance?"
"Well, why don't you get out and dance?"
"I can't. A nice old lady, who flattlers you by asking your opinion of her daughtor's beaus and tickies your vanity with all sorts of pretty little touches... I tell you, my boy, you may talk as you like about young women and widows, and spinsters and flirts, but there isn't any flirt in creation so dangerous as a woman at 55, whose hair is just sprinkled with silver. They have ways about them. Confound it all. I remember getting quite spoony on an old woman of 60, who was too old to dream of disguising her age."
"You laugh ! All right. Some day you'll catch it, perhaps. But you don't seem to be lovable. If they'd only get mad and let you alone. But no ; they simply take a snub quietly and wait the next chance."

vented the wasting of stones from the rains, frost or atmospheric influence which, es-pecually in our cities, soon act on the surface of a newly quarried stone. Stone that is quarried the one day and built in the next is in a green state, and unfit for use. It is not in condition—it is at its weakest—its pores are open and ready to absorb, not only moist-ure, but the gaseous and disfiguring in-fluences which tend to its destruction. Every hewer knows that to get a ponished surface on a stone that has lain for some time is very different from what he gets on one fresh from the quarry, and this itself should be sufficient "May be not. That makes it all the worse. You see, an old lady is privileged to talk out even about love, and when she talks of love even about love, and when she talks of love you think she means as a son or something like that. Then you find out that it's just the same kind of love as anybody else's, and you've kind of encouraged it and accepted it, especially if she has money. Even money is no good. I know an old widow of 65 who was passionately attached to me, and when she died she left all her money to a congre-gation. I tell you I'm not going to stand in any more. The next old lady who fails in love with me will get left, and don't you for-get it." the quarry, and this itself should be sufficient evidence to warrant the precaution I have re-commended, which is to thoroughly season get it.
